Arab Commandos Machine-Gun Bus

American Tourist Dies in Attack

Times News Services

JERUSALEM — Arab commandos attacked a bus carrying 37 Americans on a tour of Israeli-occupied Jordan today, killing one woman and injuring three others.

The bus, on a tour of Holy Land sites, was raked by machine gun fire, as it travelled near the village of Halhoul on the outskirts of Hebron.

A second bus in the tour escaped without being hit.

One of the wounded American women, Mrs. Tabea Damico of Atlantic City, N.J., told officials:

"We were driving along out of Hebron ... when suddenly we were being shot at from all sides. We crawled under the seats for safety."

This new incident followed closely the suspected sabotaging of an Israeli-bound Swissair jetliner in which 47 persons including 15 Israelis died Saturday.

The Swiss government today called for an aviation security conference as soon as possible and suggested it take place "on Swiss territory."

VALID VISAS

Switzerland also decided that all Arab nationals must have valid visas to enter the country and ordered stringent controls to prevent Palestine commandos from entering and using Arab passports.

As well, Switzerland has set out rigid police measures involving Arab nationals.

Meanwhile, in Amman, Jordan and Arab commando groups Sunday night reached a comprise agreement that appears to have ended the latest crisis between government and guerrillas in this Arab kingdom.

"The crisis is over," a member of the commando negotiating team reported. "We will be restrained in our actions but our movement will continue."

NEW REGULATIONS

The latest crisis between King Hussein's government and the Palestinian commandos started Feb. 10 when Hussein issued broad security regulations prohibiting carrying weapons in public, stockpiling of weapons and explosives, collecting money with arms and wearing uniforms for personal gain.

A commando spokesman indicated the guerrilas will discipline themselves and that the government security measures aimed at them will not be enforced. "We consider that the measures were never issued," he said.

When the measures were announced the guerrillas said they would not respect them and would resist any attempts to disarm them. In ensuing clashes between government troops and commandos at least 80 persons died.

Freight, Mail Ban To Israel

LONDON (CP) — Eight European airlines temporarily banned freight or mail to Israel in a continent-wide security clampdown today. Passenger luggage for Middle East flights was opened at several airports.

Strengthened police details patrolled corridors and lobbies of air terminals in a search for possible saboteurs. Airline official and pilots' associations hastily called meetings to discuss security measures.

Stringent precautions were thrown around London's Heathrow Airport and senior officials of 53 airlines using the airport debated how to prevent more bomb blasts on Israel-bound planes.

Passenger baggage was searched and all travellers to Tel Aviv were asked to identify their luggage before it was stowed aboard flights for Israel. Eight Tel Aviv flights were scheduled out of Heathrow during the day, three of them direct.

Officials of the 53 airlines spent the morning discussing how to frustrate sabotage attempts following the crash Saturday of a Swiss jet flying to Tel Aviv. The four-engined Coronado came down near the Swiss-German border with a loss of 47 lives.

In London, British Overseas Airways Corp., and British European Airways banned freight to Israel. Other airlines with cargo bans included Air France, Swissair, Royal Dutch Airlines, Lufthansa of West Germany, Austrian Airlines and Sabena of Belgium.

In Switzerland, police and customs officials swarmed around passengers and parcels headed for the Middle East from Zurich and Geneva airports.

Danish police guarding Kastrup International Airport at Copenhagen were weighing whether to ask army help to protect Israel-bound flights.

At Reim Airport in Munich, Germany, where one person was killed in an attack on an Israeli El Al plane Feb. 10, police armed with automatic pistols guarded El Al passenger buses. Luggage of travellers for the Middle East was searched.

An El Al spokesman in Frankfurt said the company's airliners were under police surveillance and passenger lists were checked for suspicious names.

Passengers' baggage was opened at Rome and El Al officers were under police guard around the clock.

Basil Edwards, administrative secretary of the International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations, said consultations were under way that could lead to a meeting of the federation's governing body on the security issue.

Pompidou Faces Protest in U.S.

Times News Services

PARIS — President Georges Pompidou left by air today for an official visit to the United States, amid fears of demonstrations, especially in New York, against France's pro-Arab policy in the Middle East.

French officials are confident he will receive complete cordiality from the Nixon administration, but they are reliably reported to be nervous over possible pro-Israel public demonstrations and a potential congressional boycott when he addresses a joint session in Washington Wednesday.

Congressional critics of France's Middle East policy predict that one-third to a half of the House of Representatives membership will join the boycott, but few if any senators are expected to.

SECRECY CLOAK FOR BONN TRIP

BONN (Reuters) — Foreign Minister Abba Eban, the first Israeli minister to make an official visit here, began talks today on consolidating relations between Israel and West Germany.

Strict security has surrounded his visit for fear of action by Arab extremists.

Eban flew here Sunday night from Munich under a cloak of secrecy.

Three Girls Jailed For Attacking Court

MONTREAL — Three McGill University students were each sentenced today to 20 days in jail for contempt of court in connection with the distribution of literature described as a "monstrous attack" on the judicial system.

Associate Chief Justice George S. Challies of Superior Court passed the sentence on the three girls who were arrested on the campus of Loyola College with about 150 copies of a newsletter called Student Front.

The newsletter contained an article entitled "Feb. 11 victims face a racist and corrupt court" — referring to the case of 10 West Indians currently facing trial in the $2,000,000 computer-wrecking incident at Sir George Williams University Feb. 11, 1969.

"There is no doubt whatsoever that this is a monstrous attack on the court," Mr. Justice Challies said in sentencing Sarah Humphrey, 21, Sarah Herrink, 19, and a 17-year-old girl whose name was ordered withheld.

DISMISSES CITATIONS

Earlier, he had dismissed contempt citations against three male students arrested when police raided the headquarters of the Montreal Student Front for People's Democratic Rights Friday night.

Seized in the raid were three typewriters and a photocopy machine believed used in the production of the newsletter.

A student occupation and subsequent violence at the Sir George Williams computer centre last year came in the wake of a university investigation into charges of racism against a biology professor.

The charges were later dismissed as groundless.

The trial of the 10 Negroes on charges arising from the incident is in its sixth week, with the defence preparing to produce its first witnesses.

Bus Plunge Kills Girl In Quebec

WATERVILLE, Que. (CP) — A 17-year-old girl was killed and at least 15 persons injured today when a Provincial Transport Co. bus plunged off a bridge into the Coaticook River near a power dam.

Provincial police identified the girl as Carole Dupuis of Beebe Junction, Que., but there were unconfirmed reports that up to four others of 35 passengers may have been killed.

A Hydro-Quebec work crew, going to a nearby powerhouse, said they say the bus hit a truck in a blowing snow storm, slide on the icy road through the concrete and steel guardrail, hit part of the dam below and plunge farther down a steep ravine.

DEATH PLUNGE from a Japan Air Lines jet was caught on film by amateur photographer John Gilpin at Sydney, Australia, Sunday. Dead is Keith Sapsford, 14, who was running away.

Ran Away to See World; Boy Plunges to His Death

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A 14-year-old who ran away to see the world fell 200 feet to his death from the wheel housing of a Japanese airliner Sunday.

C. M. Sapsford, university lecturer in industrial engineering, identified the child as his foster son Keith, 14.

"All my son wanted to do was to see the world," said Sapsford. "He had itchy feet. His determination to see how the rest of the world lives has cost him his life."

Sapsford said the boy had run away before, and he and his wife took him around the world in the hope the trip would satisfy him. But when they returned the child ran away again, and "we had no alternative but to send him to Boys' Town," the father said. "We thought he would straighten out."

Police said Keith disappeared from the institution on Saturday and was reported missing Sunday.

HID IN WHEEL WELL

Officials at the airport said they believed the boy climbed up the wheel of the Japan Air Lines jetliner several hours before the plane took off and hid in the empty wheel housing, probably on the 10-by-5-foot door to the compartment which is closed while the plane is on the ground and the wheels are down.

They thought that when the door was opened after the takeoff so the wheel could be retracted, the child fell to his death.

Officials of the airline said that even if he had not fallen, Keith would have died within 90 minutes after the plane took off for Japan. They said he would have been crushed by the wheel when it was retracted, or would have been killed by the cold or by lack of oxygen.

Pacific Role Vision Expands

By JACK SCOTT

The missionary was out of a job this week, but could still hear the tambourines and the message of salvation.

Scott

Probably the one, legitimate, functioning little bit of olde England remaining in these parts, 48-year-old James McCrossan cleaned out his desk drawer at Victoria's Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped, where he'd just tendered his resignation, wondered aloud about where he'd go from here, and, characteristically, turned instantly to a longer-range vision of the future.

He's a brass-bold, self-confident man with patent leather hair, an ingratiating type sometimes billed in British music halls as "The Cheeky Chappy." A patina of London-acquired insouciance and London-acquired accent soften the image, but he's a hard-sell booster with tireless energy.

He has appalled and alienated the more conservative members of the Establishment as an unabashed promoter and a Johnny-come-lately (that worst of Victoria sins, it would appear), yet he carries right on gathering converts and gathering momentum as he goes.

Incredibly, some might say, his impact on a city subconsciously searching for identity has been pervasive and impressive.

In almost any conversation today with influential Victorians concerned for the future the phrase "Geneva of the Pacific" is sure to surface. It is Jim McCrossan's phrase, Jim McCrossan's idea and Jim McCrossan's passion.

He puts it in typically extravagant terms.

"The aim should be to create the most pleasing, most civilized total environment in the world today," he says in those excessively precise, cultured tones, fixing his listener with a faith-healing gaze.

"We can shape here a remarkable city-region, one that stands as a great, prosperous, towering lighthouse on Canada's western shores, casting out across the broad Pacific a splendid signal of decency and civilized co-operation between nations and of rising hope in the hearts of millions."

It is the same kind of contagious persuasiveness with which McCrossan ran the flag up the pole for Quaker Oats, Spode China, Lyons' Tea, Procter and Gamble soaps and other products as a London advertising executive before moving west four years ago to become director of public relations for Goodwill Enterprises, the job he left last week.

"Geneva of the Pacific" is his catch-phrase. The Inter-

Victoria Economic Promotion Council, formed just five months ago, ("a grand strategy for Greater Victoria's future") is his instrument. "Project Inter-Vic", he says, now boasts a broad base of support including city, municipal, provincial and federal representation. "There's a steadily rising groundswell of interest," as he puts it.

Briefly — and McCrossan very seldom is — Project Inter-Vic would aim at attracting international bodies,

HANOI BEGINS NEW LAOS RAID

VIENTIANE (AP) — The North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces that recaptured the Plaine des Jarres may now be heading toward Muong Suoi, an important Laotian government position nine miles west of the plain, U.S. sources said today.

The sources reported a "light probing attack" during the night on the mountain outpost of Phou Kout, on the western edge of the plain 100 miles north of the capital and on the route to Muong Suoi.

The North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao captured Muong Suoi and held it for a short time last summer. T-28 bombers of the Laotian Air Force operate from a base there.

Tories Press Own Tax Plan

MONTREAL (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield has called all Canadians to unite in a fight to the finish against the federal government's white paper on tax reforms and has proposed that low-income groups be given tax rebates for economic assistance.

Stanfield told the annual congress of the Quebec wing of the Progressive Conservative party during the weekend that the federal government should provide $85,000,000 in tax rebates to help Canadians whom the Canada Economic Council considers poor.

He called on the Liberal government to show proof of good intent in its budget scheduled to be tabled next month "by providing income tax rebates for all families considered economically underprivileged."

Stanfield proposed a three-point plan for economic assistance:

- A reimbursement of 100 per cent of taxes paid by persons living in poverty, that is, families of two earning less than $3,000 a year or families of four earning less than $4,200;
- A reimbursement of 50 per cent of taxes paid by persons earning up to $200 more than those in the poverty category;
- A reimbursement of 25 per cent of taxes paid by persons earning $200 to $300 more than those living in poverty.

"This proposal would provide assistance ... to about 1,500,000 taxpayers," Mr. Stanfield said.

He said changes proposed in the white paper tabled last fall by Finance Minister E. J. Benson would "impose a very heavy load on Canadian taxpayers and result in a serious blow to our economy."

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

Back a hundred years ago and more, the weather used to be blamed for a lot of the ailments of man, especially wet weather. When people caught cold or pneumonia, for example, they often were convinced that dampness from rain and the wet atmosphere was the cause of the illness.

People reasoned in those days that rain was turned into moisture that was absorbed by their bodies through the skin, which in turn prevented them from perspiring in normal fashion.

We know in 1970, of course, that those people of bygone days were mistaken. The skin can absorb very small amounts of water. That little bit can make a human just a bit uncomfortable in cold weather when the damp skin draws on the deeper areas of the body for heat.

That's why sometimes you may feel a slight chill in cold weather that is wet. But you won't get sick from it and it doesn't stop you from sweating as you should.

COURTENAY YOUTH DIES

COURTENAY (CP) — Randall Balmer, 16, of Courtenay was killed Saturday in a two-car accident between Cumberland and Royston, south of Courtenay on Vancouver Island.

Police said the two cars were going in the same direction when the accident occurred.

Tots Snatched For Debt

BUTLER, Ala. (AP) — Sheriff Leon Clark said two men kidnapped two small sisters Monday after tying up their aunt with parachute cord.

He identified the girls as Tina Cain, 3, and Tiffany Cain, 2.

The sheriff said the aunt, Mrs. G. W. Rozell, 41, was keeping the girls for her brother, Alan Cain, employee of a test-well drilling company.

The sheriff said the men broke into the trailer and told Mrs. Rozell the girls' father owed a $4,000 gambling debt. He did not elaborate.

Police immediately broadcast an alert for two men in a 1963 white car with Texas licence plates.

Cain originally is from Texas, the sheriff said. He said Mrs. Rozell had been keeping the girls in her home at a trailer court for about a year since Cain and his wife, Debbie, separated.

QUEBEC NDP TO FIELD CANDIDATES

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec wing of the New Democratic Party has decided to enter delegates in the forthcoming provincial election and will join the five-party fray on a federalist policy recognizing the need for a thorough revision of the constitution.

The party will hold a leadership convention here May 8-10.

A provincial election is expected in the fall.

500 ATTEND PRAIRIE NIGHT

More than 500 attended a Prairie Night service in Centennial United Church Sunday.

"It was the biggest attendance we've had since Prairie Night was started more than 20 years ago," a church spokesman said.

"The majority were former residents of Saskatchewan."

Old prairie hymns were sung and Rev. Dr. Samuel Parsons, a former minister of Centennial, was master of ceremonies.

Pool, Rink In Running For Funds

Sidney is divided over whether it should construct a swimming pool or recreational centre as a centennial project.

The recreational centre, which would have a skating and curling rink sponsored by Sidney Rotary Club, would be jointly supported by Sidney, North Saanich and Central Saanich.

The swimming pool sponsored by a group of Sidney residents.

Mrs. Shirley Foley, 2185 Henry, who has launched a petition for a swimming pool, said council should give residents the right to chose between the two projects.

"I'm not opposed to a skating-curling rink project, but I think a pool should come first," she said. "We need one because we have over 900 children attending schools here."

She said parents have to drive their children to Victoria for swimming lessons.

Meanwhile, an organization named Saanich Peninsula Agricultural and Recreation Association has been formed to study the Rotary Club project.

Oliver Salvador, an official for SPARA, felt that a skating and curling rink offered less difficulties as a starting recreational project and could be expanded.

"The construction of a swimming pool would involve such problems as maintenance and operations," he said. "It would also require that lifeguards be in attendance at all times."

Five Men Rescued After Tug Sinks

Times News Services

JUNEAU, Alaska — Five men were plucked from a raft in the Gulf of Alaska Sunday, three days after their Seattle-based tugboat sank in rough seas during a gale.

Two other men, the captain and a seaman, went down with the vessel and the body of the eighth crewman was recovered from a raft two hours after the five survivors were rescued by the U.S. Coast Guard.

The Puget Sound Tug and Barge Co. vessel Intrepid was towing a 400-foot barge loaded with 40 rail cars. The barge has been spotted from the air, aground near Yakutat on the northeast gulf coast.

GALE WARNINGS

A spokesman for the company said today the Intrepid was very seaworthy and should have been able to withstand any kind of weather.

The Coast Guard said the weather forecast for the area where the Intrepid sank was for seas up to 18 feet and gale warnings were flying.

No concern was registered until the tug failed to reach Whittier on schedule at 4 a.m. Saturday. It apparently went down so fast it was unable to send out an SOS.

The five survivors, in good condition were taken to Yakutat by the Coast Guard cutter Clover.

The two men reported to have gone down with the tug were identified as Gene Allen, 59, the captain, and seaman Ed Thomas, 47, both of Seattle. Second Mate John Pederson, 41, escaped alone in a raft and was found dead.

The rescued were identified as mate Fritz Berg, 59, seaman Morton Johanson, seaman Everett Lewis, 28, and cook Carl Lewis, 52, all of Seattle, and chief engineer Dwight Wallace, 49, Bandon, Ore.

Independent Line Urged For Youth

Every year about 90,000 Canadians join the 21-to-24-year-old voting age group — but only one in five will vote Progressive Conservative.

The figures were used by Alan Pope here Saturday. Pope, third-year law student at York University, Toronto, is national president of the Progressive Conservative Student Federation.

At a policy conference of the B.C. Conservatives held at the University of Victoria, Pope said young PCs should take an independent policy line on their own, aligning it as much as possible with the needs of all young Canadians.

He said younger members of the party will have to force party leadership to take account of proposals the student federation feels best represent views of younger Canadians.

About 30 persons, most of them from UBC and Uvic, attended the conference.

SEARCH FOR AN IDENTITY

VICTORIA: Titular Capital of the Pacific Rim?

including the United Nations, to set up branches or headquarters in the Victoria area.

The prime immediate target, a world College of the Pacific, would appear now to be a dead issue. Speculation that Royal Roads Military College might pack up and make its splendid site available for the Britain-based United World College has been silenced with the announcement that the Military College will carry on "for the foreseeable future."

Undaunted, McCrossan and his supporters are on an "urgent, vital search" for a new location.

Beyond that is the headier vision of the city becoming a global administrative, cultural and diplomatic bridgehead to the so-called Pacific Rim nations.

"There are out there," says McCrossan with a hemisphere-girdling wave of a well-mnicured hand, "three billion people in the process of a technological and trade upheaval that will make the Industrial Revolution seem a ladies' auxiliary bazaar. We've everything right here that's needed, every marketable asset, to become it's strategic centre — climate, scenery, land, clean air, water, power, a university, fine schools, raw materials, skilled and experienced people, a good-humored quality of life, a total environment for living!"

Hard Facts

This "close for the sell," as it's known in correspondence school merchandising courses, is usually Phase Two of Jim McCrossan's professionally programmed pitch for the Victoria of Tomorrow.

Phase One is a mournful recital of the hard facts of the Victoria of Today that even his severest critics find irrefutable.

"I've never seen such a clear need for a city to map out where it's going," he says gravely. "Our dilemma may be put very simply: we lack a sufficient flow of outside money pouring in. The present level of inflation demonstrates that very dramatically. We now see ourselves in this area as a people who have depended too much on taking in each other's washing. We're ridiculously reliant on the local service industries, on retail trade, on the civil service. Industrial development is on the decline. The armed services are thrinking. The provincial civil service is a static, relatively low-income work force that, itself, may diminish with a growing need to decentralize to the mainland. Our young people are forced to leave to make decent careers for themselves so there's a very real sense of futility among them.

Nightmare Future

"We see desperate needs that can be met only by massive expenditures. We limp along with a quaint bus service.

"Out parking facilities, our roads are totally inadequate. But where's the money to come from? Without industry the whole burden falls on the property owner and the tenant. If you look just a little way into the future you see a nightmare."

McCrossan, having now thoroughly depressed his visitor, manages a thin smile, lights a Number 7 and switches abruptly to a philosophical mood.

Inertia

"I remember the first time I said these things at a Kiwanis meeting in Oak Bay," he recalls with a wan chuckle. "I could just feel them thinking, 'Here's an upstart bloody Englishman who thinks he's come to remake a colony.' There's always a resistance to new ideas from new people.

"But the enemy here isn't that kind of opposition. It's inertia. It's the I'm-Alright-Jack kind of thinking by those who have it made.

Economic Drag

"The fog of narrow sectional interests still shrouds us. Part of it comes from the myth of the old Victoria. There's a truly dangerous mythology here that, thank God, is now on the way out. You still hear people who rationalize that this is a tourist centre or a retirement centre and that that's enough. But look at the facts. Tourism is a brief summer spasm, a drop in the bucket in our overall revenue. A high percentage of the people who retire here are in the low income groups, tied down to food, rent, clothes, the absolute necessities.

"Who'd begrudge some poor old chap the right to end out his years here? No one! But we must be aware that they're a drag economically, that they're passengers. Inflation hits the old people on fixed incomes brutally, but they're not alone. People tend to be paid less here than they are anywhere else in Canada with the possible exception of the Maritimes. It's a Victoria philosophy, you might say, to pay less . . . "

McCrossan digs in a desk drawer, produces the relevant statistics that he keeps constantly on hand to document his thesis. They show, at last tally, that average weekly wages in Victoria were $6.37 less than the Canadian average, $16.28 less than the British Columbia average, $13.19 less than Vancouver, $10.32 less than Toronto, $33.36 less than Sudbury, Ontario.

". . . So you see what happens," the missionary carries on without breaking stride. "We're weaker, therefore we're more vulnerable.

McCROSSAN
. . . visionary

Alright, a guy is willing to take less money to come here because its a nice place to live. But he'll suffer for it. Look at house prices. A couple of years ago they were markedly lower than the mainland. Then they drew level. Now a Victoria house costs nearly $5,000 more than it did a year ago, the highest increase of any Canadian city!

Inflation Cripples

"Inflation cripples us. It's why the people of Victoria voted down the capital budget referendum last year. It's why the Community Chest failed to reach its objective. At Goodwill you could see its effects. The public is generous. The intake of articles goes up and up. But the quality of the articles goes down and down. People are hanging on longer than they did — which only means that purchasing power is oozing away. We live on economical delusions. Their effect, particularly on the young, is devastating."

McCrossan opened a copy of a Victoria newspaper at the Male Help Wanted classified section. There was a column and a half of ads. Earn $4 per hour by becoming an Arthur Murray Dancing Instructor. Warehouse work. Driver-salesman required. Vacancies for three or four real estate trainees. Top quality truck mechanic needed. Simpson-Sears requires tailor. That kind of thing, mainly.

Our Skeleton

"I took a paper like this along when I talked to the Mount Douglas High School students," McCrossan recalls. "I also had a copy of the Evening Argus published in Brighton, a city that compares in many ways with Victoria. In the Victoria paper there were under two columns of job opportunities. In the Brighton paper there were seven and a half pages of them, most of them for university-trained people.

Administration

"The high school students weren't shocked. They're only too aware of this skeleton in our closet. They know they will have to go if they want maximum opportunities. They know that the unemployment statistics are misleading, that they don't show the thousands of young Victorians who are not here to be counted. They're exiled everywhere in Canada. Go to almost any Canadian city and you'll meet successful men who'll say, 'You're from Victoria! That's my town! My God, if I could only go back!'."

What, then, to do about it? The question is rhetorical and, as if on cue, it comes from the small-framed dynamo.

"We must somehow increase the income and capital investment of our area to gear ourselves up to the demands that inflation puts upon us," says McCrossan, answering himself, knuckle-rapping his desk for emphasis. "By that we don't mean blast furnaces or smoking mills. It's important for us to keep this God-given environment. But, you see, we already know what we can do best. Above all Victoria, like Geneva, is an administrative centre. Our greatest assets are people, the people who are here now and the people who will continue to come in great numbers. Yes, even the older people who have skills and experience that we can put to good use. What we have already is what we must build on."

Now, his mood lightened, Jim McCrossan swings into Phase Two of his vision. Ideas leap from him like sparks from a pin-wheel, some eminently practical, some patently preposterous.

World Refuge

Beyond the immediate goal of a World College of the Pacific he sees Victoria as an ideal site for the first International University, a concept by United Nations Secretary-General U Thant now under study in New York. He sees the area becoming a recognized focal point for international publishing, research, scientific and educational groups, for the commonwealth nations, even for global arbitration. ("What a fine place it would be for Russia and China to resolve their differences in this peaceful setting!").

He sees it as a refuge for commercial interests in Hong Kong when the colony's lease expires in 1988, for Quebec firms uneasy about the prospect of separatism.

He sees it as the site for a "permanent alternate Royal Family residence".

He sees it as a gracious, sophisticated Pacific Rim capital, a place of sidewalk cafes and tea gardens and quiet civilization ("why don't we disarm our police, as the British do, if only to make a gesture that will draw the attention of the world?").

If, at this point, his listener's mien is somewhat quizzical, McCrossan laughs at his own rampant fancy.

"The point is," he says, "that ideas are seldom impressive until they work. But if any one of these projects could be brought to reality it would act as a magnet to attract others and we'd be on our way. That is what happened in Geneva. If we have the energy and the imagination it can happen here."

Protecting People and Public

IT IS PERHAPS IRONIC THAT provincial legislative controls on unsolicited credit cards and shipments of goods should be advanced largely as an answer to inflationary commercial practices rather than as a protection of individual privacy. But the reason is less important than the result, and it will be widely hoped that Mr. Peterson's proposed, but unspecified, legislation will serve to curb this form of nuisance merchandising.

Much of the hawking of unwanted and unordered goods by mail order firms depends on the prospective customer's ignorance of his rights and responsibilities — or lack of them — when confronted with an unexpected delivery and bill. Mr. Peterson's measure should make it plain that the householder has no responsibility at all in regard to such goods — either to pay for them or return them to the sender. Whether the merchandise is opened for inspection or not, the recipient should be able to leave it out in the rain or consign it to the trash burner without any further responsibility.

Many of the uses of the unordered goods gambit go far beyond a mere high-pressure sales gimmick, and resort to outright chicanery. The best cure would be a total lack of response or profit from the victims, and any new legislation should encourage this outcome.

The widespread and unsolicited issue of credit cards, whether by banks, oil companies or other business firms has the dual danger of urging some individuals to purchase more and assume greater debts than they can reasonably afford, and at the same time it helps to create a larger consumer demand at a time when prices are rising so rapidly as to imperil the stability of the currency.

The fact that the epidemic of credit cards and similar facilities has been accompanied in some cases by a heavy advertising campaign designed to stimulate buying with the new aids has further intensified their inflationary effects. Used with reasonable restraint, the credit card system is a great convenience for buyers; but proliferated under forced-draft advertising it becomes a social and economic hazard.

In proposing to move against these two devices, Mr. Peterson is giving legislative recognition to their adverse effects. Insofar as they can be curbed without infringing basic human rights the Attorney-General should get the full support of the Legislature.

The Drive for Law Reform

THE ATMOSPHERE JUSTICE Minister John Turner created around his introduction of the bill to establish a federal law reform commission fosters the hope that many of the inequalities in our law—a number of them attributable directly to changing times—will be subjected to rigorous investigation and early correction. The minister shows no inclination to let sleeping dogs lie, partly, no doubt, because he realize that the dogs which have been sleeping are waking up.

It is significant that one of his comments in a press [illegible] immediately following introduction of the bill concerned those failings in our system which make a person's financial strength an element in the dispensation of the law. "It becomes a crime," says the minister, "to be poor in public—that's what vagrancy is." He also singled out theft and obscenity as well as vagrancy as areas in which Canadian law has become obsolete.

For the overhaul in depth, Mr. Turner says he wants "young tigers, between 35 and 45, young enough to have some juice, old enough to have made their mark," commissioners who have vitality and enjoy widespread respect.

The minister shows a clear appreciation of the need to bring the law into step with the times if it is to hold the respect of the public. Without that respect it loses its basic democratic authority. The outline of the commission's duties sketched by Mr. Turner indicates the task to which its members will be directed—the redrafting of the Criminal Code, the laws on evidence and public administration law, to start with. And it is his conviction that the reform commission will ensure that "the law will never stand still again."

A substantial number of Canadians will hope he is right.

A Responsible Conservative Voice

CONSERVATIVE LEADER Robert Stanfield has given some good advice concerning the White Paper on taxation that should be followed by his own party, along with other Canadians. Speaking in Kingston, Mr. Stanfield said the Conservatives should not see themselves "allied to some of the hysterical groups around the country criticizing the Benson proposals." In place of mere shouting Mr. Stanfield advocates vigorous but responsible criticism.

In times of social change a great deal of emotionalism is encountered in place of sober reason. The White Paper on taxation has engendered one of the most important debates in recent Canadian history and the public has not yet heard all the evidence. Like most human documents, the White Paper contains good proposals and questionable ones.

Mr. Stanfield is often criticized for not being forceful in presenting his views; perhaps this is part of the price of responsible opposition. If Canada is to obtain justified economic reforms the debate on the White Paper should continue until all sides of the question are aired. While Mr. Stanfield is not in favor of the government tax reforms himself, he shows fair-play and reasonableness in calling for democratic debate.

Don't Serve the Garlic

IT WOULD COST MONEY FOR new plant expansion and research, but one of President Nixon's most recent anti-pollution proposals should help to clear the air.

The scheme calls for action at petroleum refineries, where some noxious materials could be removed before the gasoline goes on the market. This makes good sense if, by removing the objectionable elements from the intake of the gas tank they are eliminated from the output of the car exhaust.

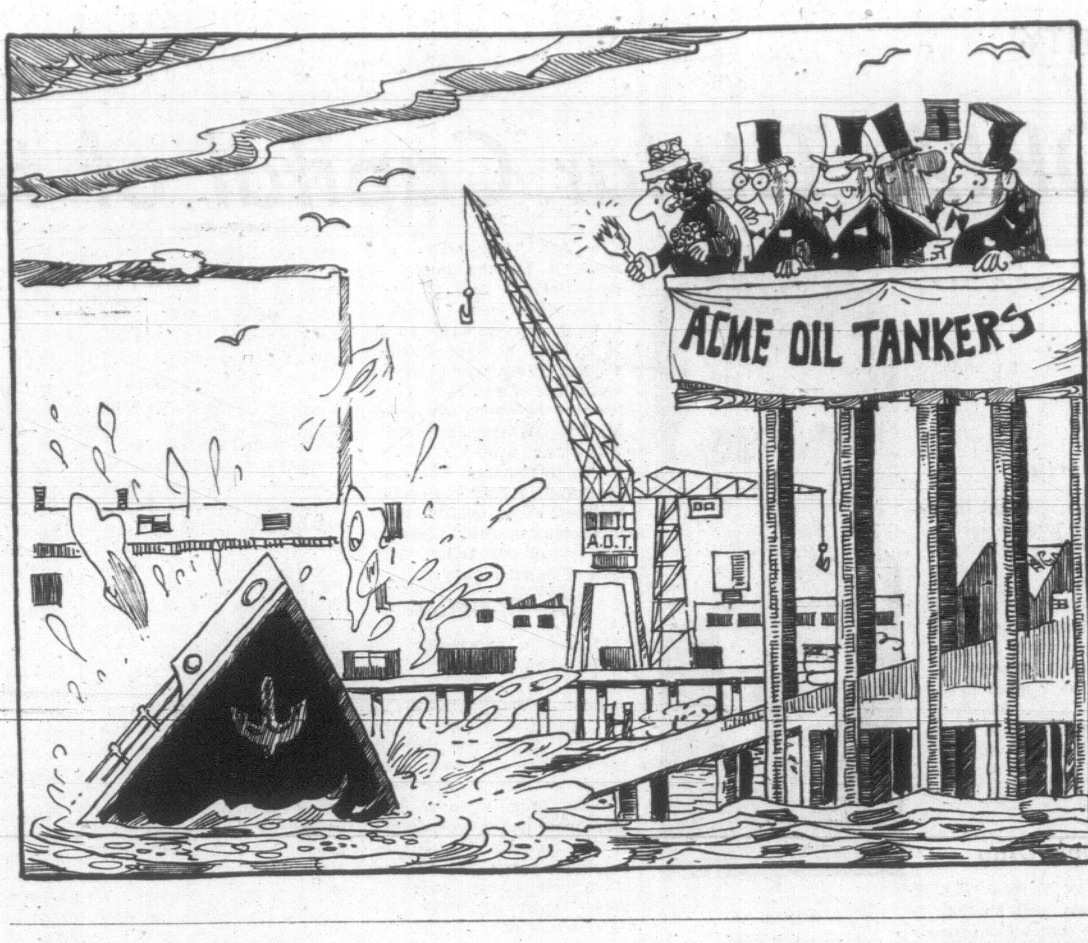
The president seems to be telling the industry not to serve the garlic in the first place.

Spotty Memory

IT WAS INTERESTING TO READ Trade Minister Waldo Skillings' statement that former mayor Hugh Stephen "tried his very best to be non-political . . . but a leopard can't change his spots."

This is the Mr. Skillings who ran unsuccessfully as a Conservative in the Victoria riding in the provincial general election of 1941, and now sits as a Social Credit minister in the cabinet of a former Conservative member who now is Social Credit premier W. A. C. Bennett.

No leopard he.



QUALITY OF LIFE

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

'Never Had More and Enjoyed It Less'

Hutchison

IF anyone doubts the latent and terrible power of the democratic process let him observe the public's sudden concern with pollution. Even a year ago it was hardly an issue in politics, no more than a faint smudge of factory smoke on the horizon, a tiny smear of tanker oil on the sea. Today it is everybody's urgent personal business, the humblest housewife's nagging detergent worry.

So the politicians, scrambling to catch up with the people, announce brave, half-baked plans to cleanse the air and water right away, as if the debris accumulated for a century could be removed overnight. It would be comical, this instaneous discovery of the obvious, if it did not involve the life, or death, of our civilization. In any case, it is encouraging to the democrat. It shows that the people have more wisdom than most politicians imagined. For the first time since the last world war "participation" ceases to be an electoral gimmick and turns into a living force.

But with all the speeches, the statistics, the horrors and the breast-beating, the discovery of a worldwide crisis is not yet complete. We have hardly begun to understand the true dimensions of the crisis. Nor the fact that pollution, in a physical sense, is only one aspect of a much larger crisis, non-physical and therefore more complex.

Pollution Potential

We assume, for instance, that with a little common sense and a lot of money, North America can rescue its environment from final ruin. While this is doubtless true (though the cost will be gigantic) what about the other continents? What happens when blessings of modern technology spread to the poor, underdeveloped countries and their increasing billions of inhabitants pour additional poisons into the oceans and atmosphere? Who, on any continent, can escape the general contagion?

The layman must leave that aspect of the problem to the scientists, but the scientists cannot solve another and deeper aspect. Stewart Alsop, an able reporter, describes it as the "mysterious American disease." Writing in Newsweek, he says that the United States is like a man who has just emerged from a medical check-up apparently in perfect health and feels miserable all the time.

Any doctor of medicine must be baffled. The doctor of economics finds that the patient is more wealthy than ever and hence should be happier, as Dr. Karl Marx promised long ago. The doctor of politics, Richard Nixon, undertakes a further diagnosis and solemnly announces that "at heart the issue is the effectiveness of government." A touch of heart trouble, that's all.

Indefinable Ache

Still the patient feels miserable and suspects that the doctors have misread the symptoms. He is not aching in his body, his purse or his politics but in his mind, his spirit or some other region difficult to locate.

On second thoughts, however, Dr. Nixon also suspects that the combined political remedies so far known to his profession will no longer serve. This particular infection does not yield to the familiar antibiotics and perhaps cannot be cured by government after all. Rather desperately, because he can think of nothing better, he seizes on a rather shopworn cliche and declares that America is suffering from the "quality" of its life.

If this seems too vague and ambiguous to be of much practical help, we should not discount it. For we are seeing here, whether we grasp it or not, a clean breakthrough in political thinking. No previous president ever said what Mr. Nixon says now, or anything like it.

He says that the last decade produced the most rapid economic growth on record and yet "the greatest growth in crime, the greatest increase in inflation, the greatest social unrest in America in a hundred years. Never has a nation seemed to have had more and enjoyed it less."

Those words, largely overlooked when they were spoken, should be engraved, someday, on Mr. Nixon's statue. They are not so eloquent, to be sure, as Lincoln's words at Gettysberg but essentially they mean the same thing. They mean that the ideal for which the Civil War was fought, and apparently won, are in danger again, from more subtle causes.

At any rate, the cliche known as the quality of life is at the heart of the mysterious disease infecting Canada as well as its big neighbor. The people, long before their governments, and the young long before the old, have dimly realized that something even more serious than physical pollution has gone wrong. They have yet to realize the government alone cannot set it right and can be only their agent after they have made up their own minds.

Mr. Nixon says the issue is the effectiveness of government but he seems to have learned better and knows that the issue is the effectiveness, or, more accurately, the morals of the ordinary man.

Once the ordinary man truly wants a higher quality of life he will begin to get it by altering his own private living ways, not before. Once enough ordinary men agree that quality is more important than quantity, that environment is worth more than money, that self-discipline is preferable to anarchy and restraint to surfeit, then they will force government to grapple with the whole problem as it is already forced to grapple with the single aspect called pollution.

Alas, we are not at this point yet. But when the president of the United States admits, as no predecessor admitted, that the sacred American Dream is betrayed and all the old, comfortable assumptions endangered, something very profound has happened. And when at last the disease is diagnosed as far more deadly than its physical symptoms, we may find a cure.

St. Margaret's School

May I draw to your attention several errors made by your representative in an article concerning St. Margaret's School published in the Times on Saturday, February 14.

These errors have caused concern to the Board of Governors, to members of the staff, and to myself. Much of the subject matter is correct, but I feel it to be important that a truer picture of our school should be offered to the public.

ERROR 1—"The school itself will take on a new existence in buildings of concrete and glass now under construction on 30 acres of land near Blenkinsop Lake."

CORRECTION—The building is predominantly wood — the only concrete is in the foundation.

ERROR 2—I am quoted as saying "I want it to be a place where kids can romp around and not have to take their shoes off," and "I've become very involved with the school and the kids here in the last few years."

CORRECTION—The ideas expressed are basically correct, but I object very much to being quoted as using the words "kids". I teach English to senior students, and I have a deep respect for the English language. This respect I attempt to convey to my students, and I never use such a term as "kids" when referring to children or students. The use of such a word is in fact anathema to me.

ERROR 3—"Mrs. French said regardless of their qualifications the school's 13 teachers are paid about half of what teachers in public schools receive."

CORRECTION—I did not state this. We have 30 teachers.

I agreed with the reporter when he commented that members of our staff do not receive salaries as adequate as those received by public school teachers. But I attempted to emphasize the important fact that we therefore had on our staff some of the best teachers available anywhere. I am proud of our teachers. They are not salary conscious, but are women dedicated to their profession. They are highly qualified, and are prepared to relinquish large salaries because they feel that they can do a better teaching job in the small classes we have at St. Margaret's.

Nevertheless, the Board of Governors has provided salaries lagging only slightly behind those of public school teachers, not half, as stated and each year an upward revision is made. The Board is well aware of the fine calibre of the staff, and makes this increase more than willingly, without waiting for the undignified procedure of negotiation to be carried out. — (Mrs.) Lorna T. French, B.A., Headmistress.

Nixon Outlines New Missile Thinking

Traynor

PRESIDENT Nixon's state of the world message to Congress had a good deal to say about the administration's thinking on missiles and the attempt to curb the strategic arms race. The tone of the message was somewhat different from that of the president's announcement of further deployment of the Safeguard anti-ballistic missile system. (ABM) in the earlier statement. He had said more about defence against China than about protecting missile installations from Soviet strike forces. He had said the initial phase of Safeguard would be extended beyond the shielding of missiles against Soviet attack (so as to ensure retaliatory capacity) and would be designed to shelter some U.S. population-areas from missiles of the kind China is expected to have within the next few years.

A measure of area defence does not necessarily afford protection against more highly-developed Soviet weaponry, but critics made play with the fact that a rudimentary area defence could be seen by the Soviets as the first step toward a comprehensive protective system — something which is not provided for in the existing deterrent balance.

(To the extent that one side succeeds in protecting its population, the other is deprived of the security of knowing that it can retaliate devastatingly to any attack. A U.S. move into area defence thus invites the development of Soviet weaponry sufficient to overcome the defensive missiles, or so it is argued.)

After the earlier statement on the ABM, the president was charged with inflating the Chinese threat, and substantially altering the justification for the defensive system. Against this, the state of the world message insists that the president has been consistent, that there was always provision for the Chinese aspect and that the Soviet threat is still basic.

"I am even more convinced today that there is a serious threat to our retaliatory capacity in the form of the growing Soviet forces of intercontinental ballistic missiles and ballistic missile submarines, their multiple warhead program for the SS-9 missile, their apparent interest in improving the accuracy of their ICBM warheads and their development of a semi-orbital nuclear weapon system," he writes.

Above Requirements

The president stresses the buildup of Soviet missile strength, claiming it "clearly exceeds" the requirements of minimum deterrence. According to his estimate, the U.S. enters the 1970s with 1,054 ICBMs and 656 submarine-launched ballistic missiles as against the Soviet Union's 1,290 ICBMs and 300 submarine missiles.

In the words of one administration official, "we can live with this," on the basis of presently projected plans. After an exhaustive review of the situation, involving a change in the basic security criteria, it was decided to avoid any attempt to regain numerical superiority in weaponry through accelerated strategic deployments "across the board." But, equally, the president rejected the idea of cutting back sharply and placing sole reliance on the submarine-launched missiles (the so-called blue-water approach).

"If the U.S. unilaterally dropped out of the strategic-arms competition, the Soviets might well seize the opportunity to step up their programs and achieve a significant margin of strategic superiority. The vigor and breadth of their current strategic-weapons programs and deployments . . . make such a possibility seem far from remote," he wrote.

"They might also—paradoxically—eliminate any Soviet incentives for an agreement to limit strategic arms, and would raise serious concerns among our allies. This is particularly true for our NATO allies . . ."

The president gives an insight into his preparations for the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) which commenced late last year in Helsinki and are to resume in mid-April. A panel was established to isolate the basic issues and explore the various permutations of weapons limitation. Out of this came three general categories of potential agreement. There might be a ceiling on missile development without any attempt to restrain improvements in quality; there might be a ceiling and an effort to prevent upgrading; or, finally, there might be an attempt actually to limit the number of offensive forces.

Favorable Reaction

Following consultation with NATO allies, the talks began, and the Soviets reacted favorably to the administration's approach. "We were able to develop an agreed work program for further discussions without acrimony and in full awareness of the likely nature of such discussions."

Though the president has made his general position much clearer, some specific questions remain. In explaining the ABM decision, he refers to the Chinese threat, then adds: "Nor can we dismiss the possibility that other countries may in the future acquire the capability to attack the U.S. with nuclear weapons. Today, any nuclear attack—no matter how small; whether accidental, unauthorized or by design; by a superpower or by a country with only a primitive nuclear delivery capability—would be a catastrophe for the U.S., no matter how devastating our ability to retaliate."

It has yet to be explained why the retaliatory capacity is not considered as much of a deterrent to a Chinese attack, or one by some nuclear newcomer, as it is to a Soviet attack. This is the implication of the move to area defence coupled with references to the Chinese threat. The supposition appears to be that the Chinese, or someone else, would launch missiles at the United States despite the huge U.S. retaliatory capacity, whereas the Soviet Union would desist from doing so.

Looking Back

From the Times of Feb. 23, 1910.

Speaking to the Canadian Club Hon. Sydney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, said that Canada's future as the granary of the world was assured when the wheat supply of the United States gave out. He also dealt with why the Canadian householder pays higher prices for bread and bacon than his British cousin when Canada furnishes the raw products in both cases.

'The Backyard Of American Empire'

National Catholic Reporter
An Editorial

Foreign correspondents in Brazil report that a Vatican response to a dossier alleging the use of torture by Brazilian police against political prisoners has been suppressed by the military government.

The response was a letter from Cardinal Maurice Roy, president of the Pontifical Commission for Justice and Peace; it said nothing very inflammatory, but the cardinal at least took cognizance of the charges.

It remains to be seen whether the Vatican, or anyone else, will go further. The Brazilian Information Front, clandestine organization which is spokesman for several revolutionary groups, points out a contrast between world response to the Brazilian situation and that which followed disclosures about government abuse of human rights in Greece.

★

Following intensive investigations and widely published reports about these abuses, the Greek military regime was forced out of the Council of Europe — something less than condign punishment but at least a blow to the colonels' prestige. It is clear, if only from the testimony of churchmen, that Brazil's regime is guilty of committting crimes against its citizens, but nobody is making much fuss—not the media, the United Nations, the Organization of American States or the U.S. government.

The Front explains the contrast by suggesting that Greece is recognized as the birthplace of Western culture, whereas Brazil is thought of only as the "backyard of the American empire."

The point gains vividness from these excerpts taken from a description by an anonymous prisoner of the process of interrogation he underwent in Sao Paulo last September:

"When the prisoner arrives at the interrogation room he is told, after a few blows and kicks, to undress. If he refuses ... his clothes are torn from his body. Naked, he is made to sit on the floor, bent forward, hands around the ankles. Generally, blanket strips are attached to wrists and ankles, where ropes are to be placed, in order to prevent lasting scars.

"After he has been tied securely in this position, a steel pole is passed under his knees and elbows; he is then lifted some five feet from the ground as the pole's ends rest on two of the stools. In this position, one's weight lies entirely on the knees and elbows. Then the shock machines are put to work.

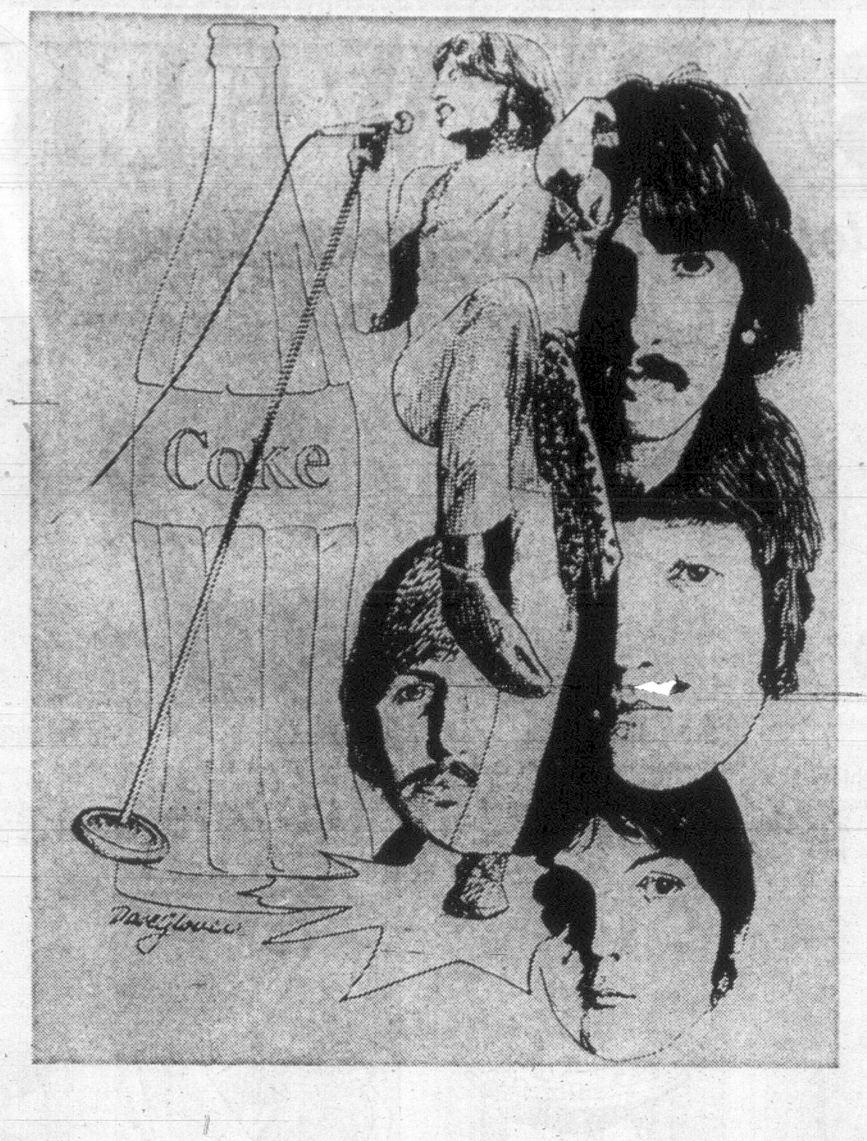
"If, as is usual, a campaign telephone is used, the two wires that come out of the little box are attached to the most sensitive parts of the body. Normally, one of the poles is connected to a finger or toe while the other is moved from the tongue to the penis, then to the nose, the anus, the lips. The shock produces a terrible pain and violent muscular contraction . . .

★

"When the machine stops for a moment, the muscles relax and the body goes back to its original position. The shocks are so intense that if the prisoner's mouth is not stuffed with a piece of cloth, his tongue shrinks inside the mouth and he bites himself to such a degree that for several days he is unable to speak or eat. The muscular contractions and the position in which the victim is kept for hours make him lose control over his bowels and bladder. While he is hanging from the steel pole, he is also being beaten with sticks on the soles, buttocks and back . . ."

It has to be said that this account comes from a committed revolutionary source, and is anonymous. But it squares with other accounts by foreigners who have left Brazil, as for example with the description given by Jean Talpe, a Belgian physicist, at a meeting Jan. 15 in Paris attended by Jean Paul Sartre and by a former governor of Pernambuco state in Brazil, Miguel Arraes.

Perhaps the most significant testimony at that meeting, however, came from economist Pierre Jalee, who itemized the extent of foreign — mostly American — control over the Brazilian economy, the profits taken out of the country by foreign firms, the alliance between the reactionary government and foreign investors which favors "imperialist integration of the Brazilian economy to the detriment of the majority of the people."



The Youth Revolution Crumbles In Face of Commercial Takeover

By ALBERT GOLDMAN
New York Times

Disaffection with "counter-culture" — the mishmash of myths, music and mishigas animating our youth — is beginning to manifest itself in the writings of the most observant and thoughtful of the younger rock critics.

While the mass media go right on endorsing every fad and foible of a decadent pop culture, while "soul" is co-opted by Coca-Cola and "revolution" becomes a phrase in a pants commercial, the kids who have grown up on the rock scene are starting to register their disgust with its perversions and their despair of its ever attaining its ostentatiously proclaimed millennium.

▣

Recently, virtually an entire issue of Rolling Stone, the rock world's most authoritative journal, was devoted to an exhaustive inquest into the Rolling Stones' farewell concert at Altamount, Calif.

The free concert—ballyhooed by Mick Jagger as "a Christmas and Hanukah Rite to American Youth"—resulted in the murder of an armed black spectator by a gang of knife-wielding Hell's Angels (hired for $500 in beer to protect the vulnerable Mick), three accidental deaths from various causes and enough bad vibrations to shake the rock establishment to its foundations.

As one participant lamented, "There was no love, no joy. It wasn't just the Angels. It was everybody. In 24 hours we created all the problems of our society in one place: congestion, violence, dehumanization."

The picture that emerged of the rock establishment with its rapacious greed, its shifty, manipulative tactics, its utter unconcern for people's lives and decencies and its incredible megalomania was worthy of a muckraking masterpiece on the Robber Barons.

The new Robber Bands, make no mistake, come from England bent on crass exploitation. Anyone who has traveled with these musicians or simply sat for an afternoon in their dressing rooms can testify to the contemptuous and paranoid view they hold of the U.S. "Grab the money and run" is their basic philosophy.

Whether, like Blind Faith, they shark together in a so-called supergroup, make a fast million in a single tour and then disband; or whether, like the Stones, they dictate outrageous terms through their pushers and then pretend to give something back to the people with a free concert (which is in fact a filmmaking project to coin even more money); or whether, like the Beatles, they take the attitude that only through making vast sums of (American) money will they be able to save the world, the freebooting of these rock bandits ought to end forever the idea that the counter-culture is founded on some genuine ethical ideal, or that it marks any significant way a break with the prevailing capitalistic system.

The other side of the discontent with counter-culture, represented by Salingerian pathos over broken dreams and busted ideals, was beautifully expressed by Ellen Willis, 27-year-old rock critic of The New Yorker, writing recently in The New Yorker Review of Books.

In a long, elegiac reflection, Miss Willis examined the myths and beliefs of the counter-culture through the lenses of two current films, "Easy Rider" and "Alice's Restaurant."

Her conclusion is that "at this point, hate and love seem to be merging into a sense of cosmic failure, a pervasive feeling that everything is disintegrating, including the counter-culture itself, and that we really have nowhere to go."

▣

Underscoring the sense of lost opportunities that haunts the current moment, Miss Willis finds the dominant mood crystallized in the phrases: "What went wrong? We blew it!"

What clinches the argument for the decline and fall of counter-culture is the fate of rock music, which was the catalyst that quickened this whole world into being, sustained it and guided it through its short but kinky history.

The fall of rock occurred at the same time as the fall of the hippie. It was in the winter of '67-'68 that the Beatles (read John Lennon) decided to do an aboutface and retreat (with hip finesse) to their earlier manner, or even further to the music of the old masters who preceded them, like Buddy Holly, Chuck Berry, Little Richard and Elvis Presley.

Rocking from the failure of their tedious home movie, "The Magical Mystery Tour," growing alarmed at the bad box office signalled by mounting prestige among intellectuals and declining popularity among teeny-boppers, the Beatles decided to abandon the rich vein that had produced "Sgt. Pepper" and those fascinating compositions, "Strawberry Fields" and "I Am the Walrus."

This act of creative apostasy announced the beginning of Rock Revival, the great roll back to 1957 and the joys of being once again a simple-minded teenager.

Electing to scrape the old bubblegum off the wall and munch it into mulch again, the Beatles and their millions of followers became the first generation in history to decline the great adventure of their destiny in favor of a premature return to childhood and the cloying pleasures of nostalgia.

Today, as a result of the determination of the past two years, rock culture stands at the opposite pole from where it stood in its peak period.

The real fear should be that a generation which rejects its inherited culture with such facility will inevitably reject or betray its own youth culture with the same jettisoning zeal. Counter-culture is largely anti-culture: one step more and it becomes non-culture.

Letter to a Dying U.K. Underground

By ANGELO QUATTROCHI
New Statesman

You have danced to the Beatles, stoned yourselves to the Rolling Stones, copulated to the Zeppelins, and accomplished nothing. Expanded nothing. Certainly not your consciousness, as you claim.

You have only expanded a hedonistic market, where you buy clothes to dress your image, sounds to fulfil your sensuality, pills to fill your mind.

The only real Underground is still the one that carries people to their senseless work in the morning, and brings them back to their joyless life in the evening.

Its noise is stronger, in my ears, than any song you'll ever produce. Your Underground ends at the latest boutique wherever it started.

For each complacent joint smoked in basements there are still thousands of cups of tea drunk in resignation, in kitchens where the telly is queen.

Don't Scare Anyone

But you say: look at our kids, look how they've changed. Changed? They are the only kids in Europe who don't scare their employers or their teachers. At best, they worry their parents.

But you say: it's fun. We make fun, we propagate the principle of fun. True, maybe, fun for middle-class kids.

You say: turn on, and others will follow, till one day the whole sky will be covered by a cloud of smoke, and then everything's going to be all right, like in the words of the song. Only, so far, you've sold records, garments, and a myth to the young middle-classes, at market prices.

You say: it helps. Of course it helps. It has helped to question the principle of work enforced by money, it helps to deflate the principle of authority. It ridicules the editor, the school master, the manager. It almost kills accountants. We know that.

I, as thousands, have enjoyed the moment and forgotten the morrow, with some stuff and a little help from my friends. I, as millions, have listened to sounds and danced my body into a trance, and more, with the same help.

"It's always better than watching television," "I've heard it said by way of an explanation. A better apology of the Underground was never heard. And apologies the Underground needs, because it has no philosophy, no morality, and very little style.

For a philosophy, it has adopted the vaguest Rousseau. Your poor little kids are destroyed by a big bad computer world, so you want to go back to magic innocence, where sex has no problems, and drugs all the colors.

Where you can freak out and feel great, drinking mummy society's sour milk and telling her she should really change her diet. You've become the consumer society's darling, her most cherished child, with this talk of liberating sex and liberating drugs.

You package the only two products that cannot be bought or sold: love, which you reduce to a free sex-exchange market, and dreams, which you are selling by the ounce, or by the pill.

It has been said that the Underground has become the avant-garde of the Establishment, and I'm told that the definition has caught on. I'm glad.

Because, you see, the Establishment still rules with a stick and a carrot. Now that the stick is on the wane, you are putting LSD in the carrot. I hope for change, but I have no illusions.

A movement which has been able, in five years or so, to inaugurate Che Guevara, Wilhelm Reich, the Tarot cards, Jimmy Hendrix, mysticism and the Albert Hall without getting an attack of Marxist diarrhoea must have a good stomach, if no teeth.

But you are, indeed, trendy. As weeks go by, as Bolivian peasants supplant Vietnamese peasants in the color supplements, you manage to get by and flourish, fed by the bored classes.

Cannot Ask More

Some, not very originally, claim that the Underground is a state of mind, a conglomeration of moods and feelings which are incompatible with the present state of society. This is — they say — the one and only merit of the Underground, and you cannot ask for more. Undeniable.

To question the principle of work, as it is enforced by the system, is good. To propagate the principle of pleasure is even better.

But to pretend that by liberating pot and sex, or spreading them, you help, is both silly and dangerous.

You only need to have read Baudelaire to know that drugs and sex are the two irresistible forces which society will never be able to tame or channel.

Both Commodities

The Underground claims that turning on is good for society, because it helps to change society.

The claim is false. It might be pleasurable, it might open doors, it might be beautiful, but it doesn't help to change society (and more and freer sex doesn't either). Present-day society makes them both into commodities.

You say: but we are fighting a progressive battle, trying to free sex from suburban taboos and drugs from hypocritical laws. Poor misguided children of Marx and Coca-Cola!

All that has come already, it's already here. This system you want to corrode survives by bribery, it's offering more and more of the same to more and more people, as long as they don't question the structure.

In very simple words, you shouldn't ask for a more permissive society, but for a different one.

Political militancy in the old fashioned sense might indeed be dead, and political parties totally irrelevant in a computerized society.

Many have reached this conclusion a long time before the Underground was born. The anarchists reached it over a century ago. Challenge to society has become more total and more individual at the same time, because people want to change the quality of their everyday life.

It's common knowledge by now. The Underground, British and U.S., started as an existentialist challenge to the existing values, and in that it was valuable. It then became, the British one, a movement for the promotion of a life-style.

It refused all definitions, it escaped analysis, it encouraged spontaneity of behavior, it exalted imagination. In that, it was salutary, necessary, invaluable.

But it did not develop. It got stuck. Its ignorance, which was its strength at the beginning, became a limitation later.

Turned Into Joke

Now, its refusal to acknowledge the forces which rule society in a make-believe game has turned it into a ludicrous joke. A joke which has gone on for too long, a bad joke.

Its insistence on the two obvious and obsolete targets, sex and drugs, makes it ambivalent, an alibi of the regime.

The mass media, ever ready to provide a circus for the now almost decently fed masses, seized gladly and eagerly on the opportunity of offering another show.

The spectacle of the ineffectual dissent raised by the Underground is reassuring. Record companies know that the word revolution helps the sales along. Underground magazines struggle along, one eye on the next trend and one eye on the evil but necessary bank balance.

It wasn't inevitable, it's lack of purpose and lack of imagination. The British Underground started by making fun of society, it's now making fun for society. It had better change, radically, or die.

EARTH'S WOBBLE ALTERED?

A slowing of the earth's rotation and an increase in the degree to which it wobbles on its axis could well be among the results of proposed projects to reverse the flow of great river systems.

This warning was voiced recently by Dr. Raymond L. Nace, research hydrologist with the United States Geological Survey.

Dr. Nace referred specifically to proposals in North America and in the Soviet Union to send great river systems flowing south to supply thirsty populous areas instead of allowing them to follow their natural course northward through empty wastes.

Such plans, if put into practice, could brake the spin of the earth by moving weight from the pole out to the equator. "Look at a whirling ballet dancer," Dr. Nace remarked, "when she wishes to slow down, she stretches out her arms."

He then explained how such a shifting of mass could affect the earth's wobble as well: "Here, the principle is the same as that of a car wheel. If one moves a small weight around the rim, it will throw the wheel out of balance."

Dr. Nace saw another effect: a change in the heat balance of the regions affected. At present, he said, these rivers move heat northward and warm cold regions. "If their flow is reversed, they will move cold southward and cool warm regions. This will change systems of evaporation. Large-scale changes of the amount of moisture in the soil over the seasons can also affect the wobble of the earth."

A Bit of Curry Goes Long 'Y'

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Work of the YM-YWCA in Victoria is well publicized throughout the year and most people know of its many fine programs serving this community. Not so much is known of the "Y" world service, a "missionary" feature sponsored by YMCA and YWCA in Canada and the United States.

Forbes

Through its efforts "Ys" have been established in 85 countries throughout the world, qualified workers have been sent to under-developed countries to give assistance in developing their own "Ys", funds have been raised to provide skilled "Y" professionals to serve abroad and wide support has been given in other ways to persons in less fortunate countries.

* * *

This co-operative effort between Canadians and Americans commenced back in 1889. First countries helped were India, Japan, Brazil, China, Ceylon and Hong Kong.

In the 70 years since then many more countries have been added to the list.

In Ecuador, Indians now learn to read and write at the Y. Refugees learn trades in a Y vocational centre in Jerusalem, housewives learn sideline occupations at the Y in Korea, students find places to live in Y college dormitories in Japan.

In India, farmers are being taught modern methods of agriculture, young people work as volunteers in community development projects in Peru and around the world, day after day, in Asia, Africa, Europe, the Middle East and Latin America, "Y" world service is on the job.

Through it boys and girls, young adults, men and women of all races, creeds and cultures, of all ages and stages of development, are learning in thousands of groups, classes, programs and projects, to live creatively in many ways.

* * *

In the 70 years since the service commenced, political conditions have forced the Y to cease operations in some countries. In others, Ys have become completely self-directing, self-supporting and self-developing and are no longer included in North America's current world service program.

Funds earmarked for world service work have been administered by a committee of "Y" laymen, directors and youth members from both Canada and the United States. This committee also said where such funds could be used to best advantage.

A few years ago however, it was decided that Canadian Ys would help some projects in countries of their own choice.

It is expected that in 1970 British Columbia associations will give money to develop "Y" work in New Guinea.

* * *

In Victoria a target of around $4,000 has been set for this purpose. Opening gun in the campaign to accomplish this aim is planned through offering an East Indian dinner on Saturday evening in the YM-YWCA auditorium.

Mr. and Mrs. Raj Pagely, well-known East Indian residents in Victoria, are planning the meal and supervising arrangements for it.

Some of the food will be prepared in the kitchens of the Sikh Temple and brought to the "Y" to be served by a bevy of Y-Teen girls.

There will be curried chicken, curried vegetables, steamed rice and other delicious East Indian dishes.

If you like exciting foods with an international flovor, then do put this dinner on your "must" calendar.

* * *

By doing so you will indulge your taste for the exotic and at the same time help someone in a developing country to be free of poverty, ignorance, disease and insecurity.

Free, too, of injustice, intolerance and fear. And free to live as a member of the human family, in peace and friendship.

The local YM-YWCA world service committee, headed by Dr. Don Jaquith, has arranged an informal reception for those attending the dinner, in the "Y" lounge at 6:30 p.m. Saturday. Dinner is planned for 7 p.m.

Oh No! Ono

MILAN (Reuters) — Fourteen lithographs by Beatle John Lennon, showing intimate scenes of his love life with his wife, Yoko Ono, are on display at an art gallery here.

Only journalists, critics and special clients have been allowed to see the most erotic exhibits, eight of which were seized by police in London last month.

52 SURVIVED ONLY TO DIE

LAGOS (AP) — Fifty-two persons who survived a train disaster this week were killed when the truck taking them to a hospital overturned, reports reaching Lagos today said.

Witnesses were quoted as saying all the passengers and the driver were killed in the accident.

They had lived through a train derailment that killed more than 100 persons on Tuesday in central Nigeria's Benue Plateau state.

Japanese Nuclear Military Build-Up Charged by Peking Editorialists

(Special to the Times)

PEKING — China has accused Japan of intensifying plans to plunder uranium resources around the world—including in Canada—in order to arm itself with nuclear weapons.

Uranium surveying, prospecting and development would be carried out under the pretext that it was to further the peaceful use of atomic energy, according to the New China news agency.

The NCNA said a group formed by Japanese monopoly capital had decided to develop uranium resources in Niger, Africa, jointly with the atomic energy agency of France.

The Japanese were also said to be studying joint development with Italy of uranium deposits in Somalia and Kenya.

SURVEYS SET

In addition, the Japanese government and capitalists were reported to be about to carry out uranium surveying and prospecting in Canada, Australia, Congo Kinshasa and Indonesia.

The charge followed a Chinese accusation earlier last week that Japan was spurring development of large rockets and long-range missiles for use with nuclear warheads. This apparently was a reaction to the previous week's successful firing into orbit of a Japanese space satellite—although the fact of the launching has not been reported in China.

The NCNA said huge sums appropriated for rocket research were "an important component part of the Sato government's plan for frantically carrying out arms expansion and war preparations. This reactionary government hopes to equip the Japanese 'self-defence' forces with nuclear missiles to as to unleash wars of aggression."

China itself announced a successful test firing of a guided missile with nuclear warhead in October, 1966. There have been rumors from time to time that China would put up a space satellite, but this has not happened yet. Japan's recent launching made it only the fourth country, after the Soviet Union, United States and France, to put a satellite into orbit.

BUDGET EXAMINED

The accusation that Japan plans to acquire nuclear arms has been levelled several times this month by China.

An article on the Japanese budget for fiscal 1970 said that under the guises of peaceful use of atomic energy, space exploration, ocean development, sea bed surveys and promotion of scientific and technical development, "the Sato government will use a big sum to accelerate the nuclear armament of the Japanese armed forces and militarization of the Japanese economy to a greater extent.

Volunteer Policeman Admits Planting Grenade

VALLEJO, Calif. (AP) — A volunteer policeman has admitted he planted the hand grenade booby trap which he reported finding attached to a patrol car, the Vallejo police chief says.

James William O'Connor II, 22, reported finding the unexploded grenade Wednesday night after bombings at two other San Francisco Bay Area police stations.

Police Chief Jack E. Stilitz said O'Connor gave no reason for planting the bomb other than to say he "wanted to gain recognition."

The chief said O'Connor's admission came during a lie detector test ordered because of what he called "suspicious circumstances" listed in O'Connor's report.

Stiltz said there was no apparent connection with the other Bay Area bombings.

A time bomb had exploded two nights earlier at Park police station in San Francisco, killing one officer and wounding seven. A $35,000 reward has been offered for information leading to any arrest and conviction in that case.

Also unsolved are the explosions of two bombs that injured six officers and destroyed three cars Feb. 12 at Berkeley police headquarters.

O'Connor was booked Saturday night for investigation of making a false bomb report and possessing explosives. He was freed on $3,000 bail Sunday night and was scheduled to appear for arraignment Friday in Vallejo municipal court.

SPIRO CONDEMNS LIBERAL PRESS

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Vice-President Spirto T. Agnew says he plans to continue to act as a spokesman against "those who seek to destroy our heritage of liberty and our system of justice."

"The everyday law-abiding American who believes in his country needs a strong voice to articulate his dissatisfaction . . . to penetrate the cacophony of seditious dribble emanating from the best publicized clowns in our society and their fans in the Fourth Estate," Agnew said.

more than 1,000 persons attending a $100-a-plate Republican fund-raising dinner.

"The liberal media have been calling on me to lower my voice to seek accord and unity among all Americans," Agnew said.

"But I want you to know I will not make a unilateral withdrawal and thereby abridge the confidence of the 'silent majority'.

"If the hippies and the yippies and the disrupters of the system in Washington, the disrupters of the systems that Washington and Lincoln as presidents brought forth in this country, will shut up and work within our free system of government I will lower my voice."

Phones Not Bugged; Just 'Monitored'

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — The Durban Sunday Tribune says that a statement by extreme right-wing leader Jaap Marais, which police dissuaded the newspaper from publishing, was "a shock revelation about Mr. John Vorster, the prime minister, and the security police."

Detectives visited The Tribune and two Johannesburg newspapers Saturday and warned editors that if they published the statement by Marais, deputy leader of the HNP, a right-wing breakaway from South Africa's governing National party, their newspapers would not be distributed.

The statement did not appear, but all three newspapers gave front-page prominence to the police action.

POLICE TOOK IT

Marais had earlier quoted in Parliament a document which he said showed that telephone tapping was operated with official approval.

Vorster replied that the document dealt only with "monitoring" by the defence forces. Police later escorted Marais to his home where he handed over the document.

Vorster has said the HNP, led by former cabinet minister Albert Hertzog, will disappear as earlier splinter groups have disappeared.

But political observers believe he called a general election a year ahead of time in order to crush it before it could gather strength.

The HNP wants South Africa to have only Calvinist Afrikaner rule and Afrikaans to be the only language. English today has equal rights. It declares that black diplomats are unwanted and that non-whites should not be accepted in visiting international sports teams.

HEARING AID NOISE REDUCED

VICTORIA: A common complaint among hearing aid users has been what appeared to be excessive amplification when doors are closed, kitchen utensils rattled or everyday street noise, etc.

No longer is it necessary to accept this as the price you must pay for improved hearing.

In most cases, having your present hearing aid modified by government certified technicians, is all that's required.

Another solution is a two-week, free trial of the all-new Herex from western Canada's only hearing aid manufacturer — Audiotronics Enterprises Ltd. at 1326 Government St., between Yates and Johnson.

Congo Copper Talks

KINSHASA (Reuters) — Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. of Canada is seeking copper exploration and exploitation rights in the Congolese state of Katanga, says the company's vice-chairman.

Geoffrey Mitchell has arrived in this Congolese capital and held meetings with government ministers.

He said the company is prepared to invest millions of dollars in the Congo, if justified. But he said the talks with the government were only preliminary.

The rights sought by the company cover an unexplored area, some of which is being sought by an Anglo-American consortium headed by the Templeman Co.

Falconbridge opened an office in Kinshasa last month. One of its subsidiaries already operates a tin mine in the state of Kivu.

Anti-Knock Fuels To Be Knocked Out

By DAVID W. CHUTE

DETROIT (UPI) — The days of the high-compression, super-performance automobile engine seem numbered.

Demand for reduction of air pollution by autos means oil companies must get the lead out of their gasoline. Carmakers must reduce engine compression to accommodate lower octane fuel.

The cost to industry will be tremendous, and the cost of the new gasoline to motorists will go up from one to four cents per gallon.

General Motors said its 1971 cars will be powered by engines capable of operating on lead-free gasoline. The company said this development was its first step toward meeting air pollution controls due by mid-year.

Tetraethyl of lead has been used in gasoline to boost its so-called octane, or anti-knock rating, to around 100.

Aside from lead in the gas, there are three answers: Increase the volatility, or evaporating speed, of gas. That's out because this is the source of evaporative emissiom from gas tanks and fuel systems that by government order must also be reduced;

Use benzol, a form of benzine. But that is of little use at the high octane ratings. It wouldn't boost octanes enough;

Improving the chemical structure of gasoline's hydrocarbons at refineries. That means higher cost in the cracking process and also less gasoline from a given amoung of raw petroleum.

Auto makers also must reduce compression ratios because the resultant compromise in gas is some boost in octane for a lead-free gas but well below the octane rating for a leaded gas.

Quickest and cheapest way to reduce the compression ratio is by a redesigned head to provide more space above the pistons. And that seems to be in the works.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Rapeseed prices rallied sharply at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Nearby futures posted gains of up to 2¾ cents ingood volume exporter buying.

Flax was marginally lower in extremely light local and commission trade and no exporter interest, as U.S. markets were closed.

Oats and barley were steady near previous close levels in a light domestic shipper trade for eastern feeders.

Rye was fractionally lower in moderate scale down buying by exporters.

Over the weekend, confirmation was received of sale of 180,000 bushels of rapeseed and 20,000 bushels of flax to Japan.

Tax Reform 'Mixed Bag'

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian tax system is "the result of a long series of snap judgments," the director of the Canadian Tax Foundation said Saturday.

Douglas J. Sherbaniuk told the last day of a tax reform symposium at Queen's University that "there is no solid basis of theory behind our revenue system."

He said the federal government's white paper on tax reform is "skeletal" but it provides a valuable service to Canadians by bringing the tax system into the public domain.

"While there is still a nostalgic desire by many to retain the old system of taxation. Canadians now have an opportunity as they never had before to make clear what they want in a tax system.

•

"I hope they don't waste the opportunity."

Summing up the three-day symposium, David H. Bomham, faculty member of the sponsoring law and business schools and executive assistant to Queen's Principal John J. Deutsch, said:

"It is impossible to simply accept or refute the white paper. It is such a mixed bag of things.

"Perhaps the criticism of the white paper has gone too far. While there are obvious flaws in it, it has raised the issue of taxation for the Canadian citizen."

Earlier in the day Sherbaniuk said he hoped Canada would not follow the United States closely on international tax proposals.

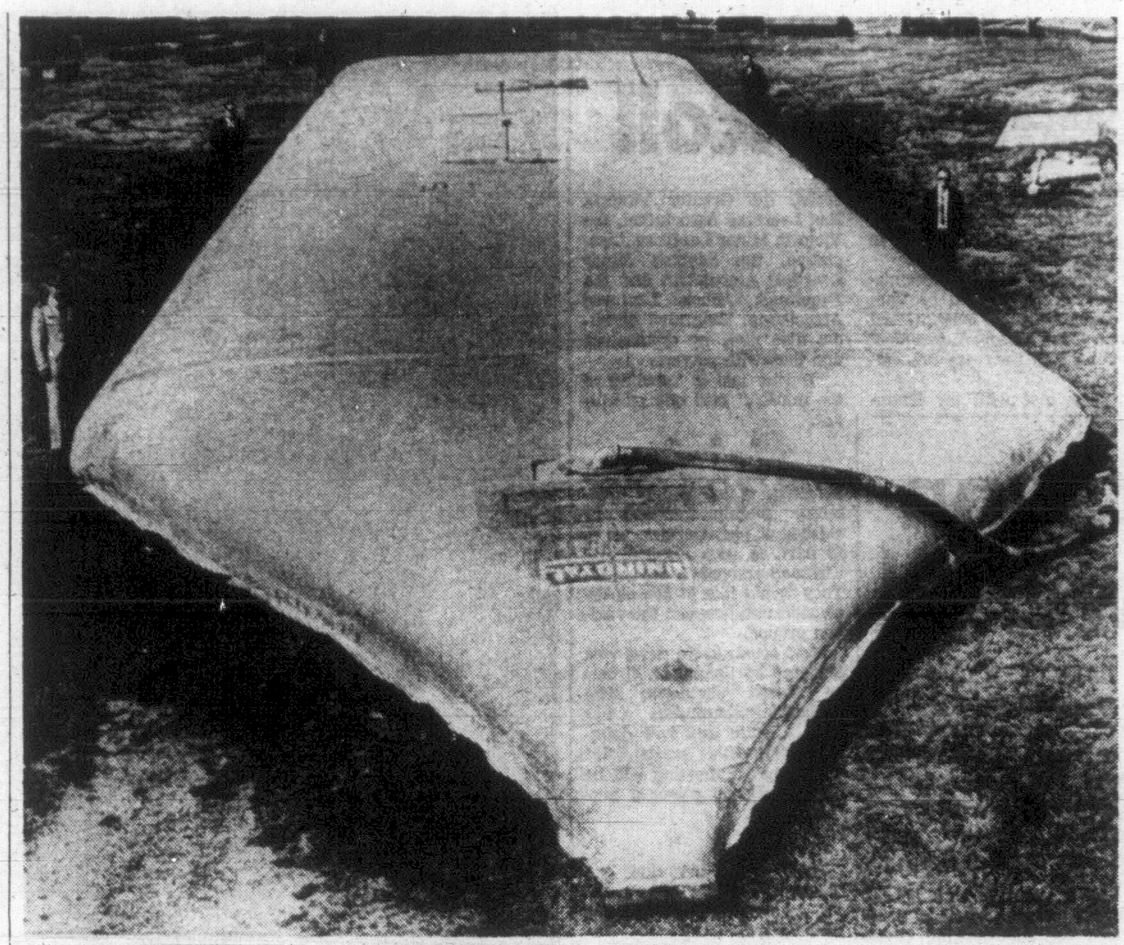
He said the white paper has proposals governing "passive income of controlled foreign corporations" which will be "patterned generally on those of the U.S."

•

Passive income is income derived from dividends, interest, royalties and international shipping profits.

Sherbaniuk said the U.S. had found its existing provisions on passive incomes "too complex and somewhat ineffective."

He said while the white paper's proposal to raise the tax on foreign investments in Canada to 25 per cent from 15 might be below the international average, it still might scare away some foreign investment.



AN AIR-DROPPABLE oil pollution control tank, 140 feet in length, is checked out prior to being shipped to the U.S. Coast Guard for sea tests at Norfolk, Va. The tanks have a 140,000 gallon capacity. In compressed state for air drops the tanks are accordion-pleated and the size of an automobile. The device was developed by Uniroyal Ltd.

$200,000 MILL FIRE

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Fire Saturday destroyed Ferguson Lake Sawmills Ltd. camp at McLeod Lake, 75 miles north of this central Interior community.

A spokesman for the Prince George company which employed 20 men at the camp estimated the loss at $200,000. He said it was insured.

The fire was believed to have started by sparks from a beehive waste burner.

Wood Use Claims 'Nonsense'

PORTLAND (AP) — A University of Oregon economist who claims that mills are consuming more wood than forests are growing came under attack Saturday from forest industry spokesmen.

Donald Watson, director of the university's bureau of business and economic research, offered his theory Friday before the Oregon Newspaper Publishers Association.

He argued against industry claims that forests are managed on a sustained yield basis and said the over-all trend is for reduced timber available for mills in the United States Pacific Northwest.

Watson's remarks drew considerable opposition from forest industry representatives. William Cary, director of public affairs for Western Wood Products Association, said Watson's claim was nonsense.

He said a 1962 survey by the U.S. Forest Service showed that on both public and private lands, "We are growing more wood than we are harvesting,"

Knox Marshall, director of forestry for Western Wood Products, said Watson's contention had only slight application if the Oregon economist was referring to cuts made in old growth timber lands.

He said the economy is geared to working on old growth in some western areas. "When that cycle is through, you have to go on to something else. But technology has advanced to the point where we can produce more trees in shorter periods of time."

OIL FIGHT

Nixon Avoids Taking Sides

WASHINGTON (CP) — For a time — at least until after the vital U.S. congressional elections in November — President Nixon has avoided taking sides on the controversial oil policy report.

On Friday he nimbly transferred the question to the broader arena of public and congressional debate.

And, instead of accepting or rejecting the report which took more than a year to write, he named a new eight-member committee to take a second look at oil policy.

The majority report recommended that the present oil import quota system be phased out. A minority report urges its retention.

Imports are now limited to 12.2 per cent of domestic production on the grounds of national security.

HIGHLIGHTS

Here are highlights of the report:

● Tariffs . . . stimulate internal competition—leading to greater efficiency—while rigid quotas tend to perpetuate institutional inefficiencies and fixed prices.

A tariff system can . . . have the advantage of reducing administrative costs and the danger of favoritism and corruption.

● Without import controls the domestic wellhead price would fall from $3.30 per barre to about $2 which would correspond to the world price. . . . American consumers would save about $5,000,000,000 annually now and over $8,000,000,000 annually by 1980. These savings would be about two-thirds as much if the domestic price was supported at a level of $2.50 and about one-fourth as much at a level of $3.

● Because demand is growing faster than domestic supply, imports would have to expand by 1980 even at the present $3.30 price and by then could amount to about 27 per cent of our demand at that price. Imports would be about 42 per cent of demand in 1980 and a $2.50 price. . . . At a $2 price imports could amount to about 51 per cent of domestic demand. . . .

● The committee is "unable to say that complete abandonment of import controls at this time would be consistent with the national security . . . a tariff system involving some relaxation of import restraints and accompanied by suitable preference and safeguard arrangements would protect the United States from becoming too dependent on insecure foreign

Common Market Prices May Be Too High for U.K.

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — What is the true price of Britain's entry in the European Common Market?

No one knows, for the simple reason that the price will depend on negotiations.

The British government made a stab in a white paper at estimating a range of possible costs, based on current European policies. The white paper left many readers baffled. The range of possible costs was so wide that it appeared unrealistic.

Critics maintained that you could read almost anything you wanted into the figures. The costs might be manageable or completely beyond Britain's resources. The only thing that appeared certain was that costs would be high —particularly in food prices.

This concentration on food prices—and the housewife's burden—raised suspicion among critics that Prime Minister Wilson had some political trick up his sleeve.

TIMING IS BAD

A general election is likely to take place smack in the middle of the entry negotiations, expected to start this summer. Would Wilson suddenly do a flip, declare that he could not see housewives suffer and dramatically withdraw from negotiations, saying Britain would go it alone?

"This has an attractive, Machiavellian ring about it," says The Financial Times, "but it really does not do."

The timing would be wrong. Wilson favors an October election and finding a sufficient excuse to break off negotiations in midstream would be remote, the newspaper adds. Besides, this political suspicion takes no account of Wilson's ambition—to go down in history as a "great" prime minister. The Common Market was, in effect, Wilson's last stand. He would be unlikely to withdraw, even if retreat would give him an electioneering advantage.

The Guardian agrees. Wilson may not be an enthusiastic European, the newspaper says, but he has his honor and his convictions that Britain's future lies in European alignment.

But suspicion over the white paper's intent remains. The Guardian analysis says the document "is calculated to mislead and confuse the majority of people and neither they nor news editors can be blamed for seizing upon the frightening figures."

Again the Financial Times parallels that view. The white paper, it says, "is a political document . . . what is more, it is a domestic political document and a tactical rather than a strategic domestic political document."

The white paper, while emphasizing that true costs could not be determined until negotiations were completed, nevertheless was quick to outline the possible price to British consumers and to the treasury. But somehow it could not make an equal estimate of possible benefits.

It is, in fact, "a bad product of the British civil service's awful system of interdepartmental committees," says The Economist. "It is obvious that people with two warring sets of prejudices helped to compile it. It combines the lowest common denominator of those of each side's prejudices which the other side has not felt able to insist has simply got to be stricken out."

The fact that the public now can see how these documents are compiled is helpful in that it provides material on which professional judgment can be applied, The Economist adds, ending with a cutting remark that the document "fails these criteria completely."

FIGURES CHALLENGED

In effect, the white paper is questioned and the figures it portrays are challenged. The most acid remark in the British press is directed at the estimate that entry might hurt Britain's vital foreign payments balance by as much as £100,000,000 a year — or even as much as £1,000,000,000. The white paper hurriedly agreed that this trmendous gap was unrealistic. Nevertheless the astronomically high figure was published.

But even more readily apparent to the reader was that unless negotiations change Europe's expensive farm program, British housewives would have to pay double the price for butter and cheese and sharply higher prices for meat and poultry. Food prices would jump; so would the cost of living. And wages would have to go up to meet these higher costs.

Foreign office spokesmen maintain that these estimates indicate to the six Common Market partners that Britain must drive a hard bargain out of sheer national necessity. But The Guardian claims it is misleading to suggest that negotiations alone could establish the true cost.

This only would be known in the course of actual participation in the market. The ultimate decision should depend on Britain's sense of destiny, not on computations. But it acknowledges that the British tide is running strongly against Europe, and it won't be slowed by the white paper.

Air Canada Will Unify Activities

MONTREAL (CP) — Airlines must become more market-oriented to satisfy the needs and demands of the new consumer, J. R. Baldwin, president of Air Canada, says.

Air Canada is working to make marketing "the cutting edge of our business," he told the Advertising and Sales Executives' Club of Montreal.

The first step in this direction would be the establishment of a separate marketing branch.

He said the airline plans to unify all customer-related activities including reservations, passenger and cargo sales, baggage handling and cabin service under a vice-president of customer service.

Previously separate sales and operations functions would be brought together by setting up new unified field divisions, each totally responsible for Air Canada services in its respective area.

"At Air Canada," said the president, "we'll spend well in excess of $100,000,000 in advertising over the next 10 years.

With amounts like that, it's obvious that allocation of resources and return on investment must be our overriding concern."

Ready Market Seen In Caribbean Area

PORT WILLIAMS, N.S. (CP) — Canadian businessmen who recently visited Bermuda and three West Indies islands came home convinced that there is a ready market there for Canadian institutional food suppliers.

R. J. Turner, vice-president and general manager of Avon Foods Ltd., of Port Williams, estimates the annual potential at more than $32,000,000.

Turner represented one of 11 companies which took part in the recent food-oriented trade fair to Bermuda, Antigua, Barbados and Trinidad. Six of the companies are Maritime-based.

Turner said the group of businessmen considered the fair organized by the business firms, the trade and industry department and Saguenay Shipping Ltd.—as successful. Products manufactured by the 11 firms were displayed aboard the freighter Sunriver, one of a fleet of ships which Saguenay Shipping operates between Halifax and the Caribbean.

Turner said the fair could lead to a break-through by Canadian firms in the growing food market in the Caribbean, institutional packs of food—canned, fresh and frozen—were introduced to hotel, restaurant and club representatives in the four islands.

Shamrocks Ready to Roll

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Meetings were called to order Sunday in a never-ending parade.

Victoria's lacrosse picture was disected laterally and vertically. After all was said and done, the fact-finders unanimously suggested Victoria Shamrocks are alive, reasonably well, and will continue to operate in 1970.

Earlier muffled reports inferred Shamrocks might not field a team for the coming Inter-City League season.

The conglomerate of meetings took care of "who's who" in Victoria lacrosse. Though not announced to the press, the sessions were intended to study, discuss and, if possible, solve some of the problems that have plagued the sport in recent times.

Inter-City League commissioner Tom English of Vancouver attended, hand-in-hand with Dave Fishman, president of the B.C. Lacrosse Association.

They met with the Shamrocks, the Greater Victoria Box Lacrosse Association, the Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association, the Saanich Minor Lacrosse Association and the Esquimalt Minor Lacrosse Association. Shamrock directors also met, by themselves and then with players.

"It was just a 'meeting of the minds'," said one informant.

There was an inference that authority is too widely scattered, mainly because of clashes of personalities. That, in part, is why English and Fishman arrived on the scene. They would like to see closer co-operation between the various groups.

Most constructive news was tendered by Shamrock director Mason Sheldrick, who declared "Shamrocks will have a team and will definitely operate this season." He added that a meeting will be held shortly to select a new directorate.

Sheldrick added that the Shamrocks plan "some definite announcements" in the near future.

Presumably, one of the first announcements will be the naming of a new Shamrock coach to replace Tom Druce. Or coaches. The emphasis is on plurality because it has been learned that both Bert Bertoia and Ron Jay have been asked to serve as "co-coaches."

Both reportedly have accepted.

Amateur Question Floats Unanswered

LAUSANNE (CP)—The great amateur-professional hockey question hung over the Rhone River Valley today like those daring young men in their colored balloons who annually attempt to cross the Alps.

Like balloonists for a favorable air current, Canada questioned the International Olympic Committee on the hockey eligibility question Sunday and came away hopeful but confused.

A Canadian delegation, led by president Earl Dawson of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, received no definite reply to their request for a ruling as to whether amateurs who play against professionals will be contaminated and lose their Olympic eligibility.

Dawson said following a 90-minute meeting with the IOC that its president, Avery Brundage of Chicago, believes "it did not harm a player if he played against a professional, because there was nothing in the book to say so."

And Dawson also said he expects to have a definite answer "at the latest in eight or nine days."

WOULD NEGOTIATE

If it is in Canada's favor, Dawson will go to Stockholm next month to discuss the possibility of Canada participating in the 1971 world hockey championships, scheduled for Switzerland.

The issue has been raging for almost a year since Canada decided after finishing fourth in the 1969 world tournament at Sweden that she could no longer participate without professionals.

A Canadian delegation applied to the International Ice Hofkey Federation last July for an open tournament in 1970 at Winnipeg and Montreal.

Later, however, the other five countries—Russia, Sweden, East Germany, Czechoslovakia and Norway—refused to play against the professionals for fear of losing their Olympic eligibility.

At an emergency meeting in Geneva last January, the five countries involved refused to play against the professionals and Canada withdrew her team and the tournament site was switched from Winnipeg and Montreal to Stockholm.

Dawson, in a telephone conversation, said Brundage gave the opinion that games between amateurs and professionals should take place providing they weer for charitable purposes or for raising funds for the Olympic Games.

MERITS MORE STUDY

"But he said that now that there is thinking of putting professionals into world tournaments, he thinks the whole thing merits a close look," Dawson said.

Dawson said: "It's my assessment of the situation that the contamination possibility doesn't exist."

He said it this was the case, it means Canada could have staged and participated in the 1970 tournament.

He said that Canada will not take part in the 1970 tournament in Sweden, however, and would not be bitter with the IIHF's decision to prevent Canada from using professionals.

Esquimalt Midgets Take Island Crown

COMOX — Esquimalt captured the Vancouver Island midget hockey crown Sunday with a 4-1 victory over Powell River in the final game of the double-loss-elimination tournament.

Danny Peck set the scoring pace for Esquimalt with two goals while Danny Quaife and Gordie Nielson scored single goals. Neilson also assisted three of the markers. Sam Yesowick scored the lone Port Alberni goal.

Esquimalt now advances against the lower mainland champion for the Pacific Coast championship.

Esquimalt reached the final with a 5-3 overtime victory over Nanaimo. Powell River, which had stayed alive Saturday by eliminating Victoria Racquet Club 9-4, was in turn sidelined 7-5 by Port Alberni in the losers' bracket final.

In other Saturday games, Port Alberni ousted Victoria 8-1 after Victoria had eliminated Comox, 7-6.

Peck and Wayne Hendry of the winning Esquimalt club were selected to the tournament's all-star team.

River Team Tops Juvenile Tourney

Powell River exploded for five unanswered goals in the last period Sunday to capture the Vancouver Island juvenile hockey championship with a 7-1 triumph over Saanich in the tournament final at the Victoria Racquet Club.

Bill Karaim averted a shutout for Saanich.

Saanich moved back into contention with a 6-5 victory over Racquet Club in the semi-finals.

Dave Maynard, who stopped 108 shots in the Saanich net during the first game against Powell River and 61 in the second, was named the tourney's most-outstanding-player.

Ewert Rink Captures Two Bonspiel Events

PORT ALBERNI — Host rinks kept most of the silverware at home Sunday at the end of competition in the Alberni Valley Curling Club men's bonspiel.

Earl Ewert of AVCC led the glory-grabbing with victories in the "A" secondary and "B" primary events.

Clubmates Bill Hall and Warren Paul won the "A" primary and "A" tertiary events, respectively.

Ron Dunn of Nanaimo Curling Club won the "B" secondary event and Victoria Curling Club's Ken Sturrock captured top honors in the "B" tertiary event to break the domination.

Bill MacLean's Victoria rink placed third in the event won by Sturrock.

Charlie Haggard of AVCC won the "grand aggregate" title for the most 'spiel victories—eight.

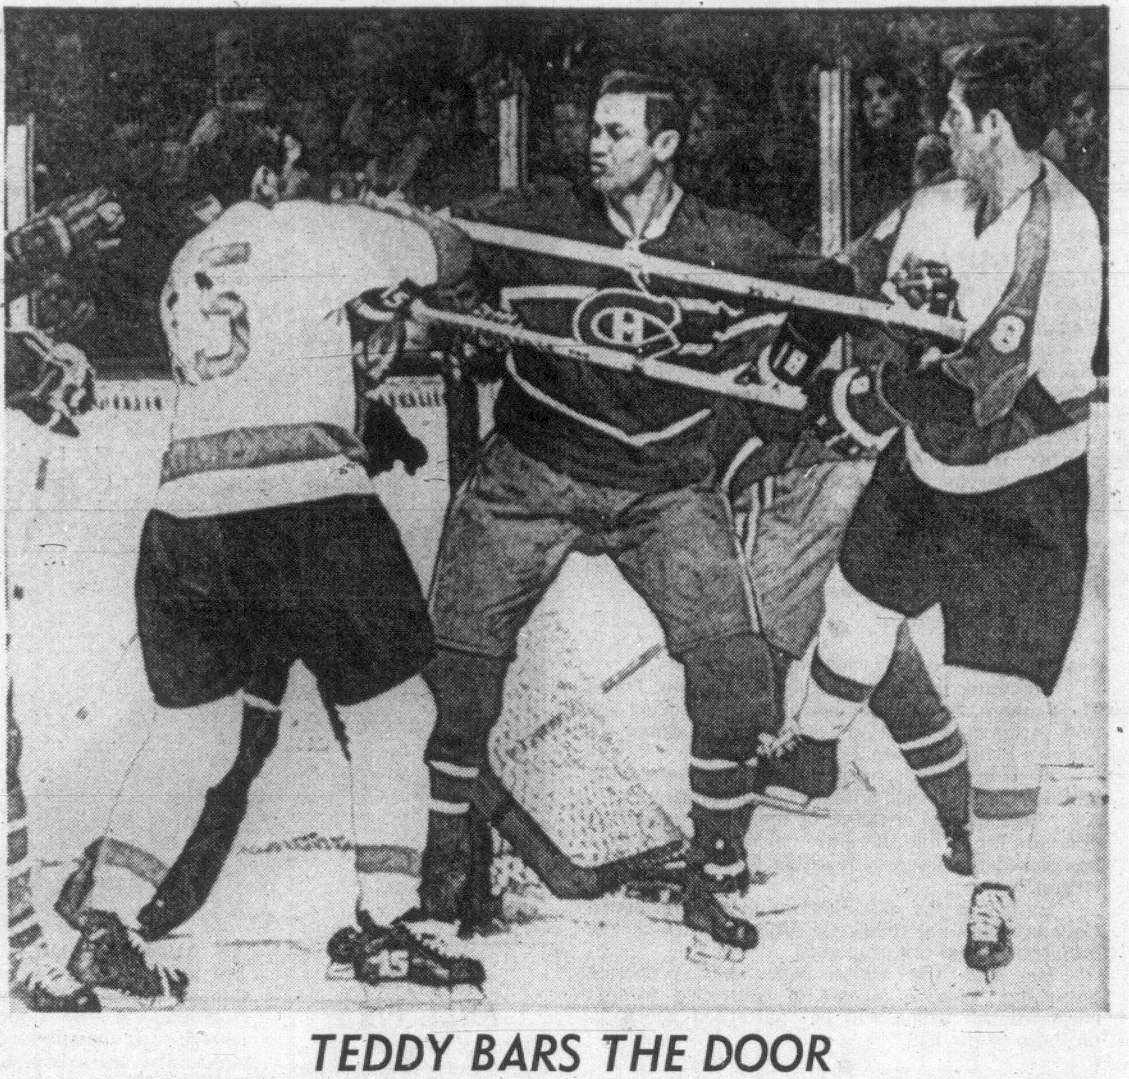
Outsider Reigns In South Africa

DURBAN (AP) — English professional Tommy Horton Saturday won the South African Open golf championship, the first non-South African ever to take the title.

Horton, 28, shot a final-round 72 at the Royal Durban course to finish with a five-under-par 285. He had earlier rounds of 75, 70 and 68 and was three shots ahead of Terry Westbrook of Rhodesia.

Gary Player, who has won the title the last five years, was never in the picture after a disastrous first-round 79 and finished seventh at 294.



TEDDY BARS THE DOOR

Seemingly "fenced in" defenceman Ted Harris (centre) of Montreal actually holds the upper hand in tying up both Garry Peters (left) and Lew Morrison (right) in front of Canadiens' goal. It all helped Montreal's cause as Canadiens handcuffed Philadelphia Flyers 5-3 in Saturday's National Hockey League meeting. Canadiens also scored 1-0 victory Sunday in Detroit.

DENNY HAS JOB OFFERS BUT ASKS 'GOOD WORD'

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — While Denny McLain remained in limbo, the Detroit Tiger pitching star is getting many job offers—primarily to entertain in nightclubs.

But the 25-year-old righthander said Sunday he can't accept any of them until he is more definite about his future in baseball. He would prefer a "good word" from the commissioner of baseball.

"I've had lots of offers from clubs in the last few days," McLain said.

McLain, who plays the organ and also sings, said he had had a lot of other job offers.

McLain had just returned from playing a round of golf but basically he has been living in seclusion since being suspended indefinitely from baseball Thursday by commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Kuhn said the suspension was a result of McLain "involvement in 1967 bookmaking activities." He added that Denny would remain suspended at least until an investigation by the commissioner's office of the matter is complete.

"I'm praying for a good decision and a decision as fast as he (Kuhn) can make it," he stressed.

Leading Canucks Hit Rough Stretch

By The Canadian Press

Vancouver Canucks left something behind when they hit the road and failed to win both of their week-end Western Hockey League games.

The Canucks, fresh from their 23rd straight home-ice victory Friday over Seattle, lost to fifth place Phoenix Roadrunners 5-2 Saturday and dropped another game Sunday 7-5 to third-place San Diego Gulls.

In other action, Salt Lake City Golden Eagles managed a 3-3 tie at Seattle Saturday, then lost 6-3 to second-place Portland Buckaroos Sunday.

In San Diego Sunday, Alex Faulkner of the Gulls got a breakaway in the third period to snap a 5-5 tie and smash a Canucks comeback attempt with his second goal of the night. Kevin O'Shea added the insurance marker.

Earlier, San Diego goals were scored by O'Shea, Al Nicholson, also with two, and John MacMillan.

CANUCKS TRAIL

Vancouver, which trailed 5-1 going into the second period with a lone goal by John Arbour, added two by Ted Taylor in the second and two more by Pat Hannigan and Ted McCaskill in the third.

Canucks were slow starters Saturday and gave Phoenix a four-goal lead on two goals by Larry Lund and singles by Bill Snow and Jim Paterson by the midway point in the second period. The final goal came on a rink-long breakaway in the third by Roadrunner Frank Hughes.

Vancouver got its two goals from Murray Hall and Gerry Goyer.

In Portland Sunday, Norm Johnson and Bill Saunders broke a 2-2 tie and wrapped the game up with third-period power play goals while Mel Pearson and Rich Van Impe added insurance markers. Earlier Portland goals were scored by Andy Hebenton and Art Jones.

In Seattle, former Totems' goalie Jim Armstrong helped Salt Lake to their 3-3 tie. It was his first Seattle appearance since being seriously injured last season and sold to Salt Lake earlier in the week.

Hawks Grab Fourth In Tight NHL Race

By The Canadian Press

Chicago Black Hawks whipped the leaders and, with a little assist from Montreal Canadiens, today were in fourth spot in the National Hockey League East Division.

The high-flying Hawks downed the leading New York Rangers 4-2 Saturday and beat second-place Boston Bruins 6-3 Sunday to move a point in front of Detroit Red Wings who were shut out 1-0 by the Canadiens Sunday.

In one other Sunday game, New York stayed on top by defeating Toronto Maple Leafs 5-3.

All teams were in action Saturday night when Montreal beat Philadelphia Flyers 5-3, Detroit downed Toronto 7-5, Boston defeated Minnesota North Stars 4-2, Oakland Seals whipped Pittsburgh Penguins 6-3 and St. Louis Blues won over Los Angeles Kings 4-2.

The Black Hawks advantage over Detroit in the battle for the last playoff spot could disappear with the Chicago squad on the road for their next six games.

The Hawks record of 21 wins, six loss and four ties at home is much better than their 10-13-3 road record.

Sid Would Like More Time on Road

However, Sid Abel, Detroit manager-coach, wishes his team had a road trip coming up. Their record of 14-8-1 on the road is slightly better than their 15-10-4 home score.

"It isn't going to kill us," Abel said after the loss to Montreal before a record crowd of 15,390 at Detroit Sunday.

"It was just a tough game to lose. We've bounced back before."

Abel said he expects his Red Wings to come back just as the Black Hawks did.

"They were down for a long time but they didn't die."

The Hawks were very much alive Sunday with centre Stan Mikita scoring his 34th and 35th goals of the season and helping set up others by Bobby Hull and Cliff Koroll.

Doug Mohns and Doug Jarrett got the other Hawk goals before a crowd of 16,666 at Chicago.

Bobby Hull Hits 500-Goal Plateau

Bobby Orr helped set up Derek Sanderson and Johnny Bucyk for two Boston goals with Wayne Carleton collecting the other.

Phil Esposito set up Carleton's goal but failed to score on brother Tony in the Chicago nets. The younger Esposito kicked out 26 Boston shots to preserve the win while big brother Phil collected 17 minutes in penalties in the hard-hitting game, with a major, misconduct and minor.

At Detroit, Jean Beliveau won a face-off in the Red Wings zone and flipped the puck to Yvan Cournoyer who beat goalie Roy Edwards for the only goal the Canadiens needed.

Rogatien Vachon kicked out 31 shots for his third season shutout in the Montreal goal.

A crowd of 17,250 at New York saw the Rangers stay in front of the Leafs all the way with goals by Walt Tkaczuk, Ron Stewart, Dave Balon, Bob Nevin and Bill Fairbairn.

The win moved the Rangers two points ahead of the Bruins and kept them five up on third-place Montreal.

The last-place Leafs got goals from George Armstrong, Rick Ley and Bob Pulford.

EDWARDS RETURNS

Goalie Ed Giacomin's opposite number was Marv Edwards, making his first appearance since a knee injury knocked him out of the Leaf lineup in mid-December.

The Rangers had less luck in Chicago Saturday despite an early lead on goals by Stewart and Nevin. The Black Hawks stormed back with second-period goals by Bobby Hull and one by brother Dennis. Pit Martin made it 4-2 for the Hawks in the third period.

Bobby's second goal of the night gave him a career total of 500, making him only the third player to reach that plateau. Detroit's Gordie Howe and former Canadien Maurice Richard passed the 500-mark.

Chi Cheng Cracks World Hurdle Mark

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chi Cheng of Taiwan, recently named the world's outstanding female track and field star, Saturday night broke the world record in the women's 50-metre hurdles, running the distance in 6.9 seconds.

Competing in the Achilles International Indoor Games, she topped the old mark of seven seconds flat set last year by Mamie Rallins of the United States. Miss Cheng also won the womens' long jump at 20 feet, 9¾ inches, a Canadian open record.

She won a third event, the 50-metre cash, in 6.2 seconds.

Runner-up Stephanie Berto of West Vancouver, B.C., also was timed in 6.2 seconds, breaking her own Canadian open record. However, the judges ruled Miss Cheng finished a shade ahead of Miss Berto.

RECORD BID FAILS

Canadian women's high jump sensation Debbie Brill of Haney, B.C., failed in her attempt to break the world record for women of six feet, ¾ of an inch.

After winning the event at five feet, 10 inches, she had the bar raised to six feet, one inch and missed in all three attempts.

The mens' open mile was won by John Mason of Los Angeles in 4:00.8, the second-fastest indoor mile in North America this year. Los Angeles teammate John Lawson was second in 4:01.4 and Jim Johnson of the University of Washington was third in 4:01.6.

Vancouver's Rick Richie, competing for the University of Oregon, finished fourth in 4:01.8, the fastest indoor mile ever run by a Canadian.

Austria Advances

GALATI, Romania (AP) — Austria won the world ice hockey championship's Group C tournament Sunday and advanced to Group B on an aggregate point total of 11 after it held Italy to a 3-3 draw.

FRENCH GIRL WINS CRAWFORD 10TH

Clifford Third in U.S. Slalom

JACKSON HOLE, Wyo. (AP-CP) — Betsy Clifford of Camp Fortune, Que., Sunday finished third in the women's slalom here won by Ingrid Lafforgue of France.

The 16-year-old member of Canada's national ski team, winner of the women's slalom at the world championships in Val Gardena, Italy, earlier this month, registered combined runs of 43.42 and 47.98 seconds for one minute, 41.40 seconds.

Miss Lafforgue had a combined time of 1:39.84 to defeat Barbara Cochran of the United States 1:41.31 and Miss Clifford.

Another Canadian, Judy Crawford of Toronto, was 10th.

Among other Canadian girls, Kathy Huston finished 13th in 1:54.03; Diane Pratte, Rouyn, Que., was 14th in 1:54.34; and Mary Ann Finch, Kimberley, B.C., was 18th in 2:00.45. Carolyn Oughton of Calgary, Diana Gibson of Toronto, Laurie Krenier of Timmins, Ont., and Diane Culver of Montreal did not finish the slalom.

The men's section of the Wild West Classic World Cup ski races was won by Alain Penz of France.

Henri Beechu gave the Frenchmen a 1-2 finish in the men's slalom. Brechu finished in one minute, 45.9 seconds to trail his countryman by .88 seconds. Third was Gustavo Thoeni of Italy in 1:46.64.

There were no Canadian finishers in the men's slalom. Hans Mueller, Dan Irwin of Thunder Bay, Ont., and Reto Barrington of Calgary all were disqualified.

Saturday, the French contingent swept the first five places among the women and finished 2-3-4 among the men in downhill.

Only Austria's Karl Cordin took the edge off the French performance by capturing the men's downhill with a clocking of 2:00.52 over the two-mile track with its drop of 2,980 feet.

Downhill ace Isabelle Mir led the French sweep in the women's event with a run of 1:57.87 over a 1½-mile track.

Miss Clifford fell at the fourth gate of the 30-gate course. However, she finished in 2:28.51 on a broken ski.

Miss Crawford topped Canadians in the women's downhill, finishing 14th in a time of 2:03.06. Miss Krenier was 15th in 2:03.22; Miss Culver placed 17th in 2:04.09; Miss Oughton came 20th with a time of 2:05.05; Miss Finch was 27th in 2:07.88; Miss Gibson was 29th in a clocking of 2:08.22; Miss Pratte was 31st in 2:08.64; and Miss Huston finished 34th in 2:09.17.

Among Canadian men, Irwin was 20th in 2:05.25; Barrington finished 32nd in 2:07.86; Mueller was 39th in 2:08.42; and Jim Hunter of Calgary was 42nd in 2:09.01.

Marathon Standards Toughened

BOSTON (AP) — For the first time in its history the Boston marathon will have qualification standards this year in hopes of discouraging "exhibitionists" and other non-serious runners.

Sponsors of the world-famous 26-mile, 385-yard run from Hopkinton to Boston have announced the new requirements saying they are "flexible enough to accommodate all legitmate runners" for the 74th annual running of the event on Monday, April 20.

The new rules say that each applicant to have his entry accepted must meet at least one of the following requirements:

- Completed within four hours any previous Boston marathon or any other sanctioned marathon.
- Completed at least two sanctioned races of 10 miles or more in the last year.
- Submit the certification of either his district Amateur Athletic Union long-distance chairman or a recognized coach that the applicant has trained sufficiently to cover the course in less than four hours.

Firefighters Halt O'Keefe Run at 16

Dave Hutton enabled Vancouver Firefighters to snuff out Victoria's hopes of collecting Inter-League Cup as the visitors eliminated O'Keefes from the soccer series with a 2-1 overtime triumph Saturday at Macdonald Park.

The veteran halfback's tally before the 561 fans watching the second-round cup contest also snapped a 16-game unbeaten skein for O'Keefes.

Hutton's goal came eight minutes into a 30-minute overtime session after referee Bill Miller of Vancouver awarded a free kick to Firefighters near the left corner of Victoria territory.

As Dan Resengrn's low drive was deflected away from the Victoria defenders by Jim Goodheart, Hutton came smashing through to boot the ball into the middle of the net.

ANDERSON SCORES

Bob Sedgewick gave Firefighters the lead in the first half with a 28-yard drive through a crowd of defenders after Peter Brett had blocked a Vancouver free kick at 42 minutes.

Heavy hitting by the Vancouver defence, led by Bob Mills, kept O'Keefes off the scoresheet until 15 minutes before the end of regular time.

Victoria appeared to have saved the streak of 11 regular-schedule games when Howie Anderson counted the tying goal at 83 minutes.

Anderson, who was moved to forward minutes before by coach Frank Grealy, beat Mike Gilmour with a header on a cross from Jim Menzies.

CROATIA GAINS

Meanwhile in a Sunday PCSL game in Vancouver, Croatia moved four points ahead of third-place O'Keefes and within three points of leading Columbus after handing Paul's Taylors a 2-1 loss at Callister Park.

Neil Ellett and John Haar counted for Croatia in the first half and Peter Arnett averted a shutout for Paul's with a second-half toally.

In Saturday matches, Westminster Blues downed UBC Thunderbirds, 5-3, and Eintracht drew 1-1 with North Shore Labatts.

Blues collected two goals each from Marty Taylor and Jack Perri was well as a single goal from Doug Smith. Gary Thompson, Doug Wilson and Dave Durant scored for UBC.

Ken Legg gave North Shore the lead early in the second half only to see Reinhard Schmidt even the count for Eintracht at the 36-minute mark.

Uvic Upset By Webfoots

(Times News Services)

The "Webfoots" of Oregon used the boot Saturday to upset University of Victoria Vikings 11-8 in Pacific Northwest Collegiate Rugby Conference play.

Jim Rainier's 45-yard penalty goal in the dying minutes of play gave University of Oregon Ducks their victory and handed Vikings their first setback in two seasons of conference play.

The defending champion Vikings, who won their first two starts this season, wrap up their first road jaunt by facing Oregon State Beavers in Corvallis today.

Rainier's goal was the only scoring play in the second half. The Ducks scored a try by Terry Logan, which was converted by Rainier, and also collected a drop goal by Tony Evans.

Two trys by Jim Wenman and Al Foster's convert accounted for Victoria's points.

Victoria's Norsemen remained on the winning trail, however, by edging Oregon's seconds 11-13 for Uvic's third straight victory.

Stu Bailey sparked Norsemen with two penalty goals and a convert. Tom Conti and Chris Bennett scored a try each.

Also in rugby, UCLA Bruins mauled UBC Thunderbirds 21-3 Saturday to win the World Cup, emblematic of supremacy in their annual two-game, total-point series. UCLA won the first game by a convincing 29-0 victory on Thursday.

The title hopes of the University of Victoria Vikings have been extinguished but the flames still are burning brightly for the Jayvees.

UBC Thunderbirds defeated Vikings 97-56 in Vancouver to sweep their best-of-three semi-final series in two straight and advance to the Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association men's basketball final.

The unbeaten T-Birds now meet Manitoba's Bisons in a best-of-three final to be played in Vancouver next weekend. Bisons also swept their series, tacking an 80-61 Saturday night victory over Alberta Golden Bears on to Friday's 77-62 result.

JAYVEES TOUGH

Coach Gary Taylor's Jayvees, gunning for Canadian junior men's honors, defeated Killarney 78-69 in Vancouver Saturday to take the opeing match in the best-of-three B.C. final.

Second and third games, if needed, will be played at Uvic next Saturday and Sunday.

Bob Molinski, with 23 points, and WCIAA scoring champion Ron Thorsen, with 21, sparked UBC's well-balanced machine. UBC, which had posted a 96-74 triumph Friday, held complete command, leading 49-28 at the half.

Every UBC player hit the scoresheet.

Corky Jossul, with 13 points, and guard Skip Cronck, with 11, were top scorers for coach Bob Bell's Vikings.

The Jayvees, despite finishing with only five players, won handily with a strong second-half performance. Held to a 33-33 deadlock at the half, Victoria's juniors checked Killarney with an effective 1-3-1 zone defence.

Gord Hoshal and Brent Mullin fouled out late in the game.

Chris Hall sparked Jayvees second-half drive by counting 16 of his 20 points in the closing stretch. Fergie Andison, with 21 points, and Tim Rieger, with 15, also turned in strong efforts for Victoria.

Elgin topped Killarney with 17 points.

Lake Cowichan Snares Honors

Vancouver Island teams were handed qualifications and seedings after high school boys basketball tournaments were concluded Saturday in Victoria, Duncan, Courtenay and Comox.

- At Chemainus, Lake Cowichan won the Island's "A" championships with a last-quarter rally that toppled Chemainus 40-38 in the final.

Lakers now advance to the B.C. "A" tournament March 5-7, at Princeton for schools with less than 200 boys in Grades 11 and 12.

Armijit Dhillon, who paced Lakers with 10 points, was chosen as the tourney's most-valuable-player.

- In Victoria, Lansdowne, Elizabeth Fisher and Central finished in that order atop the lower Island junior boys' tournament at Colquitz to earn berths in the Island championship March 6-7 in Campbell River.

One other team will join the Lower Island lineup. It will be the winner of a challenge match between fifth-place Colquitz and fourth-ranked Oak Bay.

Lansdowne won tourney honors with a 50-40 victory over Elizabeth Fisher, following on the heels of a 48-44 semi-final win over Colquitz. Elizabeth Fisher defeated Central 62-58 in the other semi-final.

Central claimed its berth with a 59-48 win over Colquitz while Oak Bay grabbed fourth place by downing Dunsmuir 58-45 after a 51-34 victory over Gordon Head. Dunsmuir had advanced with a 49-26 triumph over S. J. Willis.

S. J. Willis won the consolation game over Gordon Head, 40-25.

- At Duncan, in the mid-Island tourney, Woodlands of Nanaimo, Parksville, Ladysmith and Wellington of Nanaimo advanced to the junior mid-north competition next weekend at Courtenay.

Woodlands downed Parksville, 53-34, in the final after advancing 34-30 over Ladysmith. Parksville won the final berth with a 47-36 win over Wellington.

Qualicum eliminated Mount Prevost 41-30 before being stopped by fourth-place Chemainus, 37-34. Chemainus had topped George Bonner of Mill Bay, 32-28 and Ladysmith claimed third spot with a 35-34 win over Wellington.

- At Courtenay, Georges Vanier of Courtenay captured top seeding in the north Senior "AA" zone by turning back Campbell River 68-39 in the finale of a four-team tournament.

Alberni, winners of the MacMillan-Bloedel trophy as league-champions, took third seeding over Nanaimo, 57-49.

Cowichan, the lone mid-Island entry, now has the right to challenge any of the four north-Island squads for a berth in the 20th annual Island championships Friday and Saturday at the University of Victoria.

The challenge game will take place Tuesday in Duncan.

Vikettes Facing Comeback Chores

UBC Thunderettes, coming on with a rush in the final half, edged Victoria's Vikettes 45-40 Sunday to grab a one-game lead in the best-of-three Inter-City Senior Women's Basketball League final.

Second game will be played Friday and a third, if necessary, Saturday at UBC.

Checked by UBC's effective defences, Vikettes failed to hold a 19-18 half-time advantage.

UBC, the Western Canada Intercollegiate champions, rode to victory in the Uvic gym on the efforts of its starting five—Cathy Williams, with 10 points; Linda Willard, Wendy Grant and Bette Ross, with eight each, and Terry McGovern, with six.

Rose Witzel led Victoria scoring with 10 points while twin sister Heather and Barbara Tribe each added eight.

VICTORIA (40) — Jean Robertson 6, Heather Witzel 8, Rose Witzel 10, Lynn Carlson, Barb Tribe 8, Dierdre Ogden, Lynn Hagglund 2, Laurie Sawden 2, Marcia McIntyre 4, Peggy Robinson.

UBC (45) — Brenda McFarland, Carol Shollert, Elja Peitso, Heather Cranston 3, Linda Willard 8, Cathy Williams 10, Terry McGovern 6, Joanne Sargent 2, Wendy Grant 8, Bette Ross 8.

The Government makes the tax rules.

Start using them and save some money.

You can save up to $2,500 a year of your earned income, watch your money grow, and still have control of it.

The government says in effect "Plan now for your retirement, and we'll allow you to pay as much as $2,500 into a registered retirement savings plan. And we won't tax you on it."

So you [illegible] lower your taxable income by investing up to $2,500 in our registered retirement savings plans.

You save on tax.

You can get your money out too.

And it's not dead. It grows.

For instance, suppose you had invested in our Equity Plan just seven years ago.

By now your money would have more than doubled. (If you're already in a plan and its growth rate can't compare with ours, come on over!).

We also offer you an alternative plan, which guarantees a [illegible] interest established at [illegible] March [illegible].

That's definitely not dead money.

When you [illegible] it, of course, you have to pay taxes on it at that time. But this is exactly what's most important.

You pay tax on the money when you choose to pay it.

This has led some to call the plan a tax shelter.

One fellow we know paid into it for five years, watched it grow, then took the bundle out and used it to replace normal income while he lazed in Majorca for six months.

If you care to, you can leave it in till you retire for good.

Either way it's an excellent plan for you.

It's especially valuable because we don't have a lot of salesmen out making calls, therefore you don't have to pay high sales commissions.

All you have to do is call us.

But don't put it off.

The deadline is this Saturday. You can't declare any contributions for 1969 after this date.

Do it now.

Use the rules.

WITH THE CURLERS

Rock-Throwers Reach for Top

(Times News Services)

Curlers are ready to pay attention to cigar-smoking Alfie Phillips and Betty Stanhope Cole, a pert housewife from Edmonton. That's in the future—this week. In the past, at the weekend, attention centred on a variety of curlers.

Mrs. Cole, former Canadian junior, open and closed golf queen, will bid to become one of the few women who can boast of national titles in two sports.

She's skipping an Edmonton rink in the national curling playdowns which opened today in Calgary.

Phillips, a former Canadian diving champion, is in the spotlight at Kamloops. He is the defending champion for the senior's showdown, which also started today.

Otherwise, the curling light strayed far and wide at the weekend.

* * *

At White Rock, Dave Patterson's Courtenay rink beat Gary Cameron of Kamloops 10-8 in an extra end Sunday to win the British Columbia Elks title.

Patterson, who earlier won the "A" event with a 6-4 victory over Chuck Kennedy of Mica Creek 10-6, now goes to the Elks' national final at Dauphin, Man., in March.

Dr. Jerry Wiebe of Dawson Creek defeated Jim Kosh of Edmonton 7-1 to capture the Alberta Elks' championship.

* * *

A North Vancouver rink skipped by Sheila Benton and a Vancouver quartet directed by Ed Beketa of Vancouver claimed other B.C. titles.

Beketa won the B.C. Firefighters' crown for the second straight year and earned a trip to Shawinigan Falls, Que., after defeating Fran Shields of Dawson Creek 15-8.

Shields defeated Dick Austin of Victoria 11-8 in one of the semi-finals. Other Victoria rinks skipped by Les Brice, Ron Pearce and Whitey Severson were eliminated earlier.

At Prince George, Miss Benton won the high school girls' honor by defeating Donna Miller of Salmon Arm. Lynn Osborne of Edmonton won the Alberta title to advance, with the Benton quartet, to the Western finals in Calgary next month.

Provincial mixed winners also were declared. Barry Fry of Winnipeg Highlander (Manitoba), Jack Berg of Prince Albert (Saskatchewan)), Dr. Bill Mitchell of Edmonton (Alberta) and Lyle Wilder of Kapuskasing (Northern Ontario) were among the champions declared at the weekend.

All will advance to the national playdowns to be staged at Vancouver Capilano club next month.

Roger Argue of Rouleau, Sask., Earl Jesse of Trenton, Ont., and Mel Jordan of Vulcan, Alta., were among the skips who moved into the Canadian Legion championships at Prince George next month.

RON CERRUDO

Cerrudo Gets Revenge After Nine-Year Wait

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—It was nine years coming, but Ron Cerrudo finally got revenge for a defeat in the California Amateur golf championship.

"I finally caught up with him," Cerrudo laughed after beating Dick Lotz in a duel for the $20,000 top prize in the San Antonio Open golf tournament Sunday.

"It's the first time we've played head-to-head since he beat me in the finals of that 1961 state amateur at Pebble Beach," Cerrudo said. He had beaten Dick's brother, John, in the semi-finals before the other Lotz knocked him off.

And Dick threatened in the final round Sunday, twice closing to within one stroke before Cerrudo pulled away. Cerrudo had a final round 68, two under par on the soggy, 7,138-yard Pecan Valley Golf Club course, for 273.

FIVE BEHIND

Lotz, his long-time friend and playing partner, also had a 68 and took second, five strokes back, at 278, worth $11,400.

Rod Funseth, 70, and Miller Barber, 68, shared third at 279. Those four were the only players to break par during the weather-plagued tournament. Sleet, cold and wind hampered play the first three days, and a drizzling rain fell during most of the final round.

Al Geiberger and John Schlee were tied at 282, with Dave Stockton, Orville Moody, Kermit Zarley and Chris Blocker at 283.

Toronto's Al Balding shot a final-round 71 for a 288 total and $657.

Oarsmen Ramble Past Rugby Foes

James Bay Athletic Association sides blasted first and second-division rivals during weekend action in the Victoria Rugby Union.

The first-division Oarsmen downed Cowichan 14-9 in Macdonald Park on Sunday while the JBAA second-division side bounced Oak Bay 17-10 in a Saturday match at Windsor Park.

FOUR PENALTY GOALS

Norm Dixon paced the first team with two penalty goals and a convert while single trys were added by Tom Bourne and Ron Sallis. Jim Oliver scored two penalty goals for Cowichan while Bob McDonald added a try.

Wayne Coles booted four penalty goals and a convert to lead the seconds as Rich White collected the only JBAA try. Garry Worth and Ken Foote scored one try each and Vince Callender kicked both converts for Oak Bay.

In a Sunday exhibition at Carnarvon Park, second-division Castaways expanded an 11-0 halftime lead into a 21-6 victory over Malaspina College of Nanaimo.

Garry Johnson and Tom Browne scored two trys each for Castaways while Mike Walsh added a single try. Ron Reid booted three converts.

Kevin McCullum scored a try and Ralph Carter kicked a penalty goal for Malaspina.

Second-division Velox held first-division Castaways to a 5-5 draw in Saturday exhibition tussle. Tom Carson's try and a convert by Lorne Bunyan accounted for the Velox points while Castaways counted on Ron Reid's try and a convert by Alan Rees.

Lund Survives Littered Course

DAYTONA BEACH (AP) — Husky Tiny Lund whizzed through a procession of wrecks, spins and yellow caution flags Saturday and won a battle of veteran drivers over Red Farmer in the Permatex 300-mile race for sportsman-type cars.

Juniors' Serenity Lull Before Storm

It was a relatively-quiet weekend for British Columbia Junior Hockey League teams, or the lull before the storm.

Kamloops Rockets shaded New Westminster Royals 4-3 and Kelowna Buckaroos completed their regular schedule by absorbing a 6-3 defeat at the hands of Penticton Broncos.

Action by the four lowest-ranked clubs did nothing to alter the standings. This week, however, the "top dogs" have their chance to bark as Victoria Cougars, Vernon Essos and Vancouver Centennials continue their quest for first-place honors.

CRUCIAL DATES

Cougars, two points ahead of Vernon and four up on Vancouver, host the Centennials in a crucial Memorial Arena meeting Tuesday. Penticton visits Vernon the same evening.

Vernon visits Kamloops while the Cougars move into New Westminster for a pair of Wednesday games that may have a telling effect on the order of finish.

Kamloops' winning goal Saturday was a gift from a Royals' defenceman, who deflected the puck into his own net. The goal was credited to Jim Kinsman.

Dressing only 12 players, the Centennials dropped a 5-3 exhibition decision to Calgary's Mount Royal Cougars in a game at Vancouver. Ray Todd scored twice for Centennials while Alex Dick supplied a single.

University Club Topples Fossils

University of Victoria staged a come-from-behind struggle to nip Oak Bay Fossils 3-2 Sunday in a Vancouver Island's Men's Field Hockey Association match.

In another league contest, goals by Al Shaw and John Pendray gave Oak Bay Redmen a 2-1 triumph over Tigers, who got their lone tally from J. Dhanowa.

Al Boulevant, Steve Lane and Bert Meek scored for Uvic while M. Thorsell and M. Albricht replied for Fossils.

MILWAUKEE (AP)—George Pappas of Charlotte, N.C., slammed a clutch strike in the 10th frame Saturday to win $10,000 and first place in the $70,000 Miller Open Bowling tournament.

It was the 22-year-old Pappas' first victory on the Professional Bowlers Association tour, and he got it by knocking off Bobby Cooper, of Houston, 203-199, who also was after his first big cheque. Cooper's second place finish was worth $6,000.

SOVIETS GIVE CUBA CREDIT FOR BASEBALL

MOSCOW (AP) — Baseball, a game normally ignored here, has finally come to the Soviet Union, the sports newspaper Soviet-Sky Sport reported Sunday.

But the rare attention to the American national game signalled no new channel of understanding with the United States.

On the contrary, the game is identified as Cuban and brought by Cuban students to Odessa.

Cubans are the world champions in baseball, the short article reported.

Deaf Man Perfects Tiny Hearing Aid

OFFERS FREE MODEL (not an actual hearing aid)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and represents a new, unusual design idea in a product to help hard-of-hearing.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This new hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life, actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement, while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Anderson Hearing Electronics, 1320 Blanshard St., Victoria.

DO SECRET POLAR BASES THREATEN US?

Did Gov't UFO Fears Change Winch?

By ED GOULD

DUNCAN — Was it the news that North America has been under surveillance by unidentified flying objects emanating from the Arctic and Antarctic that made Vancouver Member of Parliament Harold Winch switch from a dove to a hawk?

●

The question was raised Saturday at a Duncan Press Club meeting addressed by John Magor, publisher of Canadian UFO Report, a magazine of space phenomena.

He made the comments following the report from Ottawa that Winch, a lifelong anti-militarist, is now advocating the beefing up of Canadian defences in the Arctic after a top secret briefing in Norfolk, Va., by NATO and U.S. Navy brass.

Magor, a former newspaper man and publisher of dailies, weeklies and magazines, said the switch is remarkable for Winch.

"I'm certain it's not fear of the Russians. Winch has known about that for years and never got panicky before this. It can't be the Americans he's afraid of — they're the ones who gave him the information that scared him."

Winch went to Norfolk last week with Michael Forrestal, a conservative MP from the Maritimes. He was briefed by, amongh others, Admiral E. P. Holmes, supreme NATO commander of the Atlantic naval forces and the U.S. Atlantic Fleet.

Although no news was released after the meeting it is understood that conversation revolved around polar defence and the lack of adequate underwater surveillance equipment, meaning submarines.

Later in the week Winch made a public statement calling for more Canadian polar power and received a vist by an official of the U.S. embassy who apparently was concerned there may have been a "leak of security" from the secret briefing.

"All this top secret security, hush hush and Winch's defection to militarism makes me wonder if there isn't something more than just increased Russian sub activity up there," Magor said.

"Maybe it's the UFOS they're worried about."

Magor, a self-confessed skeptic who has never seen an object he himself could not identify, said a current theory is that UFO bases have been established under the ice at both North and South poles.

●

He quoted from two stories in popular publications that suggested the Americans and Russians both have had reports of strange happenings in these areas but the reports were hushed up.

One quoted a U.S. Navy officer who witnessed an object of disk-like shape that crashed out of the sea from under 30 feet of solid ice and took off.

The officer reported that the object left a huge hole and water that seemed to be boiling hot.

Magor said he realized that Winch had been sworn to secrecy but an enterprising reporter could at least ask him if the threat he fears is from unidentified sources, whether UFO or UWO — unidentified water objects.

"If he doesn't answer in the negative, then it leaves the whole area open for speculation doesn't it?"

They Won't Be Stumped By Gov't Litter

MILL BAY — A number of Mill Bay and Cobble Hill residents have decided to clean up stumps and asphalt that have been dumped on a beach near here by the department of highways.

A spokesman for the group said Sunday that a roadgrader had pushed some gravel over the crumbling shoulders of the road since news of the dumping practices were reported in the Times.

"But the stumps are still there and the asphalt that has fallen onto the beach is still under the waterline," the spokesman said.

He said the residents, including members of the Malahat Indian Band on whose land the beach is located, will bring power saws, a tow truck and other equipment to clean up the beach, one of the finest in the area.

Fred Anderson, a Cobble Hill auto parts dealer, said last week the dumping of stumps and asphalt contravened the Fisheries Act. He complained to the fisheries department at both federal and provincial levels but said no action was taken against the highways department.

"If I did that they'd fine me a thousand dollars," he said.

Indians claim the practice of dumping stumps, which has been going on for two years, is endangering their clam beds.

"Maybe if we clean the mess up it'll shame them into not doing it anymore," the spokesman said.

The giant cleanup is to begin at 9 a.m. Sunday. A bonfire will be made of the collected stumps and the asphalt on the beach will be trucked away.

The group, expected to number about 100, mostly school students, will have food and a folk-rock group on hand to entertain the workers.

Up-Island Mothers' March Expected to Better 1969

LADYSMITH — More than $2,000 was collected when volunteers from Chemainus to North Oyster wound up their Mothers' March for the Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation of British Columbia.

Last year the club raised $2,133 but when the final tally is in on this year the total is expected to beat that, a spokesman for the club said today.

Sixty-six volunteers under chairmen Mr. and Mrs. Stirling Beeston were enlisted from the Ladysmith area, including three from the Chemainus band who canvassed their reserve.

Also involved were 16 zone captains and nine Kinsmen.

Forty-four volunteers under Mrs. A. C. Niehaus and the St. Joseph's Catholic Women's Association covered the Chemainus area with another seven serving as area captains.

'EXTREMELY POOR'

No door-to-door canvass was held in Duncan-North Cowichan this year because Kinsmen there have been prime instigators of the new United Appeal which will be launched this fall.

A mail-in donation campaign was substituted for the usual Mothers' March. "Results are extremely poor," a spokesman said today. "Only about $400 has been received to date."

Kinsmen Rally To Celebrate Club Birthday

DUNCAN — A large crowd of Kinsmen, Kinettes, K-40s and guests filled the Elks Home Saturday night to celebrate the 50th Anniversary of the Kinsmen Association in Canada.

The group also honored founder Hal Rogers who started the nation-wide organization on Feb. 20, 1920.

President Tom Stanko welcomed all in attendance and introduced Ian Brown, member of the Duncan Kinsmen who is also deputy governor of the lower Vancouver Island clubs.

Highlight was the cutting of a large 50th anninversary cake by life member Wayne Griffith. The cake was made and donated for the occasion by Peter Reinholdt.

Duncan Kinsmen will be hosts to a lower Island Kinsmen convention and zone 50th anniversary banquet to be held here on April 11.

Indian Band To Name New Manager

DUNCAN — A successor to Ross Modeste as manager of Cowichan Indian Band is expected to be named this week, a spokesman said today.

Jimmy Nahanee, band office secretary, said a successor will be picked from a number of individuals nominated for the position but procedure for selection has not yet been determined. Deadline for nominations was Friday.

Modeste, an outspoken advocate of Indian rights and a Second World War veteran, recently was appointed field officer for the newly formed B.C. Union of Indian Chiefs.

PROBLEM WITH WORKING on a book sale is that one is constantly tempted by the goodies. Members of Victoria Conservatory of Music women's committee, whose fifth annual book sale takes place March 5 and 6 at 613 Pandora Avenue, have worked for weeks, pricing and sorting hundreds of donations, many so fascinating that, as for Mrs. F. C. Frewer, on top of ladder, work stops while pages are turned. Not idling are Mrs. Aubrey Westinghouse, kneeling, and Mrs. J. D. Munro. Books are still needed and a phone call to 592-9709 or 384-1717 will bring prompt pickup. Proceeds of sale go to student bursaries.

OAS Annual Meetings To Start This Year

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Organization of American States will update its 22-year-old charter this week, adding an annual general assembly as its supreme organ.

Technically, the assembly will replace an inter-American conference that was to have met every five years, but last did so in 1954. The OAS council in Washington, which has functioned as the regional organization's highest body between special meetings of foreign ministers, will be renamed the permanent council.

In theory, it will become coequal with two of its former subsidiaries, the economic and social council and the council for education, science and culture (the old inter-American cultural council).

In practice, however, the permanent council will be the preparatory group for the general assembly and will, as one official put it, be "a little more equal than the others."

MEET IN JUNE

The first general assembly, it is expected, will be held this June in the Dominican Republic's capital of Santo Domingo.

The meetings are to rotate among the capitals of the 24 member states, with OAS headquarters here as a standy site if the scheduled capital is unavailable.

The standby arrangement would avert a repetition of the last attempt to hold a regular inter-American conference under the 1948 OAS charter.

Scheduled for 1959 in Quito, Ecuador, this was postponed a year at the host country's request to allow for completion of hotel facilities, and postponed forever in 1960 after Peru, by then involved in a boundary dispute with Ecuador, announced it would boycott the meeting.

The charter amendments, worked out at a special conference in Rio de Janeiro in 1965 and adopted as the Protocol of Buenos Aires in 1967, now have been ratified by 13 nations, including the United States.

141 DIE IN NEW YORK FROM DRUG OVERDOSES

NEW YORK (AP) — Three more persons, including an 18-year-old youth, have been found dead from heroin overdoses. With the new fatalities, the city's toll from drug abuse since Jan. 1 stands at 141—an average of nearly three deaths a day.

Thirty-five of the victims have been teenagers.

New Revolutionary Is Polite, Careful

By KEN HARTNETT

WASHINGTON (AP) — A different type of revolutionary, using persuasiveness and careful manners instead of the harsh rhetoric of confrontation, is bidding for leadership in the white radical movement in the United States.

Whether the modern-day followers of the teachings of Russian revolutionary leader Leon Trotsky succeed in moving into the void left by the disintegration of the confrontation-minded Students for a Democratic Society won't be easy to tell.

For one thing, the Trotskyists—or Trots, as they are called in the movement—are few in number.

As a result, it is often difficult to tell whether they are emerging as leaders or just anticipating where the movement would go with or without them.

STYLES DIFFER

Some of the Trotskyists are so studious, neatly dressed, short-haired and soft-spoken that they resemble missionaries. But they call themselves revolutionaries and say they are building for an upheaval that can come only when the U.S. majority wants it to come.

Critics say they are not revolutionaries at all, but temporizers who, in their zeal to win friends, sacrifice the need to build revolutionary consciousness.

But whether revolutionaries or harmless theorizers, "they are growing considerably," said a government source.

Susan Lamont, national secretary of the Trotskyists youth arm, the Young Socialist Alliance, said YSA membership is up to 5,000 from 3,000 within the last year. There are more than 7,000,000 college students in the country.

Miss Lamont, a 22-year-old Barnard drop-out, said the YSA is benefiting from the SDS collapse as well as youth's weariness with the endless factionalism of the New Left.

Union Election Probed

WASHINGTON (WP)—The labor department has asked the Canadian government for help in investigating fresh charges of vote-padding and forgery in the controversial election of United Mine Workers' President W. A. (Tony) Boyle.

UMW pensioners, especially in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, were said to have voted illegally and UMW local officials there were allegedly offered 50 dollars each to tabulate the "unlawful" ballots, according to complaints submitted to federal officials.

"I guess they (UMW leaders) figured no one would ever look up there," said Joseph A. (Chip) Yablonski, son of the slain labor leader who was defeated by Boyle in a bitter contest Dec. 9.

By the UMW's tally, Boyle won the election over union dissident Joseph (Jock) Yablonski with a vote of 80,577 to 46,073.

Disclosureof the apparently unprecedented step to investigate alleged union irregularities in another country followed a sharply worded salvo from the Yablonski camp's lawyer, Washington attorney Josephn L. Rauh Jr.

In an impassioned nine-page letter to Labor Secretery George Shultz, Rauh accused the labor department of conducting "a woefully inadequate . . . wholly pusillanimous investigation." He said its investigators have completely ignored charges of most pre-election irregularities and not a few election-day improprieties.

"The Yablonski supporters will never let you sweep this under the rug," Rauh warned. He asserted that Boyle's election should be set aside "on the full record" rather than "the narrowest possible ground."

Pointing to Canada, Rauh declared that an accompanying affidavit, "~~now~~ handed to you on a silver platter . . . shows that tally sheets were altered and another forged." But so far, he protested to Shultz, no investigation has been undertaken there.

The deadline for a labor department decision on the election in less than three weeks away. The government's request for an investigation of the Canadian balloting, it was reliably reported, was sent through diplomatic channels to the Ministry of Labor in Ottawa Friday.

Protocol-conscious officials here, however, want Ottawa to make the announcement.

Yablonski charged before his death that Boyle "stole the election through massive violations" of the UMW constitution and federal labor laws, including intimidation, vote-padding and misuse of union funds.

Boyle has dismissed the allegations as "largely technicalities and trivialities" and called the election "entirely democratic."

TAX TIPS FOR 1970

This column has been prepared by the department of revenue, taxation. Generally applicable answers to common questions are attempted. Where unusual circumstances render the answers inadequate to your guide. If you are still in need of help write to P. J. Kelly, public relations officer, National Revenue, Taxation, Victoria district office, for free advice.

Q Must I have a social insurance number?

A. Yes, if you are required to file an income tax return you are required by law to have a social insurance number. Also it is important that the information filed on your social insurance number application is correct since your Canada Pension plan records will be based on this information.

Q. My wife took a part-time job last year for the first time since our marriage. She earned over $3,000. Do I have to include her income with mine or does she have to file a separate return for her income?

A. Since your wife will have a taxable income she must file a separate return. Because her income was more than $1,250 you will not be able to claim married exemption on your return.

Q. I am self-employed and I pay into a retirement savings plan with an insurance company. I have no salaried income whatsoever and understand that I can claim for income tax purposes a maximum of $2,500 for my retirement savings plan. Is this correct?

A. If you are not covered by an employees pension plan you would be entitled to claim amounts paid into a registered retirement savings plan up to the lesser of $2,500 or 20 per cent of your earned income for the year.

Q. I gave $50 to the United Appeal. Can I claim this as tax deductible in addition to the standard deduction of $100?

A. No. You are entitled to claim either the standard deduction of $100 or your charitable donations and medical expenses, but not both in the same year.

Q. My brother and I are single, both working, and living at home with our parents. Our parents are dependent on us for support and we share equally in maintaining the home. We would like to know if we can each claim the equivalent exemption of $1,000 when completing our income tax return.

A. Assuming that both your parents otherwise qualify as dependants, either you or your brother is entitled to claim the $1,000 equivalent exemption for either of your parents, the usual exemption may be claimed for the other parent as you may agree between you but only one $1,000 equivalent exemption can be allowed for any one household.

Q. Are dividends and interest credited by insurance companies on non-matured life insurance policies taxable?

A. Dividends and interest credits on non-matured life insurance policies have not been considered taxable for 1969 and prior years.

Q. I am self-employed and my earnings are less than my personal income tax exemption. Can I contribute to the Canada Pension plan?

A. As a self-employed person, if you earn over $800 in the year you are required to file a T1 general tax return and make the required contributions to the plan.

He Sure Can't Retire on It

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — The only payment W. H. Forsyth got for leasing his land near here was about 17,000 old tires.

Forsyth said he leased his land to men who claimed they were storing the tires until they finished building a machine to shred them. Then they would ship the rubber to Japan, they said.

Forsyth said he allowed them to postpone payments, and when he finally asked them to either haul away the tires or pay the rent they disappeared.

George Ward, a Portland consulting engineer with Auto Dismantlers' Associations, said the men probably got from 10 to 40 cents for each tire they hauled to the site they leased.

Ward said Forsyth's case is an example of why piles of as many as 1,000,000 old tires have stacked up in the area.

Experts Up to Their Noses In War on Pulp Mill Smell

By DON VIPOND

That pungent perfume marking the pulp mill is not about to be expunged by scientists scrambling for Premier Bennett's $250,000 deodorant prize.

The mill men say that themselves. Sadly.

They leave the distinct impression they wish it wasn't so. They wish the prize would do the trick. Or a new pill, a miracle, anything. It would help lighten the pressure on them from pollution fighters.

Pulp mills all over the world stink. It's deep in the processing liquor which is their blood. Come along on a safari to the kraft mill at Crofton, near Duncan, to find out where the smell comes from, and why, and what's in the wind for tomorrow.

It's an overwhelming experience. You can get choked on the details, statistics, the chemistry of it before getting a close-up whiff of the evil odor itself. It you're a poor boob who can just recall Na stands for Sodium, you're in trouble early.

•

The first big problem, it seems, is your nose. People can detect the rotten-egg stench of sulphur compounds from the mill's stacks when they are as faint as five parts per billion in the air, explains mill manager Bill Reynolds.

It doesn't help that concentration and effect are logarithmic, meaning if the pollutants double, they smell maybe 10 times as bad.

We may be in the scientific 70s but there isn't a machine yet which can come close to the sensitivity of the nose.

Changing logs into paper involves cooking wood chips in such things as Sodium Hydroxide and Sodium Sulphide, Reynolds explains. This makes the glue holding the fibres together let go.

The idea then is to clean up the chemicals used in the cooking so they can be used again—and again—and again.

That's good economics. But smelly business, as it turns out.

The Crofton mill is like a snorting, wheezing giant, venting through not one but seven stacks as it chews, swallows, digests (belching every 30 minutes) and finally delivers the goods called kraft.

"Wood chemistry is very complicated," says Deryk Hill, assistant technical superintendent, "because wood is complicated chemically."

Up on top of the batch digesters he proves it, tracing the maze of fat black pipes and tanks where gases and pulp and black liquor go and what they do when they get there.

The digesters are connected to the blow tanks and the blow tanks are connected to the accumulater and the accumulater's connected to the oxidation towers ... (chorus: now hear the word of the Lord ...).

There are number of things which happen along the way to scrub the stink out of the gases. But the mill men are frank to admit these processes are first and foremost to recover the chemicals and heat for re-cycling.

Actually, the mill's oxidation towers are about 95 per cent effective in cleaning out the sulphur compounds, Reynolds says.

•

After oxidation comes an evaporation stage and there's a chimney here that's offending, says Hill.

Late in the recovery process waste products are burned from the black liquor in huge fiery furnaces and the big stack from these furnaces, the one you can see miles away, is perhaps guiltiest of all.

Hill suggests pollution from it might be reduced by altering the oxygen flow in the furnaces. But this would cost the mill something in effectiveness.

One of the steps in reconstituting the liquor involves treating it with lime. The lime in turn is burned to be re-used and there's another chimney on the lime kiln. Tests have shown it is not guilty.

So how does it all add up.

The Crofton mill, is still at the stage of trying to find out which stacks are offending and how much.

The mill men say they have to know where and how big the problem is before they can work on what to do about it.

So they have installed devices to sample the gases at eight points and an expensive machine (about $20,000 counting installation) to measure the pollutants.

•

The government's $250,000 prize hints there is a single cure which some clever chemist, sufficiently inspired by the golden carrot, will come up with some day.

The men at the mill say that just isn't so. There are too many points where air pollution is generated for one solution to meet them all. Different problems at each. And there may be more than one answer for any one of them.

It's going to make the pie a hard one to cut up — if it ever is cut up.

Most mills, along with the provincial government, support B.C. Research, an independent agency based in Vancouver which has worked on mill air pollution for about 12 years now.

Heading its division of applied chemistry is Dr. Alan McIntyre, who estimates that $75,000 to $100,000 is being spent annually on this problem in recent years.

•

The agency's projects fall into three categories: measuring experiments (they have their own under way at Crofton), chemical studies to lab prove ideas and then the engineering on the mill site to put the proven idea to work.

The pulping industry is about where the oil industry was 10 to 15 years ago with air pollution, says McIntyre. Gradual technical improvements has erased most of the foul air around oil operations.

That's what he predicts will happen at the pulp mills — improvement spaced over the next decade and more. Old mills require periodic renovating and that's when the new techniques to counter the smell will be installed.

New pulp mills have got the message and are installing the latest anti-pollution measures when the plants are built.

"This kind of thing has in the past sometimes brought forward useful ideas," McIntyre says of the bit prize.

He sounds as though he isn't holding his breath.

TWIN PLUMES of mostly steam from oxidation towers at Crofton mill actually produce little of the characteristic rotten-egg smell of the kraft mill. But the little stack in the background in mid-picture spouting less fumes is guilty. An experimental type of oxidation tower, it has proved effective at oxidizing but it doesn't absorb pollutants.

Motor Vehicle Testing To Remain Compulsory

The B.C. government has no intention of following the lead of Alberta in putting motor vehicle testing on a voluntary basis, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said today.

"I think it's performing an essential service," Peterson said of the provincial testing program operating in Victoria and Richmond and soon to get under way in Burnaby.

Ray Hadfield, superintendent of motor vehicles, said he understands the Alberta program ran into trouble with unmanagably long lineups resulting from its system of deadlines for vehicle inspection.

B. C. uses a system of sending notices to people who pass their inspection deadlines which are spread fairly evenly throughout the year,

It is understood the Alberta system operates on a deadline for each vehicle year which tended to cause long lineups at the last moment for several times a year.

The rejection rate for vehicles at the McKenzie Avenue inspection station was 37 per cent in 1969, said R. G. Whitlock, chief of motor vehicle inspection.

MORE WARNINGS

The comparative figure for the first six months of operation in 1968 was 38.9 per cent but Whitlock said that there were more warnings in the initial stages when testing was planned for every six months.

When the frequency of inspection was changed to once a year, there was an increase in required repairs and a drop in warnings, which suggests that the program resulted in a definite improvement in vehicle safety in a year and a half.

MORE REASON

Hadfield said the percentage of rejection is not in itself a reason for putting inspection on a voluntary basis. The better the record of successful inspections the more argument there is for keeping the program compulsory, he suggested.

"If a good percentage of vehicles pass the first time, of course that's the way we want it," he said. It means people are preparing for their inspections by keeping the car in safe working condition, he added.

Students to Rest As Teachers Talk

Friday is a holiday for students in B.C. public schools, but teachers will spend the day looking at the education system and discussing ways to change it.

Teachers from Sooke and Saanich peninsula districts will go to Parksville to join colleagues from points north in the southern Vancouver Island convention.

At the University of Victoria, under the theme Humanizing Education, several well-known educators will address Greater Victoria teachers.

ALIENATION OF YOUTH

Dr. David Chabassol, Uvic educational psychologist, will speak on Alienation of Youth.

Dr. John Downing, recently appointed professor of education at Uvic and best known for his work in development of the initial teaching alphabet, will speak on Language Arts and the British Primary School Revolution.

Other speakers:

Ian Cowan, principal, North Delta secondary, Humanizing Education for the Non-Academic Student.

Dr. Arthur Kratzman, Uvic, Personalization of Learning.

Andy Soles, principal, Selkirk College, Castlegar, The Regional College as a Community Resource.

Dr. Charles Galloway, Uvic, Learning Theory and Human Relations of From Rats to Kids.

FOUR-WAY TALK

William H. Wallin, Las Vegas elementary principal, will speak on the convention theme.

In a panel to include members of the school board, department of education, parent-teacher association and teachers will discuss Curriculum Planning: Whose Responsibility?

A second panel, entitled After School — What? will include representatives of business and labor who will talk about what happens to youngsters after they leave the school system.

600 SOLDIERS TO FLY AWAY

By midnight tonight an advance force of 50 officers and men of the First Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, an armored personnel carrier, and 15 vehicles, ranging from jeeps to 2½-ton trucks will be airborne for Norway.

Five Hercules and one Yukon aircraft began a six-day airlift this afternoon that will take 600 officers and men, and more than 80 vehicles to Norway for NATO exercises in that country's northland.

Ex-Hotelman Dies On Southern Trip

Max Zabel, well-known Victoria businessman and proprietor of the Dominion Hotel for many years, died suddenly Sunday while vacationing at Oakland, California, with Mrs. Zazel. He was 78.

The body is being returned to Victoria today and it is expected funeral services will be held at McCall Brothers' chapel Thursday at 2 p.m.

Born in Washington state, Max Zabel came to Victoria in 1945 intending to retire. Instead he bought the Dominion Hotel and operated it successfully until 1964 when he sold out to Norman Loomer.

Zabel attended high school in Spokane and at 18 launched out as a real estate salesman. Later he bought a 16-acre homestead in the Peace River country and worked the land himself.

He shipped in cows from Edmonton, driving them the last 30 miles from the end of rail and selling them to ranchers. Then he acquired the dealership for a line of cars, trucks and farm implements and operated the business for 29 years.

He is survived by the widow, two sons, Jack and Mark, Victoria, and a daughter, Mrs. Carolyn Weldon, Victoria.

City Woman Serious After Crash

A Victoria woman, Mrs. Helen Mitchell, is in serious condition in St. Joseph's Hospital after a three-car collision at Chemainus River Road and the Trans Canada Highway Saturday night.

Police said a car driven by Clarence Cooper, about 60, of 1761 Pembroke attempted to pass a car driven by Francis Robert Crabbe, 26, of 2856 Fifth in which Mrs. Mitchell was a passenger.

Cooper's car then collided with an oncoming car driven by Greg Leonard Koffski of Duncan.

Six persons were sent to hospital, including Koffski and his two passengers, a Crofton woman and her four-year-old daughter.

MAN CHARGED IN STABBING

A man was to appear in court this afternoon charged with attempted murder following a stabbing incident in Saanich over the weekend.

Donald Semeniuk is in "fairly good" condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with stomach wounds.

He was admitted to the hospital early Sunday morning.

Family Left Homeless By Flash Fire

Fire destroyed a two-storey frame house at 1385 May Street this morning.

The owners, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred A. Corbin, were out and six of their children were at Sir James Douglas School nearby.

Doug Guyatt, who lives next door, saw smoke pouring from several windows soon after 9 a.m. and called firemen.

GARDEN HOSE

"I then got out the garden hose and played it on a car that was parked close to the side of the house," said Guyatt.

"I couldn't move the car as it was locked."

A motor home was parked alongside the car, but was not damaged.

Firemen entered the blazing house, believed to be more than 50 years old, and searched for occupants.

They moved some of the furniture into the front garden. It was fairly new but badly burned. In less than half an hour they had the fire under control.

Neighbors said Mr. and Mrs. Corbin had lived in the house less than a year and had renovated most of the rooms, installing new kitchen fixtures and some new furniture.

W. A. Corbin is proprietor of the firm of W. A. Corbin and Sons, floor layers, and operated the business from his house.

Doctors Back Abortion Reform Victoria Survey Shows

A large majority of local doctors favor liberalization of Canada's abortion laws, according to a recent survey.

Results of the survey were announced today by Victoria Abortion Committee, a newly-formed group whose members recently organized a public forum on the abortion question.

Of 184 questionnaires sent to general practitioners, psychiatrists interns, obstetricians and gynecologists, 114 were returned.

Ninety-two medical men said they would like to make changes "... varying from liberalizing present laws to abolishing the legislation entirely and leaving the decision to women and doctors," said a statement prepared by the abortion committee.

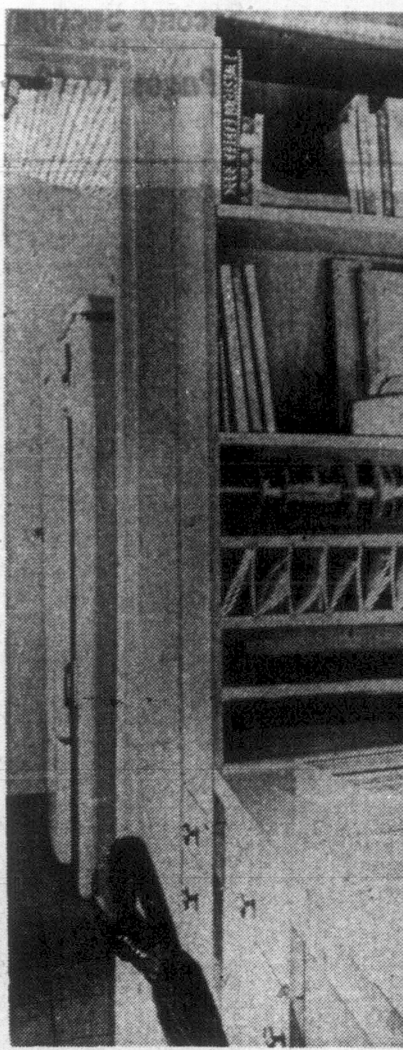
Twenty-two doctors indicated they want no change in present abortion laws.

Spokesman for the committee is Mrs. Melba Harwood, 2066 Frederick Norris.

She said the group intends to campaign for liberalization of laws relating to termination of pregnancy by pursuing any lawful method.

Public meetings will be held to educate people on the need for new legislation. Petitions will be sent to MPs and MLAs.

Anyone over 18 can join the committee. A general meeting is planned for the end of March.



There are days when it takes ages to find the bills to be paid or the pink ribbon for a gift. A time saver is this unused corner of the kitchen which serves as a communication centre with phone, paper, pencil and other paraphenalia readily available. Clutter Corner Organized

When it is time to pay your bills, write a thank-you note or gift-wrap a package, do you hunt for 15 minutes before you can find the items you need?

That's easy to do when one drawer holds everything in a jumbled heap. And if you have no centre for these things, such as a desk, you waste even more precious minutes.

Here is one woman's answer to the situation: organization. The desk comes first. Located in the kitchen, tucked under the window in space otherwise wasted, the desk provides a communication centre, both oral and written, near the telephone and with plenty of drawers for stationery supplies and records.

While waiting for vegetables to come to a boil, Mrs. Homemaker can dash off a cheque or two.

More than that, though, is the space utilized along the side, space normally overlooked. Which proves you should look at all empty wall areas with a speculative eye as to its possibilities.

Shelves fill the eight-inch-deep space, and the adjustable hardware makes it easy to place the shelves to accommodate varying recipe book heights.

The three lower spaces, though, show ingenuity. In the bottom space, a dowel holds a thick roll of gift-wrapping paper. Next come pigeon holes for letters and bills.

The third space has a quarter-inch dowell on which are colorful ribbon spools, the dowel held by a curved notch carved out of an upright 1'x4".

Everything is out of the way, but instantly available.

SEW SIMPLE

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Eunice,

I'm from the old school of dressmaking when we were taught to always pull threads to be sure the grain line is even before cutting a garment. Recently, I sent away for some fabric and found that if I tried to cut it with the grain line, the print wouldn't match anywhere. What is your opinion? — Mrs. K. B. J.

Dear Mrs. K. B. J.:

I don't want to completely throw out the importance of grain line, but I will tell you that with the finishes that are applied to most fabrics today, the fabric becomes stable. I would not get too excited about this.

If the fabric was a plaid or a woven horizontal pattern, naturally, it would matter very much. This couldn't be cut until it was straightened.

I had the impression that uneven fabric was woven wrong. Since then I have learned that it can only be woven one way. The warp and the woof threads can only be woven vertically and horizontally to each other.

The fabric can be woven perfectly and still the print will be uneven. This is due to the way the fabric has been printed or finished. It is usually more important to match the print, rather than the grain line. If the fabric is of good quality with today's finishes, I'm sure you won't have trouble with the way the garments hang.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Bachelor Dreaming

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 42-year-old man who has dated many women, but I never married. I've been accused of being too "particular." Perhaps I was, but now the time has come when I would really like to settle down and marry.

Being a normal man, I spent years dreaming about my "ideal wife" — one who would possess all the qualities men want in a wife: beauty, intelligence, charm, character, etc.

I recently re-met an old schoolmate. She is now a young widow. We seem very much "in tune" with each other, and she has all the qualifications I want in a wife, but one — beauty. And heaven forgive me, but in this department she fails — miserably.

I keep telling myself that beauty is only skin deep, that people grow old and lose their looks, that charm and character endure forever.

I know I could admire and respect this woman, and even care for her deeply, but could I really "love" her? I tell myself that she can't help what she was born with — or without, and it is childish of me to place so much importance on something so superficial as "looks." But would a marriage which offers everything else eventually overcome this idiotic dream of having a beautiful wife? What is wrong with me? Dreamer

DEAR DREAMER: I think you don't really want to get married. Knowing nothing of what you have to offer, I think you're expecting too much.

To each his own, but if "beauty," the physical kind, is all that important to you, don't marry a woman who "fails miserably" in that department. But let me warn you, a man doesn't know what "hell" is until he marries a woman who has beauty and nothing else.

DEAR ABBY: This letter is in response to your recent reply to GRANDPARENTS, wherein they were denied visitation rights to their grandchildren by their former daughter-in-law. Your response to them was, in part, "But there are no 'rights' for grandparents, and your former daughter-in-law is now holding all the trumps."

I graciously beg to differ with you, Beautiful, but in our fair state of California, under California Civil Code, Section 4601 (which went into effect January 1, 1970), it is within the discretion of the court and if the court deems it advisable for all concerned ". . . any other person saving interest in the welfare of the child . . ." may obtain legal visitation rights.

Let's hope GRANDPARENTS live in California, eh! Very truly yours, W. D. M. In San Diego

DEAR W. D. M. Thank you for your very informative letter. I was using "last year's" rules, whereby the ex-daughter-in-law was indeed holding all the trumps. This year, the grandparents get a new deal. Hooray for California!

DEAR ABBY: Please rush this into print for the grandparents who were heartbroken because their ex-daughter-in-law wouldn't let them see their own grandchildren:

Dear Grandparents,

Since you don't live in California, you have no legal right to see your grandchildren, so, as Abby says, "Your ex-daughter-in-law is holding all the trumps."

Well, in that case, you have no moral responsibilities while you're living, or leave it to someone who appreciates you. How's that for a trump? Money Talks

CONFIDENTIAL TO THE STINKER IN CHALMETTE, LA.: "I want you to put oil in the car for me," constitutes an "order." Had you said, "Will you please put oil in the car for me," — that would have been a request. Now, go apologize to your husband.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Sour Cream Tops Potato Pancakes

Herbed potato pancakes, or latkes, are an interesting variation on a pancake theme. Try them as an accompaniment for chicken and other poultry dishes or topped with sour cream or applesauce.

This recipe was created and tested by home economist Claire Friefeld.

LATKES

2 eggs
3 cups grated potatoes (about 4 medium potatoes)
⅓ cup grated onion
3 tbsp. flour
1½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. parsley flakes
½ tsp. rosemary leaves
¼ tsp. ground sage
¼ tsp. pepper
Peanut oil

Beat eggs until light and foamy. Stir in grated potatoes, grated onion, flour, seasonings and herbs until thoroughly blended.

Heat about ⅛ to ¼-inch depth of peanut oil in large heavy skillet. For each pancake, drop about ¼ cup potato mixture into hot oil. Fry on each side until golden brown. Add peanut oil to pan as needed to keep proper depth for frying. Drain pancakes on paper towels.

Serve hot. Makes about 16 pancakes.

Crusader Jailed, Protest Vigil Held

BOSTON (UPI) — Scores of persons conducted a candlelight vigil outside the Charles Street Jail Friday night in protest against laws that sent birth control crusader William Baird to the prison for three months.

Baird began serving the sentence Friday after being convicted of illegally dispensing a birth control device to an unmarried woman two years ago.

At the same time, four Boston clergymen and a prominent city lawyer petitioned Gov. Francis W. Sargent to pardon Baird, the father of four.

"We and millions of others are devastated by the disregard for the needs of the people of this century and the next which this sentence shows, for an act done out of regard for them," the petition said.

It said that the results of overpopulation are "to be far more feared than indiscretion in the use of devices and matters available in practically every retail dispenser of remedies in this commonwealth."

The petition criticized the state's law forbidding "crimes against chastity" on the ground "the state has no right to intrude on private affairs and citizens have the right to determine their own destinies."

It was signed by Rev. Robert Drainan, dean of Boston College Law School; Rev. Church in Roxbury; the Rev. George Sphneola, St. Francis de Salle Church in Roxbury; Rev. John Colhan of All Saints Parish in Roxbury, and attorney William P. Homans, Jr.

Baird surrendered to authorities at the jail, accompanied by his wife and about 50 supporters. A Parents' Aid Society van used in disseminating birth control information cruised through the nearby Beacon Hill section draped in black crepe paper in mourning for the "jailing."

"You can jail my body but you'll never destroy my fight for the right of all people to birth control help," Biard said on entering the prison.

Fashion Course Emphasizes Rules Are Out

MONTREAL (CP) — Young and chic Janice Buxton says "rules are out, quite out" in her course on mod fashions at the YWCA.

In fact, the only rule to remember about fashion is that there aren't any rules.

She wants to teach her students "to experiment with fashion" and develop their own individuality. "Too many girls are scared of fashion and afraid to try new wild styles."

As creative co-ordinator for J. R. McCann Promotions and a former fashion copywriter, Janice has had plenty of opportunities to work with clothes—to see what they can and can't do for a woman.

For example, although she personally is "completely sick, sick of chain belts," Janice agrees that any woman who really loves them "is of course free to go on wearing them as long as she likes."

JOB HAS ADVANTAGES

However, once shoppers see "racks and racks of any item in department stores, that item is on its way out."

Janice, a University of Alberta graduate, realizes her job offers advantages other girls don't enjoy.

"Because of my job I can wear wilder clothes to the office than the average girl, but I believe that even girls who work in large conservative companies can enjoy the fun of new fashion."

She tries to involve the students, mostly between the ages of 20 and 30, by getting them to find eight new ways to tie a scarf or four ways to fit an old dress with accessories to give it a new look.

What's the best way to economize on clothes? Buy "only what you really love."

The biggest mistake is "to over-spend on big items."

"You have to think of the whole outfit. The grooviest dress demands special shoes and it is useless to have the dress and no money for shoes."

Budget-conscious women should consider bringing old, but still loved, dresses up to date. "The new thing is to buy small."

Like a lot of others her age, Janice got a maxi this fall—bright red, trimmed, buttoned and belted.

"I still love it but I have discovered that the maxi is not for our climate. It gets dirty and when you are loaded down with a bag, a paper, a key and some parcels, there is no way, but no way to walk upstairs with a maxi."

Determined not to let style get the best of her, Janice plans to chop off the bottom of her maxi and "turn it into a midi."

She thinks the real future of maxis lies "in the reversible idea with a length of skirt which goes on or comes off with a zipper."

Island Boats Seek Show Stardom

Two locally-built and designed boats will make their bid for stardom when Canada's biggest boat show is launched Friday in Vancouver's Pacific National Exhibition grounds.

They'll be on stage at the 10-day fifth annual Vancouver International Boat, Trailer and Sport Show.

Both will be making their debut at the event which last year drew an attendance of 147,000.

The first is a sprightly 37-foot power cruiser, the Challenger 37, which has a cruising speed of 17 knots and can go full out at either 20 or 26 knots, depending on whether she's powered by diesel or gasoline.

She's the latest design to come off the planning board at Canoe Cove Marina Ltd. and is the brainchild of the firm's chief designer and engineer, Mike Hitchcox.

Made of fibreglass, her cabin is lavishly finished in teak. She sleeps eight.

The Challenger 37 went into production a year ago. Since then she's brought in 25 orders and $1,000,000 for the local shipyard.

The other "ingenue" is a 26-foot sloop, the latest in the Haida line, designed by Ray Richards and built by Mayhew and Strutt.

On her, the original lines have been changed, raising the cabin to give more headroom.

The Haidas hit the production line in 1966. Since then, 68 have joined boating circles in Victoria, Vancouver, Tacoma and Seattle, as well as one that was shipped by freighter to Honolulu.

More than 200 dealers have rented 600 booths, covering an area of more than 200,000 square feet, housed in five buildings.

Something new has been added to this year's production with the inclusion of a fashion show featuring boating and outdoor wear.

Model Teddi Smith, five times cover girl for Playboy Magazine, will be there to convince women crew members that a galley-hand can still look gorgeous.

The show will offer everything from cartop dinghies to house boats. The latest in outboards from 1½ to 135 horse-power will be on display, as well as the largest gas and diesel inboards and stern drive power units.

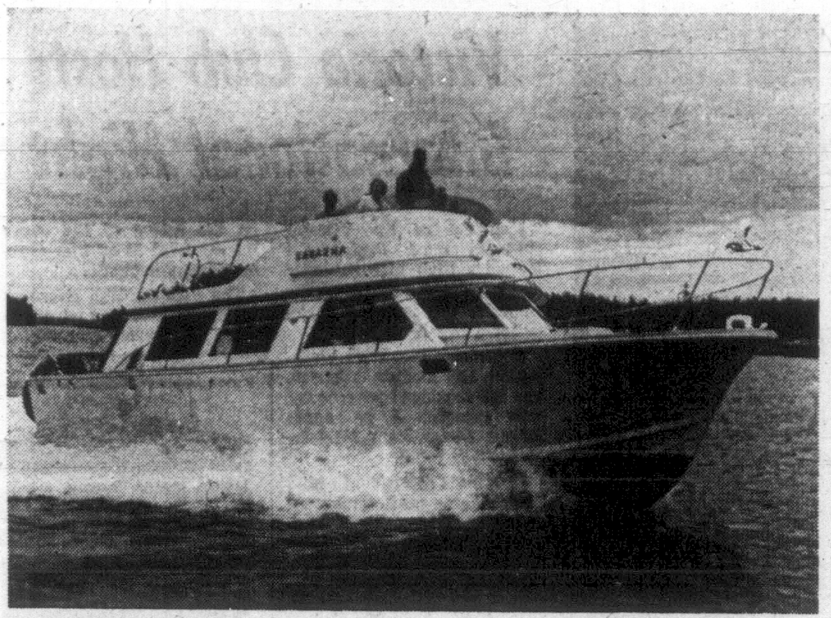
Avid boaters with a weakness for electronic gear will be able to drool over the latest direction finders, a wide range of radar depth sounders, radio telephones and radio equipment.

Parting with the pennies will be pleasant — almost — when choosing from a great variety of new gadgets and gofasts.

There will also be a stage show which includes Leigh and Nancy Heisinger in their "Loop of Death."

The show will run from Friday to March 8.

Show hours are 6 to 11 p.m. weekdays, 1 to 11 p.m. Saturdays and 1 to 7 p.m. Sundays.



SEA-MINDED STARLET at the coming Vancouver International bat, trailer and sport show, the Challenger 37 goes through her pre-show paces.

The Show Goes On

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Excuse me, I want to check the news-stand," Huntington Hartford said as he left the coffee shop of the Beverly Hills Hotel.

In his latest venture—in the publishing field—he is the editor-in-chief and main backer of a magazine, Show.

"They've sold out, second time," he said gleefully. "I'll have to see that they get another hundred." He made a note for the circulation manager.

It may seem odd for a man with one of the largest fortunes (A. and P.) in North America to concern himself with the sale of magazine copies. But Show has become a cause with him.

He published it once before. It failed. Although well-remembered as a tasteful journal of the arts, it became too expensive a hobby.

SOVEREIGN RULE ENDS IN GUYANA

GEORGEOTMN (AP) — The little South American nation of Guyana became the 11th republic in the British Commonwealth at midnight Sunday night with fireworks, equestrian displays and precision marching.

A crowd of 25,000 assembled, but there was little excitement.

The flag of the British governor-general was replaced by Guyana's green, yellow, red, black and white standard, and the Queen was recognized as the head of the Commonwealth rather than Guyana's sovereign.

HOME GARDEN

Grouping Makes Beautiful Picture

By HILDA BEASTALL

We have long recommended the grouping of several of one kind of plant to create a more luxurious garden picture. When herbaceous perennials are involved, there are some which make excellent plants if newly propagated every third year from base cuttings.

Hilda

The same method is used to increase a choice variety of which you may have purchased only one plant.

This cutting method of propagation — very much the same as used with chrysanthemums — is especially good when growing perennial asters, or Michaelmas-daisies as some gardeners know them.

Our finest plants and best flowers are always obtained the years that we grew our new perennial aster stock by the cutting method.

In February and March, as each variety starts making new growth at the base, the shoots are removed when two inches high and set into a sand-peat mixture over a little screened compost.

For a quantity of cuttings, use a flat for each variety; for a half dozen or so of a variety, put each lot into a separate four-inch pot and be sure to label each pot with variety name.

Unlike chrysanthemum cuttings, the asters do not require heat for rooting. They will do quite well in a covered coldframe, in a slightly heated greenhouse with ventilation, or in an unheated sunroom. Even putting the flat of cuttings by a south facing wall and inverting another flat over it at night will work in a little longer time.

Most varieties will root in two weeks or so, and then must be gradually hardened to outdoor conditions and planted into well composted soil, either a foot apart temporarily, or in places where they are to bloom in fall.

The reason for the better growth and flowering on cutting-grown perennial asters over the usual method of simple division, is similar to that given for the same treatement of chrysanthemums — the roots become quite woody in a year's growth and not able to readily translocate sufficient food to the top growth.

A newly rooted cutting rapidly makes a large root system, fresh and young in all its parts, capable of using all available food supplies for the benefit of the stems, leaves and flowers.

Cuttings taken this month and next, grown in a moisture-retentive, humus-rich soil, will produce show table specimen spikes of Michaelmas-daisies, or perennial asters, by September show time.

They will also make a magnificent display in your garden.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

Two of the world's greatest players are Terrence Reese and Boris Schapiro, both of London, England. An example of their skill can be evidenced in the deal presented today. It arose in the European Championships held in Montreux, Switzerland, in 1954. Reese was sitting in the South seat.

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♣	Pass	1♡	Pass
2♡	Pass	4♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ♡.

North's raise to two hearts may appear to be "un-American," but as Reese and Schapiro play it, a direct raise of partner's original response might well be made on only three trumps. In standard American bidding, most players, holding the North hand, would have chosen to rebid two clubs. Had this been done, South might have rebid three no trump, with dire consequences.

Had Reese captured the opening trump lead, and then drawn three rounds of trumps in the hope that the adversely held trumps were divided 3-3, he would have gone down. In this case, upon perceiving that East still retained the high jack of trumps, South would have started to run dummy's clubs, in an attempt to get rid of one of his losing diamonds. As is evident, East would have ruffed the third club lead. The defenders would then have made three diamond tricks.

But Reese's primary concern was to make his contract. And so, appreciating that when six of a suit are outstanding, they do not figure to be divided 3-3, he made the very simple play of allowing West's ten of trumps to capture the opening lead.

From this point on, Reese's sailing was smooth. At trick two, West shifted to the queen of spades, which was taken by South's ace (no other lead by West, at trick two, could have hurt declarer). A trump was led next to the board's queen, after which the ace and king of trumps gathered in East's remaining pieces. When play had ended, Reese had made two spades, three hearts; and five clubs.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Boxing Champion Became Minister

By BOB BOWMAN

It may seem unusual to include a sports story in these glimpses of history, but Canadian boxer Tommy Burns did make history on this day in 1906 by winning the heavyweight championship of the world.

Burns' real name was Noah Brusso and he was born at Hanover, Ontario. He was five feet seven inches tall and usually weighed about 170 pounds in the ring, yet he fought as a heavyweight and got to the top. Although he often fought men who were 30 or even 60 pounds heavier, one of his advantages was an extraordinary reach of 74½ inches.

Burns won the world's heavyweight title on February 23, 1906, by defeating Marvin Hart in a 20-round fight at Los Angeles. He was immediately challenged by a number of boxers and fought every one of them successfully until he was defeated by huge Jack Johnson in Australia in 1908. Johnson was so big and strong that Burns could not land a blow and police stopped the fight in the 14th round to save him from further punishment.

Burns went on fighting after he lost the title and was successful in bouts at Calgary, Saskatoon, and Prince Rupert. He went over to Britain when he was 40 years old and was defeated by Joe Beckett.. Then he retired and went to live in Vancouver where he became a church minister until his death in 1954. When the death notice appeared in the newspapers, few people knew that the great boxer had been living and working quietly in their midst for years.

Tommy Burns really transformed professional boxing and brought it into the big money class. He earned about $200,000 during his career. He never had a trainer or manager but looked after his own affairs. He wrote a book about boxing, and his methods of physical training were followed by athletes in many branches of sport.

Other events on February 23:

1770—Samuel Hearne began second journey to Arctic from Hudson Bay.

1879—First issue of La Patrie, Montreal newspaper.

1901 — Manitoba prohibition law was declared nul and void.

1909—J. A. D. McCurdy made first airplane flight in British Commonwealth at Baddeck, Nova Scotia.

1914—Fraser River rock slide nearly destroyed salmon industry.

1929—George Haldeman flew from Windsor, Ontario, to Cuba in 12 hours, 56 minutes.

Ann watched as her brother gathered up his money. "Loan me two dimes," she said. "You've got a dollar more than me."

"So what?" Mike grinned. "If I did, you would have half what I have now."

How much did he have?

Birth Rate Rising

TAIPEH (AP)—The government announced a birth control program to cut Formosa's population growth rate to less than 2 per cent a year. The already dense population now is rising by 2.4 per cent annually, a spokesman said.

Bad Breath Caused By Strong Emotions

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Most of the really bad breaths I have encountered in half a century of practice were obviously due to strong and very distressing emotions. The worst bad breath I ever noticed came from the mouth of a middle-aged, married Latin American woman who had travelled 1,000 miles to consult me about what she called her "paralysed arm." Actually, I saw at a glance that it was not paralysed. She was holding it rigidly across the front of her chest — as only a hysterical woman would do. No injury to a nerve could have caused her trouble.

When I asked her, "Whom are you punishing with this illness of yours?"

She burst out angrily, "My doctor at home made me very angry, and I'll show everyone in town what he did to me."

In a few minutes I talked the woman into using her arm again. My impression was that she was under tremendous nervous pressure, wondering how I would react to her problem. When she found that I was friendy and that my understanding of the situation was that her nerves had played a mean trick on her, and I did not blame her in any way, she calmed down.

★ ★ ★

The great tension went out of her face and she joked and laughed with me. What interested me much was that the next day, when she came in without the slightest anxiety to say good-bye, her breath was perfectly sweet.

I was much impressed and learned much years ago when I drove in an automobile a mile or more down a steep road in the California Sierras. We went over a 10,000 foot high pass and down along the side of a precipice. One of the women in the car who normally has a perfectly sweet breath got a very bad breath as we went down that road to about 5,000 feet, where we hit a level highway. There, in a minute her breath was sweet, when she was no longer terrified.

I remember one of Hollywood's great movie queens who said she had a sweet breath until a man started to make love to her, and then her breath became foul. I have had a number of such women come into my office, and naturally, they were much distressed over their sexual handicap.

★ ★ ★

It is hard to say exactly what the mechanism is. Years ago, Dr. Burrill B. Crohn, New York City, together with an associate, did research which showed that the odor can come up from the large bowel to the lungs by way of the blood. For instance, they would take garlic juice and put it into the large bowel, and soon the odor would be on the person's breath. And it could appear on the breath even if the person's gullet was completely obstructed by a tumor. This showed that the odor did not come up through the digestive tract. The remarkable fact is that within a few minutes after a great nervous tension or fear or anxiety is gone the bad breath can be gone.

Interesting is the comment of that Roman writer, Martial, that the prisoners, waiting in the Circus Maximum to be thrown to the lions, had very bad breaths.

Many elderly people have a bad breath, which I suspect is due to chemical changes in the body. A terrible breath can be due to a rare abscess in the lung.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

BEAUTY AND THE BRASS is in store for viewers tonight at 8 on Channels 2 and 6 when singer Rhonda Silver (above) joins Rob McConnell and the Boss Brass.

MOVIE TO WATCH this evening is an early one . . . 5:30 on Channel 12. Sailor of the King is a Second World War drama starring Michael Rennie, Jeffrey Hunter and Wendy Hiller. Two Allied ships are detailed to sink a German raider. In the attack one of the two is sunk and its only two survivors fall into the hands of the Germans.

BOSS BRASS. 8, Channels 2 and 6. Singer Rhonda Silver and organist-composer Doug Riley join Rob McConnell and the Boss Brass for a half-hour of big-band music.

MY WORLD AND WELCOME TO IT. 7:30, Channel 5. "The Fourth Estate." Cute show in which our put-upon hero, John Monroe, tangles with his own editor and the editor of a grammar school paper over a couple of rejected cartoons. The scenes between Monroe and his daughter, and most especially those with the sixth-grade editor who has a mind of his own, are little gems.

IT TAKES A THIEF. 7:30, Channels 4, 8. "Sing a Song of Murder." Interesting spy story, neatly constructed to give lovely Marilyn McCoo of the pop rock group, The Fifth Dimension, an acting showcase, and she's up to the task. The intricacies of the plot are endless, but Mundy and Marilyn make an unusual team as they try to piece the puzzle together with only one major clue—a three-chord finish on a recording. Marilyn and her Fifth Dimension buddies also get to sing a couple of songs along the way.

LAUGH-IN. 8, Channel 5. As a treat, everybody is allowed a line with guest Ringo Starr tonight. Arte's little old man and Gladys invite Ringo to their wedding, and guest Sheldon Leonard appears in the park ready to supply Arte with the little band of gold. Henry Gibson hijacks a plane over Cuba; a minister visits the Farkels; and the Pentagon earns the Fickle Finger of Fate Award for the third time.

HERE'S LUCY. 7, Channel 8; 8:30, Channel 7. Our redhead bosses Uncle Harry around for once, which should be good enough for Lucy's fans. The power switch comes from the discovery of an old, old promissory note owed to Lucy's family by Harry's side of the family, and the befuddled man can't pay off. Lucy takes over the business, and enjoys herself giving orders, something she excels at.

MONDAY NIGHT MOVIE. 8:30, Channel 4. "Teacher's Pet" (1958). (Repeat.) Dandy comedy with Clark Gable and Doris Day at their best. Clark's a hard'boiled city editor who becomes a student in Miss Day's journalism class, and the laughs come loud and often. The supporting cast is especially good, with Gig Young doing a whale of a job as a tipsy playboy. Fine fun.

CAROL BURNETT SHOW. 8:30, Channel 8; 10, Channels 7 and 12. Pat Carroll, a powerhouse, hooks up with Carol Burnett for sketches and soap opera tonight. The ladies flirt with golf instructor Lyle Waggoner, play Irish barmaids and compete as a couple of TV commercial actresses comparing credits while waiting to be auditioned. The soap opera chapter focuses on housewife Pat Carroll with a weight problem, who takes advice from best friend Burnett and divorce lawyer Harvey Korman. Harvey returns as a hypochondriac dealing with wife Carol, and guest Jack Jones handles the vocals.

BLACK JOURNAL. 9, Channel 9. This edition of the monthly journal is of special interest because of a segment on the origins of black history which took the series outside the confines of the United States for the first time, all the way to Ethiopia and the ancient ruins of Meroe. A fact of particular interest places the origin of black history before Western civilization in time. Other segments include a report on the dedication ceremonies of the opening of the Rev. Dr. Martin L. King Jr. Institute of Black Studies in Atlanta, Georgia; and the dedication of the William E. DuBois Park in New England.

TONIGHT'S MOVIES

8:30, Channel 13: Journey Into Light (1951 drama), Sterling Hayden, Viveca Lindfors, Thomas Mitchell.

AMONG METIS

No Starvation Found by Probers

SASKATOON (CP) — A four-man federal delegation sent to two Northern Saskatchewan communities to check reports that Metis families there were on the verge of starvation, announced Saturday that no proof of the allegations had been found.

The delegations, headed by Dr. Stanley Haidasz, Liberal MP for Toronto Parkdale, flew to Meadow Lake, 185 miles north of Saskatoon and from there to Buffalo Narrows, specifically seeking Metis who had claimed to be near starvation or given the names of others who were.

The investigation was ordered by federal health minister John Munro after Howard Adams of Saskatoon, president of the Metis Society of Saskatchewan, and two members of a society ad hoc committee charged Wednesday that 5,000 Metis in the province are near starvation. They blamed restrictive Canadian Wheat Board policies.

Within an hour of their return to Saskatoon the delegates ran into an open confrontation with Dr. Adams at a news conference.

Dr. Hisdasz told Dr. Adams that neither he nor other members of the delegation had seen any evidence of hunger or starvation in Meadow Lake or Buffalo Narrows, and suggested that if Dr. Adams had a list of needy Metis families, he should present it to provincial welfare authorities.

Dr. Haidasz said the delegation may have been hampered in its efforts to find starving Metis because Dr. Adams had refused to provide the list before the delegation left Saskatoon Saturday morning.

No Room

SASKATOON (CP) — Highways Minister Dave Boldt says there is no room in the Saskatchewan Liberal party for former provincial Progressive Conservative leader Martin Pederson.

Boldt was commenting Saturday on speculation he would not seek re-election in Rosthern constituency and that the Liberal nomination would be sought by Pederson.

Boldt said he would "bet my last dollar" Pederson would not be the next Liberal candidate in the riding.

Mild, Sunny On Prairies

Most of the Prairies continued to bask in record or near-record temperatures today following a sunny, mild weekend.

Southern regions of Alberta were experiencing temperatures in the 50s again with Calgary and Lethbridge around 55 degrees. Record for Feb. 23 in Calgary was 76 degrees in 1908.

In Saskatchewan, southern areas were also having it mild. Estevan and Weyburn had sunny skies and temperatures of 40.

Although Manitoba was sunny and warmer than usual no records were established. High today in Winnipeg was 35 but colder air is expected from the north by Tuesday morning.

Arab Commandos Machine-Gun Bus

American Tourist Dies in Attack

TIMES NEWS Services

JERUSALEM — Arab commandos attacked a bus carrying 37 Americans on a tour of Israeli-occupied Jordan today, killing one woman and injuring three others.

The bus, on a tour of Holy Land sites, was raked by machine-gun fire as it travelled near the village of Halhoul on the outskirts of Hebron.

A second bus in the tour escaped without being hit.

One of the wounded American women, Mrs. Tabea Damico of Atlantic City, N.J., told officials:

"We were driving along out of Hebron . . . when suddenly we were being shot at from all sides. We crawled under the seats for safety."

This new incident followed closely the suspected sabataging of an Israeli-bound Swissair jetliner in which 47 persons including 15 Israelis died Saturday.

The Swiss government today called for an aviation security conference as soon as possible and suggested it take place "on Swiss territory."

VALID VISAS

Switzerland also decided that all Arab nationals must have valid visas to enter the country and ordered stringent controls to prevent Palestine commandos from entering and using Arab passports.

As well, Switzerland has set out rigid police measures involving Arab nationals.

Meanwhile, in Amman, Jordan and Arab commando groups Sunday night reached a comprise agreement that appears to have ended the latest crisis between government and guerrillas in this Arab kingdom.

"The crisis is over," a member of the commando negotiating team reported. "We will be restrained in our actions but our movement will continue."

NEW REGULATIONS

The latest crisis between King Hussein's government and the Palestinian commandos started Feb. 10 when Hussein issued broad security regulations prohibiting carrying weapons in public, stockpiling of weapons and explosives, collecting money with arms and wearing uniforms for personal gain.

A commando spokesman indicated the guerrilas will discipline themselves and that the government security measures aimed at them will not be enforced. "We consider that the measures were never issued," he said.

When the measures were announced the guerrillas said they would not respect them and would resist any attempts to disarm them. In ensuing clashes between government troops and commandos at least 80 persons died.

Freight Mail Ban To Israel

LONDON (CP) — Eight European airlines temporarily banned freight or mail to Israel in a continent-wide security clampdown today. Passenger luggage for Middle East flights was opened at several airports.

Strengthened police details patrolled corridors and lobbies of air terminals in a search for possible saboteurs. Airline official and pilots' associations hastily called meetings to discuss security measures.

Stringent precautions were thrown around London's Heathrow Airport and senior officials of 53 airlines using the airport debated how to prevent more bomb blasts on Israel-bound planes.

Passenger baggage was searched and all travellers to Tel Aviv were asked to identify their luggage before it was stowed aboard flights for Israel. Eight Tel Aviv flights were scheduled out of Heathrow during the day, three of them direct.

Officials of the 53 airlines spent the morning discussing how to frustrate sabotage attempts following the crash Saturday of a Swiss jet flying to Tel Aviv. The four-engined Coronado came down near the Swiss-German border with a loss of 47 lives.

In London, British Overseas Airways Corp., and British European Airways banned freight to Israel. Other airlines with cargo bans included Air France, Swissair, Royal Dutch Airlines, Lufthansa of West Germany, Austrian Airlines and Sabena of Belgium.

In Switzerland, police and customs officials swarmed around passengers and parcels headed for the Middle East from Zurich and Geneva airports.

Danish police guarding Kastrup International Airport at Copenhagen were weighing whether to ask army help to protect Israel-bound flights.

At Reim Airport in Munich, Germany, where one person was killed in an attack on an Israeli El Al plane Feb. 10, police armed with automatic pistols guarded El Al passenger buses. Luggage of travellers for the Middle East was searched.

An El Al spokesman in Frankfurt said the company's airliners were under police surveillance and passenger lists were checked for suspicious names.

Passengers baggage was opened at Rome and El Al officers were under police guard around the clock.

Basil Edwards, administrative secretary of the International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations, said consultations were under way that could lead to a meeting of the federation's governing body on the security issue.

Pompidou Faces Protest in U.S.

Times News Services

PARIS — President Georges Pompidou left by air today for an official visit to the United States, amid fears of demonstrations, especially in New York, against France's pro-Arab policy in the Middle East.

French officials are confident he will receive complete cordiality from the Nixon administration, but they are reliably reported to be nervous over possible pro-Israel public demonstrations and a potential congressional boycott when he addresses a joint session in Washington Wednesday.

Congressional critics of France's Middle East policy predict that one-third to a half of the House of Representatives memebrship will join the boycott, but few if any senators are expected to.

DEATH PLUNGE from a Japan Airlines jet was caught on film by amateur photographer John Gilpin at Sydney, Ausralia, Sunday. Dead is Keith Sapsford, 14, who was running away.

He Ran Away to See the World; Plunged 200 Feet to His Death

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A 14-year-old who ran away to see the world fell 200 feet to his death from the wheel housing of a Japanese airliner Sunday.

C. M. Sapsford, university lecturer in industrial engineering, identified the child as his foster son Keith, 14.

"All my son wanted to do was to see the world," said Sapsford. "He had itchy feet. His determination to see how the rest of the world lives has cost him his life."

Sapsford said the boy had run away before, and he and his wife took him around the world in the hope the trip would satisfy him. But when they returned the child ran away again, and "we had no alternative but to send him to Boys' Town," the father said. "We thought he would straighten out."

Police said Keith disappeared from the institution on Saturday and was reported missing Sunday.

HID IN WHEEL WELL

Officials at the airport said they believed the boy climbed up the wheel of the Japan Air Lines jetliner several hours before the plane took off and hid in the empty wheel housing, probably on the 10-by-5-foot door to the compartment which is closed while the plane is on the ground and the wheels are down.

They thought that when the door was opened after the take-off so the wheel could be retracted, the child fell to his death.

Officials of the airline said that even if he had not fallen, Keith would have died within 90 minutes after the plane took off for Japan. They said he would have been crushed by the wheel when it was retracted, or would have been killed by the cold or by lack of oxygen.

Pacific Role Vision Expands

By JACK SCOTT

The missionary was out of a job this week, but could still hear the tambourines and the message of salvation.

Scott

Probably the one, legitimate, functioning little bit of olde England remaining in these parts, 48-year-old James McCrossan cleaned out his desk drawer at Victoria's Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped, where he'd just tendered his resignation, wondered aloud about where he'd go from here, and, characteristically, turned instantly to a longer-range vision of the future.

He's a brass-bold, self-confident man with patent leather hair, an ingratiating type sometimes billed in British music halls as "The Cheeky Chappy." A patina of London-acquired insouciance and London-acquired accent soften the image, but he's a hard-sell booster with tireless energy.

He has appalled and alienated the more conservative members of the Establishment as an unabashed promoter and a Johnny-come-lately (that worst of Victoria sins, it would appear), yet he carries right on gathering converts and gathering momentum as he goes.

Incredibly, some might say, his impact on a city subconsciously searching for identity has been pervasive and impressive.

In almost any conversation today with influential Victorians concerned for the future the phrase "Geneva of the Pacific" is sure to surface. It is Jim McCrossan's phrase, Jim McCrossan's idea and Jim McCrossan's passion. He puts it in typically extravagant terms.

"The aim should be to create the most pleasing, most civilized total environment in the world today," he says in those excessively precise, cultured tones, fixing his listener with a faith-healing gaze.

"We can shape here a remarkable city-region, one that stands as a great, prosperous, towering lighthouse on Canada's western shores, casting out across the broad Pacific a splendid signal of decency and civilized co-operation between nations and of rising hope in the hearts of millions."

It is the same kind of contagious persuasiveness with which McCrossan ran the flag up the pole for Quaker Oats, Spode China, Lyons' Tea, Procter and Gamble soaps and other products as a London advertising executive before moving west four years ago to become director of public relations for Goodwill Enterprises, the job he left last week.

"Geneva of the Pacific" is his catch-phrase. The Inter-

Victoria Economic Promotion Council, formed just five months ago, ("a grand strategy for Greater Victoria's future") is his instrument. "Project Inter-Vic", he says, now boasts a broad base of support including city, municipal, provincial and federal representation. "There's a steadily rising groundswell of interest," as he puts it.

Briefly — and McCrossan very seldom is — Project Inter-Vic would aim at attracting international bodies,

NEW HANOI DRIVE AWAITED IN LAOS

VIENTIANE (AP) — The North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces that recaptured the Plaine des Jarres may now be heading toward Muong Suoi, an important Laotian government position nine miles west of the plain, U.S. sources said today.

The sources reported a "light probing attack" during the night on the mountain outpost of Phou Kout, on the western edge of the plain 100 miles north of the capital and on the route to Muong Suoi.

The North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao captured Muong Suoi and held it for a short time last summer. T-28 bombers of the Laotian Air Force operate from a base there.

Tories Press Own Tax Plan

MONTREAL (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield has called all Canadians to unite in a fight to the finish against the federal government's white paper on tax reforms and has proposed that low-income groups be given tax rebates for economic assistance.

Stanfield told the annual congress of the Quebec wing of the Progressive Conservative party during the weekend that the federal government should provide $85,000,000 in tax rebates to help Canadians whom the Canada Economic Council considers poor.

He called on the Liberal government to show proof of good intent in its budget scheduled to be tabled next month "by providing income tax rebates for all families considered economically underprivileged."

Stanfield proposed a three-point plan for economic assistance:

- A reimbursement of 100 per cent of taxes paid by persons living in poverty, that is, families of two earning less than $3,000 a year or families of four earning less than $4,200;
- A reimbursement of 50 per cent of taxes paid by persons earning up to $200 more than those in the poverty category;
- A reimbursement of 25 per cent of taxes paid by persons earning $200 to $300 more than those living in poverty.

"This proposal would provide assistance . . . to about 1,500,000 taxpayers," Mr. Stanfield said.

He said changes proposed in the white paper tabled last fall by Finance Minister E. J. Benson would "impose a very heavy load on Canadian taxpayers and result in a serious blow to our economy."

Three Girls Jailed For Attacking Court

MONTREAL — Three McGill University students were each sentenced today to 20 days in jail for contempt of court in connection with the distribution of literature described as a "monstrous attack" on the judicial system.

Associate Chief Justice George S. Challies of Superior Court passed the sentence on the three girls who were arrested on the campus of Loyola College with about 150 copies of a newsletter called Student Front.

The newsletter contained an article entitled "Feb. 11 victims face a racist and corrupt court" — referring to the case of 10 West Indians currently facing trial in the $2,000,000 computer-wrecking incident at Sir George Williams University Feb. 11, 1969.

"There is no doubt whatsoever that this is a monstrous attack on the court," Mr. Justice Challies said in sentencing Sarah Humphrey, 21, Sarah Herrink, 19, and a 17-year-old girl whose name was ordered withheld.

DISMISSES CITATIONS

Earlier, he had dismissed contempt citations against three male students arrested when police raided the headquarters of the Montreal Student Front for People's Democratic Rights Friday night.

Seized in the raid were three typewriters and a photocopy machine believed used in the production of the newsletter.

A student occupation and subsequent violence at the Sir George Williams computer centre last year came in the wake of a university investigation into charges of racism against a biology professor.

The charges were later dismissed as groundless.

The trial of the 10 Negroes on charges arising from the incident is in its sixth week, with the defence preparing to produce its first witnesses.

Bus Plunge Kills Girl In Quebec

WATERVILLE, Que. (CP) — A 17-year-old girl was killed and at least 15 persons injured today when a Provincial Transport Co. bus plunged off a bridge into the Coaticook River near a power dam.

Provincial police identified the girl as Carole Dupuis of Beebe Junction, Que., but there were unconfirmed reports that up to four others of 35 passengers may have been killed.

A Hydro-Quebec work crew, going to a nearby powerhouse, said they say the bus hit a truck in a blowing snow storm, slide on the icy road through the concrete and steel guardrail, hit part of the dam below and plunge farther down a steep ravine.

BALES of raw rubber weighing 250 pounds each go in the other end of this machine, called a pie-cutter, and come out like ground steak for feeding into a mixer. Reform, GM Told WASHINGTON (AP) — An American consumer group has submitted proposals on auto safety, pollution control, and minority hiring for action at the May meeting of General Motors shareholders.

If GM accepts the six proposed resolutions, the group plans to mount a $60,000 campaign to appeal to the "citizen conscience" of the 1.3 million GM shareholders.

If GM rejects the resolutions, the consumer group plans to appeal to the Securities and Exchange Commission and possibly to the courts.

The GM campaign is the first undertaken by the fledgling Project on Corporate Responsibility, launched earlier this year with endorsement of consumer watchdog Ralph Nader.

In January, the project bought 12 shares of GM stock for about $800 and named three candidates for election to the GM board. They are conservationist Rene Dubos, consumer spokesman Betty Furness and a civil rights activist, Rev. Channing Phillips.

GM has about 287 million shares of common stock outstanding.

After the six proposals were announced at a news conference last week, Geoffrey Cowan, a director of the group, said in a letter to the GM secretary:

"It is time that General Motors acknowledges the massive social consequences of its decisions and permits the shareholders, as owners of the company, to participate in making these decisions."

GAVE SIX SUGGESTIONS

The six proposals are that:

- GM allot a fair proportion of its franchised new-car dealerships to minority owners, and increase its number of minority-group workers in managerial and skilled positions.
- GM monitor daily the environmental hazards to which employees are exposed in each GM plant and report results weekly to a workers' safety committee.
- GM warranties for cars and trucks produced after Jan. 1, 1971, commit the company to guarantee the vehicle for normal use for five years or 50,000 miles; to remedy manufacturing defects for the life of the vehicle, and to assume responsibility for loss of the use of the car or for personal injuries resulting from such defects.
- GM comply with U.S. federal vehicle emission standards before the 1975 model year if feasible.
- GM greatly increase its role in public mass transportation.

Anti-Knock Fuels To Be Knocked Out

By DAVID W. CHUTE

DETROIT (UPI) — The days of the high-compression, super-performance automobile engine seem numbered.

Demand for reduction of air pollution by autos means oil companies must get the lead out of their gasoline. Carmakers must reduce engine compression to accommodate lower octane fuel.

The cost to industry will be tremendous, and the cost of the new gasoline to motorists will go up from one to four cents per gallon.

General Motors said its 1971 cars will be powered by engines capable of operating on lead-free gasoline. The company said this development was its first step toward meeting air pollution controls due by mid-year.

Tetraethyl of lead has been used in gasoline to boost its so-called octane, or anti-knock rating, to around 100.

Aside from lead in the gas, there are three answers: Increase the volatility, or evaporating speed, of gas. That's out because this is the source of evaporative emissiom from gas tanks and fuel systems that by government order must also be reduced;

Use benzol, a form of benzine. But that is of little use at the high octane ratings. It wouldn't boost octanes enough;

Improving the chemical structure of gasoline's hydrocarbons at refineries. That means higher cost in the cracking process and also less gasoline from a given amoung of raw petroleum.

Auto makers also must reduce compression ratios because the resultant compromise in gas is some boost in octane for a lead-free gas but well below the octane rating for a leaded gas.

Quickest and cheapest way to reduce the compression ratio is by a redesigned head to provide more space above the pistons. And that seems to be in the works.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Rapeseed prices rallied sharply at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Nearby futures posted gains of up to 2¾ cents ingood volume exporter buying.

Flax was marginally lower in extremely light local and commission trade and no exporter interest, as U.S. markets were closed.

Oats and barley were steady near previous close levels in a light domestic shipper trade for eastern feeders.

Rye was fractionally lower in moderate scale down buying by exporters.

Over the weekend, confirmation was received of sale of 180,000 bushels of rapeseed and 20,000 bushels of flax to Japan.

Industrial Production Shows Gain

OTTAWA (CP) The Dominion Bureau of Statistics' industrial production index rose 1.4 per cent in December to bring the gain for 1969 to five per cent, the bureau has reported.

Based on 1961 output equalling 100, the index rose to 171.5 in December from 169.2 in November.

The index measures the output of manufacturing, mining, milling and oil wells, and electric power, gas and water utilities. These constitute nearly a third of all Canadian production, and are most seriously affected by cyclical swings in the economy.

The bureau said the index for the fourth quarter of 1969 was 1.8 per cent above the third quarter. Most of the December increase was in mining, where a strike in nickel mining led to strong gains.

Congo Copper Talks

KINSHASA (Reuters) — Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. of Canada is seeking copper exploration and exploitation rights in the Congolese state of Katanga, says the company's vice-chairman.

Geoffrey Mitchell has arrived in this Congolese capital and held meetings with government ministers.

He said the company is prepared to invest millions of dollars in the Congo, if justified. But he said the talks with the government were only preliminary.

The rights sought by the company cover an unexplored area, some of which is being sought by an Anglo-American consortium headed by the Templeman Co.

Falconbridge opened an office in Kinshasa last month. One of its subsidiaries already operates a tin mine in the state of Kivu.

Experts Up to Their Noses In War on Pulp Mill Smell

By DON VIPOND

That pungent perfume marking the pulp mill is not about to be expunged by scientists scrambling for Premier Bennett's $250,000 deodorant prize.

The mill men say that themselves. Sadly.

They leave the distinct impression they wish it wasn't so. They wish the prize would do the trick. Or a new pill, a miracle, anything. It would help lighten the pressure on them from pollution fighters.

Pulp mills all over the world stink. It's deep in the processing liquor which is their blood. Come along on a safari to the kraft mill at Crofton, near Duncan, to find out where the smell comes from, and why, and what's in the wind for tomorrow.

It's an overwhelming experience. You can get choked on the details, statistics, the chemistry of it before getting a close-up whiff of the evil odor itself. It you're a poor boob who can just recall Na stands for Sodium, you're in trouble early.

•

The first big problem, it seems, is your nose. People can detect the rotten-egg stench of sulphur compounds from the mill's stacks when they are as faint as five parts per billion in the air, explains mill manager Bill Reynolds.

It doesn't help that concentration and effect are logarithmic, meaning if the pollutants double, they smell maybe 10 times as bad.

We may be in the scientific 70s but there isn't a machine yet which can come close to the sensitivity of the nose.

Changing logs into paper involves cooking wood chips in such things as Sodium Hydroxide and Sodium Sulphide, Reynolds explains. This makes the glue holding the fibres together let go.

The idea then is to clean up the chemicals used in the cooking so they can be used again—and again—and again.

That's good economics. But smelly business, as it turns out.

The Crofton mill is like a snorting, wheezing giant, venting through not one but seven stacks as it chews, swallows, digests (belshing every 30 minutes) and finally delivers the goods called kraft.

"Wood chemistry is very complicated," says Deryk Hill, assistant technical superintendent, "because wood is complicated chemically."

Up on top of the batch digesters he proves it, tracing the maze of fat black pipes and tanks where gases and pulp and black liquor go and what they do when they get there.

The digesters are connected to the blow tanks and the blow tanks are connected to the accumulater and the accumulater's connected to the oxidation towers ... (chorus: now hear the word of the Lord ...).

There are number of things which happen along the way to scrub the stink out of the gases. But the mill men are frank to admit these processes are first and foremost to recover the chemicals and heat for re-cycling.

Actually, the mill's oxidation towers are about 95 per cent effective in cleaning out the sulphur compounds, Reynolds says.

•

After oxidation comes an evaporation stage and there's a chimney here that's offending, says Hill.

Late in the recovery process waste products are burned from the black liquor in huge fiery furnaces and the big stack from these furnaces, the one you can see miles away, is perhaps guiltiest of all.

Hill suggests pollution from it might be reduced by altering the oxygen flow in the furnaces. But this would cost the mill something in effectiveness.

One of the steps in reconstituting the liquor involves treating it with lime. The lime in turn is burned to be re-used and there's another chimney on the lime kiln. Tests have shown it is not guilty.

So how does it all add up.

The Crofton mill, is still at the stage of trying to find out which stacks are offending and how much.

The mill men say they have to know where and how big the problem is before they can work on what to do about it.

So they have installed devices to sample the gases at eight points and an expensive machine (about $20,000 counting installation) to measure the pollutants.

The government's $250,000 prize hints there is a single cure which some clever chemist, sufficiently inspired by the golden carrot, will come up with some day.

The men at the mill say that just isn't so. There are too many points where air pollution is generated for one solution to meet them all. Different problems at each. And there may be more than one answer for any one of them.

It's going to make the pie a hard one to cut up — if it ever is cut up.

Most mills, along with the provincial government, support B.C. Research, an independent agency based in Vancouver which has worked on mill air pollution for about 12 years now.

Heading its division of applied chemistry is Dr. Alan McIntyre, who estimates that $75,000 to $100,000 is being spent annually on this problem in recent years.

•

The agency's projects fall into three categories: measuring experiments (they have their own under way at Crofton), chemical studies to lab prove ideas and then the engineering on the mill site to put the proven idea to work.

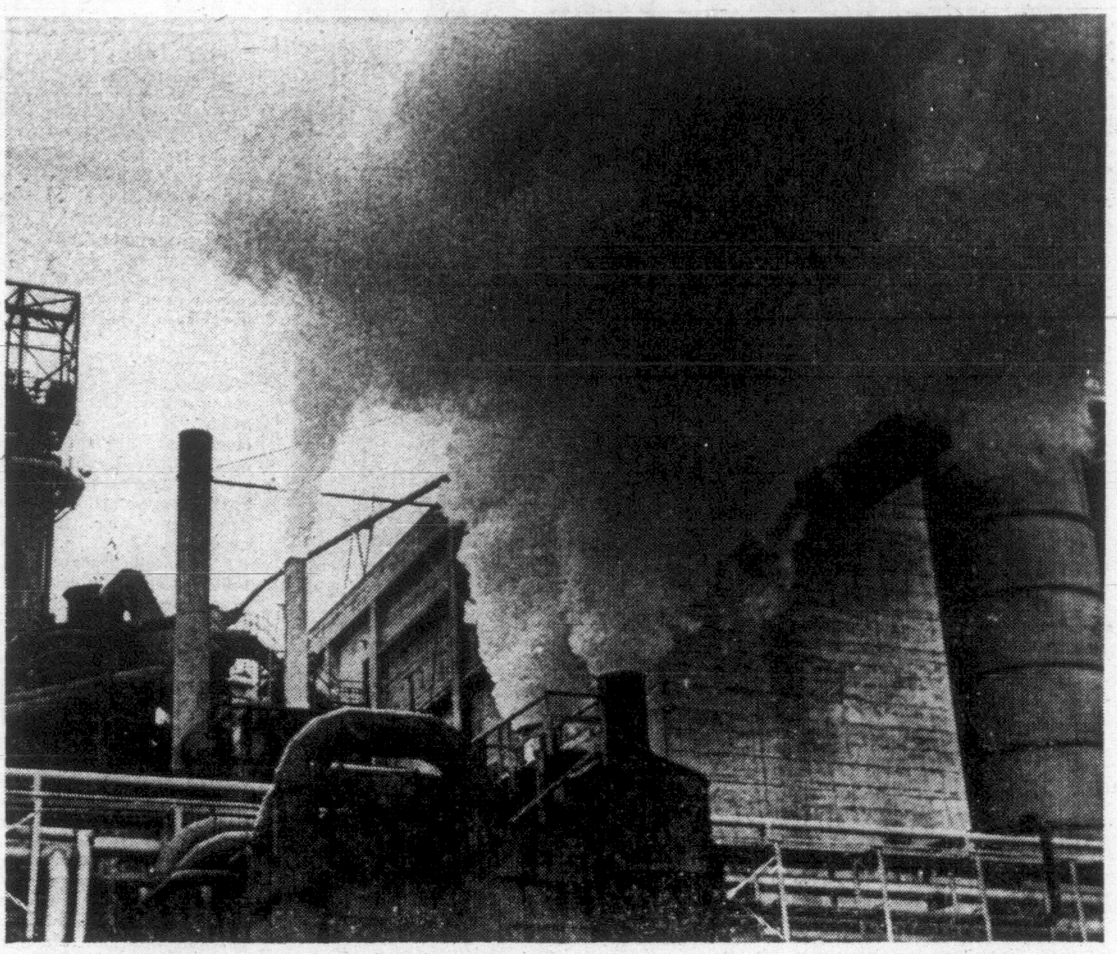
The pulping industry is about where the oil industry was 10 to 15 years ago with air pollution, says McIntyre. Gradual technical improvements has erased most of the foul air around oil operations.

That's what he predicts will happen at the pulp mills — improvement spaced over the next decade and more. Old mills require periodic renovating and that's when the new techniques to counter the smell will be installed.

New pulp mills have got the message and are installing the latest anti-pollution measures when the plants are built.

"This kind of thing has in the past sometimes brought forward useful ideas," McIntyre says of the bit prize.

He sounds as though he isn't holding his breath.



TWIN PLUMES of mostly steam from oxidation towers at Crofton mill actually produce little of the characteristic rotten-egg smell of the kraft mill. But the little stack in the background in mid-picture spouting less fumes is guilty. An experimental type of oxidation tower, it has proved effective at oxidizing but it doesn't absorb pollutants.

Motor Vehicle Testing To Remain Compulsory

The B.C. government has no intention of following the lead of Alberta in putting motor vehicle testing on a voluntary basis, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said today.

"I think it's performing an essential service," Peterson said of the provincial testing program operating in Victoria and Richmond and soon to get under way in Burnaby.

Ray Hadfield, superintendent of motor vehicles, said he understands the Alberta program ran into trouble with unmanagably long lineups resulting from its system of deadlines for vehicle inspection.

B. C. uses a system of sending notices to people who pass their inspection deadlines which are spread fairly evenly throughout the year,

It is understood the Alberta system operates on a deadline for each vehicle year which tended to cause long lineups at the last moment for several times a year.

The rejection rate for vehicles at the McKenzie Avenue inspection station was 37 per cent in 1969, said R. G. Whitlock, chief of motor vehicle inspection.

MORE WARNINGS

The comparative figure for the first six months of operation in 1968 was 38.9 per cent but Whitlock said that there were more warnings in the initial stages when testing was planned for every six months.

When the frequency of inspection was changed to once a year, there was an increase in required repairs and a drop in warnings, which suggests that the program resulted in a definite improvement in vehicle safety in a year and a half.

MORE REASON

Hadfield said the percentage of rejection is not in itself a reason for putting inspection on a voluntary basis. The better the record of successful inspections the more argument there is for keeping the program compulsory, he suggested.

"If a good percentage of vehicles pass the first time, of course that's the way we want it," he said. It means people are preparing for their inspections by keeping the car in safe working condition, he added.

Students to Rest As Teachers Talk

Friday is a holiday for students in B.C. public schools, but teachers will spend the day looking at the education system and discussing ways to change it.

Teachers from Sooke and Saanich peninsula districts will go to Parksville to join colleagues from points north in the southern Vancouver Island convention.

At the University of Victoria, under the theme Humanizing Education, several well-known educators will address Greater Victoria teachers.

ALIENATION OF YOUTH

Dr. David Chabassol, Uvic educational psychologist, will speak on Alienation of Youth.

Dr. John Downing, recently appointed professor of education at Uvic and best known for his work in development of the initial teaching alphabet, will speak on Language Arts and the British Primary School Revolution.

Other speakers:

Ian Cowan, principal, North Delta secondary, Humanizing Education for the Non-Academic Student.

Dr. Arthur Kratzman, Uvic, Personalization of Learning.

Andy Soles, principal, Selkirk College, Castlegar, The Regional College as a Community Resource.

Dr. Charles Galloway, Uvic, Learning Theory and Human Relations of From Rats to Kids.

FOUR-WAY TALK

William H. Wallin, Las Vegas elementary principal, will speak on the convention theme.

In a panel to include members of the school board, department of education, parent-teacher association and teachers will discuss Curriculum Planning: Whose Responsibility?

A second panel, entitled After School — What? will include representatives of business and labor who will talk about what happens to youngsters after they leave the school system.

By midnight tonight an advance force of 50 officers and men of the First Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, an armored personnel carrier, and 15 vehicles, ranging from jeeps to 2½-ton trucks will be airborne for Norway.

Five Hercules and one Yukon aircraft began a six-day airlift this afternoon that will take 600 officers and men, and more than 80 vehicles to Norway for NATO exercises in that country's northland.

The battalion returns to Esquimalt between March 9 and 13.

Family Left Homeless By Flash Fire

Fire destroyed a two-storey frame house at 1335 May Street this morning.

The owners, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred A. Corbin, were out and six of their children were at Sir James Douglas School nearby.

Doug Guyatt, who lives next door, saw smoke pouring from several windows soon after 9 a.m. and called firemen.

GARDEN HOSE

"I then got out the garden hose and played it on a car that was parked close to the side of the house," said Guyatt.

"I couldn't move the car as it was locked."

A motor home was parked alongside the car, but was not damaged.

Firemen entered the blazing house, believed to be more than 50 years old, and searched for occupants.

They moved some of the furniture into the front garden. It was fairly new but badly burned. In less than half an hour they had the fire under control.

Neighbors said Mr. and Mrs. Corbin had lived in the house less than a year and had renovated most of the rooms, installing new kitchen fixtures and some new furniture.

W. A. Corbin is proprietor of the firm of W. A. Corbin and Sons, floor layers, and operated the business from his house.

Ex-Hotelman Dies On Southern Trip

Max Zabel, well-known Victoria businessman and proprietor of the Dominion Hotel for many years, died suddenly Sunday while vacationing at Oakland, California, with Mrs. Zazel. He was 78.

The body is being returned to Victoria today and it is expected funeral services will be held at McCall Brothers' chapel Thursday at 2 p.m.

Born in Washington state, Max Zabel came to Victoria in 1945 intending to retire. Instead he bought the Dominion Hotel and operated it successfully until 1964 when he sold out to Norman Loomer.

Zabel attended high school in Spokane and at 18 launched out as a real estate salesman. Later he bought a 16-acre homestead in the Peace River country and worked the land himself.

He shipped in cows from Edmonton, driving them the last 30 miles from the end of rail and selling them to ranchers. Then he acquired the dealership for a line of cars, trucks and farm implements and operated the business for 29 years.

He is survived by the widow; two sons, Jack and Mark, Victoria, and a daughter, Mrs. Carolyn Weldon, Victoria.

City Woman Serious After Crash

A Victoria woman, Mrs. Helen Mitchell, is in serious condition in St. Joseph's Hospital after a three-car collision at Chemainus River Road and the Trans Canada Highway Saturday night.

Police said a car driven by Clarence Cooper, about 60, of 1761 Pembroke attempted to pass a car driven by Francis Robert Crabbe, 26, of 2856 Fifth in which Mrs. Mitchell was a passenger.

Cooper's car then collided with an oncoming car driven by Greg Leonard Koffski of Duncan.

Six persons were sent to hospital, including Koffski and his two passengers, a Crofton woman and her four-year-old daughter.

MAN CHARGED IN STABBING

A man was to appear in court this afternoon charged with attempted murder following a stabbing incident in Saanich over the weekend.

Donald Semeniuk is in "fairly good" condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with stomach wounds.

He was admitted to the hospital early Sunday morning.

Doctors Back Abortion Reform Victoria Survey Shows

A large majority of local doctors favor liberalization of Canada's abortion laws, according to a recent survey.

Results of the survey were announced today by Victoria Abortion Committee, a newly-formed group whose members recently organized a public forum on the abortion question.

Of 184 questionnaires sent to general practitioners, psychiatrists interns, obstetricians and gynecologists, 114 were returned.

Ninety-two medical men said they would like to make changes "... varying from liberalizing present laws to abolishing the legislation entirely and leaving the decision to women and doctors," said a statement prepared by the abortion committee.

Twenty-two doctors indicated they want no change in present abortion laws.

Spokesman for the committee is Mrs. Melba Harwood, 2066 Frederick Norris.

She said the group intends to campaign for liberalization of laws relating to termination of pregnancy by pursuing any lawful method.

Public meetings will be held to educate people on the need for new legislation. Petitions will be sent to MPs and MLAs.

Anyone over 18 can join the committee. A general meeting is planned for the end of March.

DEATH PLUNGE from a Japan Air Lines jet was caught on film by amateur photographer John Gilpin at Sydney, Australia, Sunday. Dead is Keith Sapsford, 14, who was running away.

Ran Away to See World; Boy Plunges to His Death

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A 14-year-old who ran away to see the world fell 200 feet to his death from the wheel housing of a Japanese airliner Sunday.

C. M. Sapsford, university lecturer in industrial engineering, identified the child as his foster son Keith, 14.

"All my son wanted to do was to see the world," said Sapsford. "He had itchy feet. His determination to see how the rest of the world lives has cost him his life."

Sapsford said the boy had run away before, and he and his wife took him around the world in the hope the trip would satisfy him. But when they returned the child ran away again, and "we had no alternative but to send him to Boys' Town," the father said. "We thought he would straighten out."

Police said Keith disappeared from the institution on Saturday and was reported missing Sunday.

HID IN WHEEL WELL

Officials at the airport said they believed the boy climbed up the wheel of the Japan Air Lines jetliner several hours before the plane took off and hid in the empty wheel housing, probably on the 10-by-5-foot door to the compartment which is closed while the plane is on the ground and the wheels are down.

They thought that when the door was opened after the takeoff so the wheel could be retracted, the child fell to his death.

Officials of the airline said that even if he had not fallen, Keith would have died within 90 minutes after the plane took off for Japan. They said he would have been crushed by the wheel when it was retracted, or would have been killed by the cold or by lack of oxygen.

Freight, Mail Ban To Israel

LONDON (CP) — Eight European airlines temporarily banned freight or mail to Israel in a continent-wide security clampdown today. Passenger luggage for Middle East flights was opened at several airports.

Strengthened police details patrolled corridors and lobbies of air terminals in a search for possible saboteurs. Airline official and pilots' associations hastily called meetings to discuss security measures.

Stringent precautions were thrown around London's Heathrow Airport and senior officials of 53 airlines using the airport debated how to prevent more bomb blasts on Israel-bound planes.

Passenger baggage was searched and all travellers to Tel Aviv were asked to identify their luggage before it was stowed aboard flights for Israel. Eight Tel Aviv flights were scheduled out of Heathrow during the day, three of them direct.

Officials of the 53 airlines spent the morning discussing how to frustrate sabotage attempts following the crash Saturday of a Swiss jet flying to Tel Aviv. The four-engined Coronado came down near the Swiss-German border with a loss of 47 lives.

In London, British Overseas Airways Corp., and British European Airways banned freight to Israel. Other airlines with cargo bans included Air France, Swissair, Royal Dutch Airlines, Lufthansa of West Germany, Austrian Airlines and Sabena of Belgium.

In Switzerland, police and customs officials swarmed around passengers and parcels headed for the Middle East from Zurich and Geneva airports.

Danish police guarding Kastrup International Airport at Copenhagen were weighing whether to ask army help to protect Israel-bound flights.

At Reim Airport in Munich, Germany, where one person was killed in an attack on an Israeli El Al plane Feb. 10, police armed with automatic pistols guarded El Al passenger buses. Luggage of travellers for the Middle East was searched.

An El Al spokesman in Frankfurt said the company's airliners were under police surveillance and passenger lists were checked for suspicious names.

Passengers' baggage was opened at Rome and El Al officers were under police guard around the clock.

Basil Edwards, administrative secretary of the International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations, said consultations were under way that could lead to a meeting of the federation's governing body on the security issue.

American Tourist Dies in Attack

Times News Services

JERUSALEM — Arab commandos attacked a bus carrying 37 Americans on a tour of Israeli-occupied Jordan today, killing one woman and injuring three others.

The bus, on a tour of Holy Land sites, was raked by machine gun fire, as it travelled near the village of Halhoul on the outskirts of Hebron.

A second bus in the tour escaped without being hit.

One of the wounded American women, Mrs. Tabea Damico of Atlantic City, N.J., told officials:

"We were driving along out of Hebron ... when suddenly we were being shot at from all sides. We crawled under the seats for safety."

This new incident followed closely the suspected sabotaging of an Israeli-bound Swissair jetliner in which 47 persons including 15 Israelis died Saturday.

The Swiss government today called for an aviation security conference as soon as possible and suggested it take place "on Swiss territory."

VALID VISAS

Switzerland also decided that all Arab nationals must have valid visas to enter the country and ordered stringent controls to prevent Palestine commandos from entering and using Arab passports.

As well, Switzerland has set out rigid police measures involving Arab nationals.

Meanwhile, in Amman, Jordan and Arab commando groups Sunday night reached a comprise agreement that appears to have ended the latest crisis between government and guerrillas in this Arab kingdom.

"The crisis is over," a member of the commando negotiating team reported. "We will be restrained in our actions but our movement will continue."

NEW REGULATIONS

The latest crisis between King Hussein's government and the Palestinian commandos started Feb. 10 when Hussein issued broad security regulations prohibiting carrying weapons in public, stockpiling of weapons and explosives, collecting money with arms and wearing uniforms for personal gain.

A commando spokesman indicated the guerrillas will discipline themselves and that the government security measures aimed at them will not be enforced. "We consider that the measures were never issued," he said.

When the measures were announced the guerrillas said they would not respect them and would resist any attempts to disarm them. In ensuing clashes between government troops and commandos at least 80 persons died.

Pompidou Faces Protest in U.S.

Times News Services

PARIS — President Georges Pompidou left by air today for an official visit to the United States, amid fears of demonstrations, especially in New York, against France's pro-Arab policy in the Middle East.

French officials are confident he will receive complete cordiality from the Nixon administration, but they are reliably reported to be nervous over possible pro-Israel public demonstrations and a potential congressional boycott when he addresses a joint session in Washington Wednesday.

Congressional critics of France's Middle East policy predict that one-third to a half of the House of Representatives membership will join the boycott, but few if any senators are expected to.

SECRECY CLOAK FOR BONN TRIP

BONN (Reuters) — Foreign Minister Abba Eban, the first Israeli minister to make an official visit here, began talks today on consolidating relations between Israel and West Germany.

Strict security has surrounded his visit for fear of action by Arab extremists.

Eban flew here Sunday night from Munich under a cloak of secrecy.

Three Girls Jailed For Attacking Court

MONTREAL — Three McGill University students were each sentenced today to 20 days in jail for contempt of court in connection with the distribution of literature described as a "monstrous attack" on the judicial system.

Associate Chief Justice George S. Challies of Superior Court passed the sentence on the three girls who were arrested on the campus of Loyola College with about 150 copies of a newsletter called Student Front.

The newsletter contained an article entitled "Feb. 11 victims face a racist and corrupt court" — referring to the case of 10 West Indians currently facing trial in the $2,000,000 computer-wrecking incident at Sir George Williams University Feb. 11, 1969.

"There is no doubt whatsoever that this is a monstrous attack on the court," Mr. Justice Challies said in sentencing Sarah Humphrey, 21, Sarah Herrink, 19, and a 17-year-old girl whose name was ordered withheld.

DISMISSES CITATIONS

Earlier, he had dismissed contempt citations against three male students arrested when police raided the headquarters of the Montreal Student Front for People's Democratic Rights Friday night.

Seized in the raid were three typewriters and a photocopy machine believed used in the production of the newsletter.

A student occupation and subsequent violence at the Sir George Williams computer centre last year came in the wake of a university investigation into charges of racism against a biology professor.

The charges were later dismissed as groundless.

The trial of the 10 Negroes on charges arising from the incident is in its sixth week, with the defence preparing to produce its first witnesses.

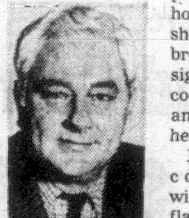
Pacific Role Vision Expands

By JACK SCOTT

The missionary was out of a job this week, but you could still hear the tambourines and the message of salvation.



Scott

Probably the one, legitimate, functioning little bit of olde England remaining in these parts, 48-year-old James McCrossan cleaned out his desk drawer at Victoria's Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped, where he'd just tendered his resignation, wondered aloud about where he'd go from here, and, characteristically, turned instantly to a longer-range vision of the future.

He's a brass-bold, self-confident man with patent leather hair, an ingratiating type sometimes billed in British music halls as "The Cheeky Chappy." A patina of London-acquired insouciance and London-acquired accent soften the image, but he's a hard-sell booster with tireless energy.

He has appalled and alienated the more conservative members of the Establishment as an unabashed promoter and a Johnny-come-lately (that worst of Victoria sins, it would appear), yet he carries right on gathering converts and gathering momentum as he goes.

Incredibly, some might say, his impact on a city subconsciously searching for identity has been pervasive and impressive.

In almost any conversation today with influential Victorians concerned for the future the phrase "Geneva of the Pacific" is sure to surface. It is Jim McCrossan's phrase, Jim McCrossan's idea and Jim McCrossan's passion.

He puts it in typically extravagant terms.

"The aim should be to create the most pleasing, most civilized total environment in the world today," he says in those excessively precise, cultured tones, fixing his listener with a faith-healing gaze.

"We can shape here a remarkable city-region, one that stands as a great, prosperous, towering lighthouse on Canada's western shores, casting out across the broad Pacific a splendid signal of decency and civilized co-operation between nations and of rising hope in the hearts of millions."

It is the same kind of contagious persuasiveness with which McCrossan ran the flag up the pole for Quaker Oats, Spode China, Lyons' Tea, Procter and Gamble soaps and other products as a London advertising executive before moving west four years ago to become director of public relations for Goodwill Enterprises, the job he left last week.

"Geneva of the Pacific" is his catch-phrase. The Inter-Victoria Economic Promotion Council, formed just five months ago, ("a grand strategy for Greater Victoria's future") is his instrument. "Project Inter-Vic", he says, now boasts a broad base of support including city, municipal, provincial and federal representation. "There's a steadily rising groundswell of interest," as he puts it.

Part 7 in Series

Briefly — and McCrossan very seldom is — Project Inter-Vic would aim at attracting international bodies,

HANOI BEGINS NEW LAOS RAID

VIENTIANE (AP) — The North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces that recaptured the Plaine des Jarres may now be heading toward Muong Suoi, an important Laotian government position nine miles west of the plain, U.S. sources said today.

The sources reported a "light probing attack" during the night on the mountain outpost of Phou Kout, on the western edge of the plain 100 miles north of the capital and on the route to Muong Suoi.

The North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao captured Muong Suoi and held it for a short time last summer. T-28 bombers of the Laotian Air Force operate from a base there.

Tories Press Own Tax Plan

MONTREAL (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield has called all Canadians to unite in a fight to the finish against the federal government's white paper on tax reforms and has proposed that low-income groups be given tax rebates for economic assistance.

Stanfield told the annual congress of the Quebec wing of the Progressive Conservative party during the weekend that the federal government should provide $85,000,000 in tax rebates to help Canadians whom the Canada Economic Council considers poor.

He called on the Liberal government to show proof of good intent in its budget scheduled to be tabled next month "by providing income tax rebates for all families considered economically underprivileged."

Stanfield proposed a three-point plan for economic assistance:

- A reimbursement of 100 per cent of taxes paid by persons living in poverty, that is, families of two earning less than $3,000 a year or families of four earning less than $4,200;
- A reimbursement of 50 per cent of taxes paid by persons earning up to $200 more than those in the poverty category;
- A reimbursement of 25 per cent of taxes paid by persons earning $200 to $300 more than those living in poverty.

"This proposal would provide assistance ... to about 1,500,000 taxpayers," Mr. Stanfield said.

He said changes proposed in the white paper tabled last fall by Finance Minister E. J. Benson would "impose a very heavy load on Canadian taxpayers and result in a serious blow to our economy."

Bus Plunge Kills Girl In Quebec

WATERVILLE, Que. (CP) — A 17-year-old girl was killed and at least 15 persons injured today when a Provincial Transport Co. bus plunged off a bridge into the Coaticook River near a power dam.

Provincial police identified the girl as Carole Dupuis of Beebe Junction, Que., but there were unconfirmed reports that up to four others of 35 passengers may have been killed.

A Hydro-Quebec work crew, going to a nearby powerhouse, said they say the bus hit a truck in a blowing snow storm, slide on the icy road through the concrete and steel guardrail, hit part of the dam below and plunge farther down a steep ravine.

Experts Up to Their Noses In War on Pulp Mill Smell

By DON VIPOND

That pungent perfume marking the pulp mill is not about to be expunged by scientists scrambling for Premier Bennett's $250,000 deodorant prize.

The mill men say that themselves. Sadly.

They leave the distinct impression they wish it wasn't so. They wish the prize would do the trick. Or a new pill, a miracle, anything. It would help lighten the pressure on them from pollution fighters.

Pulp mills all over the world stink. It's deep in the processing liquor which is their blood. Come along on a safari to the kraft mill at Crofton, near Duncan, to find out where the smell comes from, and why, and what's in the wind for tomorrow.

It's an overwhelming experience. You can get choked on the details, statistics, the chemistry of it before getting a close-up whiff of the evil odor itself. It you're a poor boob who can just recall Na stands for Sodium, you're in trouble early.

●

The first big problem, it seems, is your nose. People can detect the rotten-egg stench of sulphur compounds from the mill's stacks when they are as faint as five parts per billion in the air, explains mill manager Bill Reynolds.

It doesn't help that concentration and effect are logarithmic, meaning if the pollutants double, they smell maybe 10 times as bad.

We may be in the scientific 70s but there isn't a machine yet which can come close to the sensitivity of the nose.

Changing logs into paper involves cooking wood chips in such things as Sodium Hydroxide and Sodium Sulphide, Reynolds explains. This makes the glue holding the fibres together let go.

The idea then is to clean up the chemicals used in the cooking so they can be used again—and again—and again.

That's good economics. But smelly business, as it turns out.

The Crofton mill is like a snorting, wheezing giant, venting through not one but seven stacks as it chews, swallows, digests (belching every 30 minutes) and finally delivers the goods called kraft.

"Wood chemistry is very complicated," says Deryk Hill, assistant technical superintendent, "because wood is complicated chemically."

Up on top of the batch digesters he proves it, tracing the maze of fat black pipes and tanks where gases and pulp and black liquor go and what they do when they get there.

The digesters are connected to the blow tanks and the blow tanks are connected to the accumulater and the accumulater's connected to the oxidation towers . . . (chorus: now hear the word of the Lord . . .).

There are number of things which happen along the way to scrub the stink out of the gases. But the mill men are frank to admit these processes are first and foremost to recover the chemicals and heat for re-cycling.

Actually, the mill's oxidation towers are about 95 per cent effective in cleaning out the sulphur compounds, Reynolds says.

●

After oxidation comes an evaporation stage and there's a chimney here that's offending, says Hill.

Late in the recovery process waste products are burned from the black liquor in huge fiery furnaces and the big stack from these furnaces, the one you can see miles away, is perhaps guiltiest of all.

Hill suggests pollution from it might be reduced by altering the oxygen flow in the furnaces. But this would cost the mill something in effectiveness.

One of the steps in reconstituting the liquor involves treating it with lime. The lime in turn is burned to be re-used and there's another chimney on the lime kiln. Tests have shown it is not guilty.

So how does it all add up.

The Crofton mill, is still at the stage of trying to find out which stacks are offending and how much.

The mill men say they have to know where and how big the problem is before they can work on what to do about it.

So they have installed devices to sample the gases at eight points and an expensive machine (about $20,000 counting installation) to measure the pollutants.

●

The government's $250,000 prize hints there is a single cure which some clever chemist, sufficiently inspired by the golden carrot, will come up with some day.

The men at the mill say that just isn't so. There are too many points where air pollution is generated for one solution to meet them all. Different problems at each. And there may be more than one answer for any one of them.

It's going to make the pie a hard one to cut up — if it ever is cut up.

Most mills, along with the provincial government, support B.C. Research, an independent agency based in Vancouver which has worked on mill air pollution for about 12 years now.

Heading its division of applied chemistry is Dr. Alan McIntyre, who estimates that $75,000 to $100,000 is being spent annually on this problem in recent years.

●

The agency's projects fall into three categories: measuring experiments (they have their own under way at Crofton), chemical studies to lab prove ideas and then the engineering on the mill site to put the proven idea to work.

The pulping industry is about where the oil industry was 10 to 15 years ago with air pollution, says McIntyre. Gradual technical improvements has erased most of the foul air around oil operations.

That's what he predicts will happen at the pulp mills — improvement spaced over the next decade and more. Old mills require periodic renovating and that's when the new techniques to counter the smell will be installed.

New pulp mills have got the message and are installing the latest anti-pollution measures when the plants are built.

"This kind of thing has in the past sometimes brought forward useful ideas," McIntyre says of the bit prize.

He sounds as though he isn't holding his breath.

TWIN PLUMES of mostly steam from oxidation towers at Crofton mill actually produce little of the characteristic rotten-egg smell of the kraft mill. But the little stack in the background in mid-picture spouting less fumes is guilty. An experimental type of oxidation tower, it has proved effective at oxidizing but it doesn't absorb pollutants.

Motor Vehicle Testing To Remain Compulsory

The B.C. government has no intention of following the lead of Alberta in putting motor vehicle testing on a voluntary basis, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said today.

"I think it's performing an essential service," Peterson said of the provincial testing program operating in Victoria and Richmond and soon to get under way in Burnaby.

Ray Hadfield, superintendent of motor vehicles, said he understands the Alberta program ran into trouble with unmanagably long lineups resulting from its system of deadlines for vehicle inspection.

B. C. uses a system of sending notices to people who pass their inspection deadlines which are spread fairly evenly throughout the year,

It is understood the Alberta system operates on a deadline for each vehicle year which tended to cause long lineups at the last moment for several times a year.

The rejection rate for vehicles at the McKenzie Avenue inspection station was 37 per cent in 1969, said R. G. Whitlock, chief of motor vehicle inspection.

MORE WARNINGS

The comparative figure for the first six months of operation in 1968 was 38.9 per cent but Whitlock said that there were more warnings in the initial stages when testing was planned for every six months.

When the frequency of inspection was changed to once a year, there was an increase in required repairs and a drop in warnings, which suggests that the program resulted in a definite improvement in vehicle safety in a year and a half.

MORE REASON

Hadfield said the percentage of rejection is not in itself a reason for putting inspection on a voluntary basis. The better the record of successful inspections the more argument there is for keeping the program compulsory, he suggested.

"If a good percentage of vehicles pass the first time, of course that's the way we want it," he said. It means people are preparing for their inspections by keeping the car in safe working condition, he added.

Students to Rest As Teachers Talk

Friday is a holiday for students in B.C. public schools, but teachers will spend the day looking at the education system and discussing ways to change it.

Teachers from Sooke and Saanich peninsula districts will go to Parksville to join colleagues from points north in the southern Vancouver Island convention.

At the University of Victoria, under the theme Humanizing Education, several well-known educators will address Greater Victoria teachers.

ALIENATION OF YOUTH

Dr. David Chabassol, Uvic educational psychologist, will speak on Alienation of Youth.

Dr. John Downing, recently appointed professor of education at Uvic and best known for his work in development of the initial teaching alphabet, will speak on Language Arts and the British Primary School Revolution.

Other speakers:

Ian Cowan, principal, North Delta secondary, Humanizing Education for the Non-Academic Student.

Dr. Arthur Kratzman, Uvic, Personalization of Learning.

Andy Soles, principal, Selkirk College, Castlegar, The Regional College as a Community Resource.

Dr. Charles Galloway, Uvic, Learning Theory and Human Relations of From Rats to Kids.

FOUR-WAY TALK

William H. Wallin, Las Vegas elementary principal, will speak on the convention theme.

In a panel to include members of the school board, department of education, parent-teacher association and teachers will discuss Curriculum Planning: Whose Responsibility?

A second panel, entitled After School — What? will include representatives of business and labor who will talk about what happens to youngsters after they leave the school system.

600 SOLDIERS TO FLY AWAY

By midnight tonight an advance force of 50 officers and men of the First Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, an armored personnel carrier, and 15 vehicles, ranging from jeeps to 2½-ton trucks will be airborne for Norway.

Five Hercules and one Yukon aircraft began a six-day airlift this afternoon that will take 600 officers and men, and more than 80 vehicles to Norway for NATO exercises in that country's northland.

Ex-Hotelman Dies On Southern Trip

Max Zabel, well-known Victoria businessman and proprietor of the Dominion Hotel for many years, died suddenly Sunday while vacationing at Oakland, California, with Mrs. Zabel. He was 78.

The body is being returned to Victoria today and it is expected funeral services will be held at McCall Brothers' chapel Thursday at 2 p.m.

Born in Washington state, Max Zabel came to Victoria in 1945 intending to retire. Instead he bought the Dominion Hotel and operated it successfully until 1964 when he sold out to Norman Loomer.

Zabel attended high school in Spokane and at 18 launched out as a real estate salesman. Later he bought a 16-acre homestead in the Peace River country and worked the land himself.

He shipped in cows from Edmonton, driving them the last 30 miles from the end of rail and selling them to ranchers. Then he acquired the dealership for a line of cars, trucks and farm implements and operated the business for 29 years.

He is survived by the widow; two sons, Jack and Mark, Victoria, and a daughter, Mrs. Carolyn Weldon, Victoria.

City Woman Serious After Crash

A Victoria woman, Mrs. Helen Mitchell, is in serious condition in St. Joseph's Hospital after a three-car collision at Chemainus River Road and the Trans Canada Highway Saturday night.

Police said a car driven by Clarence Cooper, about 60, of 1761 Pembroke attempted to pass a car driven by Francis Robert Crabbe, 26, of 2856 Fifth in which Mrs. Mitchell was a passenger.

Cooper's car then collided with an oncoming car driven by Greg Leonard Koffski of Duncan.

Six persons were sent to hospital, including Koffski and his two passengers, a Crofton woman and her four-year-old daughter.

MAN CHARGED IN STABBING

A man was to appear in court this afternoon charged with attempted murder following a stabbing incident in Saanich over the weekend.

Donald Semeniuk is in "fairly good" condition in St. Joseph's Hospital with stomach wounds.

He was admitted to the hospital early Sunday morning.

Fire destroyed a two-storey frame house at 1385 May Street this morning.

Doug Guyatt, who lives next door, saw smoke pouring from several windows soon after 9 a.m. and called firemen.

GARDEN HOSE

"I then got out the garden hose and played it on a car that was parked close to the side of the house," said Guyatt.

"I couldn't move the car as it was locked."

A motor home was parked alongside the car, but was not damaged.

Firemen entered the blazing house, believed to be more than 50 years old, and searched for occupants.

They moved some of the furniture into the front garden. It was fairly new but badly burned. In less than half an hour they had the fire under control.

Neighbors said Mr. and Mrs. Corbin had lived in the house less than a year and had renovated most of the rooms, installing new kitchen fixtures and some new furniture.

W. A. Corbin is proprietor of the firm of W. A. Corbin and Sons, floor layers, and operated the business from his house.

Doctors Back Abortion Reform Victoria Survey Shows

A large majority of local doctors favor liberalization of Canada's abortion laws, according to a recent survey.

Results of the survey were announced today by Victoria Abortion Committee, a newly-formed group whose members recently organized a public forum on the abortion question.

Of 184 questionnaires sent to general practitioners, psychiatrists interns, obstetricians and gynecologists, 114 were returned.

Ninety-two medical men said they would like to make changes ". . . varying from liberalizing present laws to abolishing the legislation entirely and leaving the decision to women and doctors," said a statement prepared by the abortion committee.

Twenty-two doctors indicated they want no change in present abortion laws.

Spokesman for the committee is Mrs. Melba Harwood, 2066 Frederick Norris.

She said the group intends to campaign for liberalization of laws relating to termination of pregnancy by pursuing any lawful method.

Public meetings will be held to educate people on the need for new legislation. Petitions will be sent to MPs and MLAs.

Anyone over 18 can join the committee. A general meeting is planned for the end of March.

WILLISTON ANNOUNCES HYDRO PROPOSALS

Bus Price Going to 25 Cents

Power Rates Up 14%

By BRUCE YEMEN

The bus fare in Victoria will be raised to 25 cents from 20 cents or four for 75 cents, according to proposals submitted this afternoon to the government by B.C. Hydro.

Proposed electricity rate increases were also read to the legislature showing the rate for 1,000 kilowatt hours per month would increase from the current $14.50 to $16.70 — about a 14 per cent climb.

The increase for 1,500 kilowatt hours would be from $19.50 to $22.20. The increase for 2,000 kwh would be $22.50 to $27.70.

The minimum monthly rate would be raised from $1 to $2.

A bill for apartment-type consumption of 400 kilowatt hours would rise from $8.50 to $10.00.

Resources Minister Ray Williston read the proposed rates to the House from letters written early in January by Dr. Gordon Shrum, Hydro chairman.

Bus fares for students and children will be unchanged for cash fares but tokens, which are currently sold at a discount, will be discontinued.

NO CHANGE

There would be no change in sale of passes to persons in receipt of the provincial supplement social allowance.

Estimated increase in revenue through bus fare increases would be $2.5 million.

The proposed Hydro rate increases would provide $15.1 million additional revenue in 1970-71.

TAKE EFFECT

The letter said B.C. Hydro would require government approval by March 1 if the increases would take effect in the 1970-71 fiscal year beginning April 1.

The letter from Shrum showed the proposed new rates compared with 1961 rates under the B.C. Electric Company, and indicated reductions for users of less than 200 kwh and more than 1,500 kwh.

Users in the middle range would pay slightly more per month compared with 1961, Shrum said.

The letter said that it costs $4 a month just to service a customer, which means in effect that any bill less than $4 a month provides free electricity as far as Hydro is concerned.

"We lose money on all residential customers whose bills are less than $12 a month, and barely break even on bills higher than this," Shrum's letter stated.

DEATH PLUNGE from a Japan Air Lines jet was caught on film by amateur photographer John Gilpin at Sydney, Australia, Sunday. Dead is Keith Sapsford, 14, who was running away.

Ran Away to See World; Boy Plunges to His Death

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A 14-year-old who ran away to see the world fell 200 feet to his death from the wheel housing of a Japanese airliner Sunday.

C. M. Sapsford, university lecturer in industrial engineering, identified the child as his foster son Keith, 14.

"All my son wanted to do was to see the world," said Sapsford. "He had itchy feet. His determination to see how the rest of the world lives has cost him his life."

Sapsford said the boy had run away before, and he and his wife took him around the world in the hope the trip would satisfy him. But when they returned the child ran away again, and "we had no alternative but to send him to Boys' Town," the father said. "We thought he would straighten out."

Police said Keith disappeared from the institution on Saturday and was reported missing Sunday.

Officials at the airport said they believed the boy climbed up the wheel of the Japan Air Lines jetliner several hours before the plane took off and hid in the empty wheel housing, probably on the 10-by-5-foot door to the compartment which is closed while the plane is on the ground and the wheels are down.

Arab Raiders Attack Tourists

Times News Services

JERUSALEM — Arab commandos attacked a bus carrying 37 Americans on a tour of Israeli-occupied Jordan today, killing one woman and injuring three others.

The bus, on a tour of Holy Land sites, was raked by machine gun fire, as it travelled near the village of Halhoul on the outskirts of Hebron.

A second bus in the tour escaped without being hit.

One of the wounded American women, Mrs. Tabea Damico of Atlantic City, N.J., told officials:

"We were driving along out of Hebron ... when suddenly we were being shot at from all sides. We crawled under the seats for safety."

This new incident followed closely the suspected sabotaging of an Israeli-bound Swissair jetliner in which 47 persons including 15 Israelis died Saturday.

The Swiss government today called for an aviation security conference as soon as possible and suggested it take place "on Swiss territory."

VALID VISAS

Switzerland also decided that all Arab nationals must have valid visas to enter the country and ordered stringent controls to prevent Palestine commandos from entering and using Arab passports.

As well, Switzerland has set out rigid police measures involving Arab nationals.

Meanwhile, in Amman, Jordan and Arab commando groups Sunday night reached a comprise agreement that appears to have ended the latest crisis between government and guerrillas in this Arab kingdom.

"The crisis is over," a member of the commando negotiating team reported. "We will be restrained in our actions but our movement will continue."

NEW REGULATIONS

The latest crisis between King Hussein's government and the Palestinian commandos started Feb. 10 when Hussein issued broad security regulations prohibiting carrying weapons in public, stockpiling of weapons and explosives, collecting money with arms and wearing uniforms for personal gain.

A commando spokesman indicated the guerrilas will discipline themselves and that the government security measures aimed at them will not be enforced. "We consider that the measures were never issued," he said.

When the measures were announced the guerrillas said they would not respect them and would resist any attempts to disarm them. In ensuing clashes between government troops and commandos at least 80 persons died.

Pompidou Faces Protest in U.S.

Times News Services

PARIS — President Georges Pompidou left by air today for an official visit to the United States, amid fears of demonstrations, especially in New York, against France's pro-Arab policy in the Middle East.

French officials are confident he will receive complete cordiality from the Nixon administration, but they are reliably reported to be nervous over possible pro-Israel public demonstrations and a potential congressional boycott when he addresses a joint session in Washington Wednesday.

Congressional critics of France's Middle East policy predict that one-third to a half of the House of Representatives membership will join the boycott, but few if any senators are expected to.

Pacific Role Vision Expands

By JACK SCOTT

The missionary was out of a job this week, but you could still hear the tambourines and the message of salvation.

Scott

Probably the one, legitimate, functioning little bit of olde England remaining in these parts, 48-year-old James McCrossan cleaned out his desk drawer at Victoria's Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped, where he'd just tendered his resignation, wondered aloud about where he'd go from here, and, characteristically, turned instantly to a longer-range vision of the future.

He's a brass-bold, self-confident man with patent leather hair, an ingratiating type sometimes billed in British music halls as "The Cheeky Chappy." A patina of London-acquired insouciance and London-acquired accent soften the image, but he's a hard-sell booster with tireless energy.

He has appalled and alienated the more conservative members of the Establishment as an unabashed promoter and a Johnny-come-lately (that worst of Victoria sins, it would appear), yet he carries right on gathering converts and gathering momentum as he goes.

Incredibly, some might say, his impact on a city subconsciously searching for identity has been pervasive and impressive.

In almost any conversation today with influential Victorians concerned for the future the phrase "Geneva of the Pacific" is sure to surface. It is Jim McCrossan's phrase, Jim McCrossan's idea and Jim McCrossan's passion.

He puts it in typically extravagant terms.

"The aim should be to create the most pleasing, most civilized total environment in the world today," he says in those excessively precise, cultured tones, fixing his listener with a faith-healing gaze.

"We can shape here a remarkable city-region, one that stands as a great, prosperous, towering lighthouse on Canada's western shores, casting out across the broad Pacific a splendid signal of decency and civilized co-operation between nations and of rising hope in the hearts of millions."

It is the same kind of contagious persuasiveness with which McCrossan ran the flag up the pole for Quaker Oats, Spode China, Lyons' Tea, Procter and Gamble soaps and other products as a London advertising executive before moving west four years ago to become director of public relations for Goodwill Enterprises, the job he left last week.

"Geneva of the Pacific" is his catch-phrase. The Inter-Victoria Economic Promotion Council, formed just five months ago, ("a grand strategy for Greater Victoria's future") is his instrument. "Project Inter-Vic", he says, now boasts a broad base of support including city, municipal, provincial and federal representation. "There's a steadily rising groundswell of interest," as he puts it.

Briefly — and McCrossan very seldom is — Project Inter-Vic would aim at attracting international bodies,

NEW LAOS RAID

VIENTIANE (AP) — The North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces that recaptured the Plaine des Jarres may now be heading toward Muong Suoi, an important Laotian government position nine miles west of the plain, U.S. sources said today.

Tories Press Own Tax Plan

MONTREAL (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield has called all Canadians to unite in a fight to the finish against the federal government's white paper on tax reforms and has proposed that low-income groups be given tax rebates for economic assistance.

Stanfield told the annual congress of the Quebec wing of the Progressive Conservative party during the weekend that the federal government should provide $85,000,000 in tax rebates to help Canadians whom the Canada Economic Council considers poor.

He called on the Liberal government to show proof of good intent in its budget scheduled to be tabled next month "by providing income tax rebates for all families considered economically underprivileged."

Stanfield proposed a three-point plan for economic assistance:

- A reimbursement of 100 per cent of taxes paid by persons living in poverty, that is, families of two earning less than $3,000 a year or families of four earning less than $4,200;
- A reimbursement of 50 per cent of taxes paid by persons earning up to $200 more than those in the poverty category;
- A reimbursement of 25 per cent of taxes paid by persons earning $200 to $300 more than those living in poverty.

"This proposal would provide assistance ... to about 1,500,000 taxpayers," Mr. Stanfield said.

He said changes proposed in the white paper tabled last fall by Finance Minister E. J. Benson would "impose a very heavy load on Canadian taxpayers and result in a serious blow to our economy."

Three Girls Jailed For Attacking Court

MONTREAL — Three McGill University students were each sentenced today to 20 days in jail for contempt of court in connection with the distribution of literature described as a "monstrous attack" on the judicial system.

Associate Chief Justice George S. Challies of Superior Court passed the sentence on the three girls who were arrested on the campus of Loyola College with about 150 copies of a newsletter called Student Front.

The newsletter contained an article entitled "Feb. 11 victims face a racist and corrupt court" — referring to the case of 10 West Indians currently facing trial in the $2,000,000 computer-wrecking incident at Sir George Williams University Feb. 11, 1969.

"There is no doubt whatsoever that this is a monstrous attack on the court," Mr. Justice Challies said in sentencing Sarah Humphrey, 21, Sarah Herrink, 19, and a 17-year-old girl whose name was ordered withheld.

DISMISSES CITATIONS

Earlier, he had dismissed contempt citations against three male students arrested when police raided the headquarters of the Montreal Student Front for People's Democratic Rights Friday night.

Seized in the raid were three typewriters and a photocopy machine believed used in the production of the newsletter.

A student occupation and subsequent violence at the Sir George Williams computer centre last year came in the wake of a university investigation into charges of racism against a biology professor.

The charges were later dismissed as groundless.

The trial of the 10 Negroes on charges arising from the incident is in its sixth week, with the defence preparing to produce its first witnesses.
